Conducted by
Lucille Skaggs Edwards

WOMEN TO AID IN CONSERVATION OF FOOD

Our new food administrator wishes to enlist all the women of America in the conservation of the nation's food. Women play an important part in all wars and this is a call for fortitude and sacrifice.

The good sense and unselfishness of our women will make them respond to this call of our country. Real women know the seriousness of what they will have to do in this crisis and will through gardens, increase the food supply; eliminate waste of food, of clothes, and of material; and will band themselves together as volunteers to aid in every way they can. Following is enough of the plan, published in all of our daily papers, to make it plain to each woman how she may co-operate.

"Washington, D. C., June 18.—Herbert C. Hoover, new food administrator, has appealed to the American women to aid him in the fight for the conservation of the country's food supply and the elimination of waste.

Between July 1 and 15, the women of the country will be enrolled through the council of national defense and the state defense councils.

The pledge that the women are asked to give follows:

"I am glad to join you in the service for food conservation for our nation, and I hereby accept membership in the United States food administration, pledging myself to carry out directions and advice of the food administrator in the conduct of my household, in so far as my circumstances permit."

Mr. Hoover, as directed by the president, is proceeding with organization of the food administration so far as it contemplates assembling volunteer efforts.

Mr. Hoover's statement follows:

"As requested by the president, we ask every woman engaged in the personal control of food to register for actual membership in the food administration, thus entering directly into the national service.

"We not only want the name and address, but we want the number of persons in the household, we want to know whether it has a garden, and we want to know the occupation of the bread winner. There are no fees or dues to be paid.

"On receipt of the pledge we will send our preliminary instructions and a household tag to be hung in the window. The insignia of the food administration will consist of the national shield, surrounded by heads of wheat, and we hope to have shields displayed in every home in the United States."

THE SUMMER RAIN

When the buttercups are thirsty
And the clovers' roots are dry;
When the little ruffled daisies
In the warm air softly sigh;
Then the clouds bend lower, lower;
Of the dear earth's needs they think,
And they send a shower of raindrops
For the thirsty flowers to drink.

In the forest, in the valley,
On the mountain's lofty crown,
Happy blossoms smile their welcome
As the rain comes tinkling down.
Little buds burst into blossom,
Putting on bewitching graces;
And they thank the bending heavens
By the brightness of their faces.
