JUST BORN TIRED, THAT'S ALL

Applicant for Position Would Accept Job Calling Out Stations on Board Vessel.

He walked into the employment agency wearing a smile and born-tired look, as well as a few other things.

"Any vacancies for a man like me?" he asked, as he arranged himself comfortably along the counter.

"What is your trade or profession?"

"My trade or profession?" he repeated yawning. "I'm a coronation program seller."

"I see!" said the clerk, dryly. "No, we have nothing in that line open just now!"

"I'd take something else if it suited me and I thought I could do it properly, you know!" he went on, making himself more comfortable on the counter.

"As for instance?"

"Well," replied the born-tired, "I wouldn't mind calling out the names of the stations on board an Atlantic liner, or something of that sort!"

PROVES PLATE GLASS FADES

Window From Fashionable Haberdasher's Store, Installed in Fashionable Residence, Still Carried Ad.

An amusing incident is related in the Scientific American to prove that plate glass fades under exposure to sunlight. The glass originally is slightly green, and after some years of use becomes pure white. The incident is briefly as follows:

In making some changes in the front of a haberdasher's store, a five-foot piece of plate glass was removed and taken away by the glazier. In course of time this sheet was installed in the front window of a new residence. The family had scarcely moved in when they began to receive telephone messages suggesting that the neighborhood was scarcely appropriate for a shirt factory. They were mystified until they discovered that when the sunlight struck their window at a certain angle the words, "John Doe—Shirts Made to Order," shone out upon the glass.

The explanation was that when the glass formed the haberdasher's window it had borne these words in white enameled letters, and the letters had protected the underlying glass from the rays of the sun, consequently it had not faded as the rest of the glass had done.

A GOOD DEFENSE.

The Magistrate—This lady says you tried to speak to her at the railway station.

The Accused—It was a mistake. I was looking for my wife's young niece, whom I've never seen, but who'd been described to me as a handsome, blonde lady with classic features, fine complexion, perfect figure, beautifully dressed and—

The Complaining Witness—I don't care to prosecute the gentleman. Any one might have made the same mistake.—Boston Globe.

Barking Cat Among Freaks in U. S.

A cat that barked like a dog, recently exhibited at Boston, tops the list of numerous freaks discovered in this country. Recently a giant glow-worm 4 1/2 inches long, was found in the Santa Cruz mountains. When placed in the dark a gorgeous effect was produced by the luminous rings circling its body.

Mammoth fruit is of frequent occurrence, but in Southgate, Bath, England, a shocking case of plant overeating was discovered. It resulted in seven daisies growing on one stalk. This freak, scientists said, was caused by fesciation, which means overeating.

White blackbirds, canaries, linnets and sparrows have been seen and exhibited. The ocean, too, gives its share of curious freaks. A double-sided flounder, with both sides alike, duplicate fins and a misplaced eye, was caught some months ago.

Privilege of the Great.

"What I don't understand is how these captains of industry can find time to play golf and enjoy life in other ways, when they have so many responsibilities."

"Perhaps for the same reason that colonels, majors and generals are gentlemen of more or less elegant leisure. They have some dependable first and second lieutenants and top sergeants to do the hard work."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Her Wistful Look.

"Your daughter's beauty is sprituelle."

"Think so?"

"There is something wistful about her expression."

"She gets that way just before meal-time. We got corned beef and cabbage today. She likes that."—Pittsburgh Post.

Be kind.

He is not worthy the honeycomb that shuns the hive because the bees have stings.—Shakespeare.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Would you remain always young, and would you carry all the joyousness and buoyancy of youth into maturer years? Then have a care concerning but one thing—how you live in your thought world.—Ralph Waldo Trine.

SUMMER SALADS.

Skill is required in arranging salads; the garnishing is most important.

Color combinations should be used with care, not mingling too many in one dish. Bright splashes of red, vivid green or yellow give zest to the appetite.

Pimientos, chives, and hard boiled eggs thinly sliced make attractive garnishing, as do olives stuffed or green, when shaved and placed on cheese or on pineapple salad. Capers and sweet green peppers are good in combination with lettuce, tomatoes or chicken.

Lemon sliced and sprinkled with chopped parsley or sprays of parsley with quarters of lemon make a fish salad most dainty.

Beet and Potato Salad.—Take six beets and six potatoes, one cupful of chopped olives and chives, with mayonnaise dressing. Cut the cooked beets and potatoes with a potato cutter into small balls. Put the potatoes in the mayonnaise dressing to which has been added the chives and olives. Dip the beets in vinegar and dish alternately, serving on lettuce.

Poinsettia Salad.—Take six tomatoes, a stalk of celery, a sweet green pepper and three apples, one-half cup of walnut meats and mayonnaise dressing. Scald the tomatoes, chill them and with a sharp knife, mark five divisions from the top center over half way to the base. Carefully turn back the skin to form five petals, scoop out the pulp and fill with apple, celery and nuts. Heap a little extra dressing on each and garnish with a ring of green pepper.

Jellied Egg Salad.—Take one quart of chicken jelly; this may be made very economically by cooking a half dozen pairs or more of chicken's feet. Scald, then cut off the toes and skin, then cook in a quart or more of water until the flesh falls from the bones. Slice the eggs, using six, and stir them gently in the cooling jelly so they will be evenly mixed. When cold place on a platter and garnish with mayonnaise dressing and parsley or water cress.

Quitman, Ga., Nov. 12.—White farmers in Georgia who want to keep their Negro tenants satisfied on the farms will have to encourage them and teach them to diversify their crops. This year has convinced every Georgia farmer that cotton can no longer be grown as it used to be, says R. E. Dover of Dixie, Ga., one of the most successful farmers in this country.

Save your money.

It is not doing the thing we like to do, but liking the thing we have to do, that makes life blessed.—Goethe.

THE MOTHER GOOSE FAIRY BOOK Page 3 By Eleanor Schorer

"I well remember," said Mother Goose, "the night that Bessie (a child who is very fond of me and my dear ones) opened her nursery windows to let the moths and bees and butterflies come in to dance and frolic. My Little Nancy Etticoat begged to go to the party. So I nipped her wick and tied her petties and Bessie's Nurse carried her upstairs.

"Every wing-man's head turned to gaze as bright-faced, golden-haired Nancy entered and every heart beat faster. To them she was more beautiful than was Cinderella to the Prince. After Nurse left, beaux flocked about Nancy, buzzing sweet nothings and quarreling to kiss her golden head. So doing they fell in a swoon at her feet and died for love of their brilliant loved one.

"What a mess!" exclaimed Nurse next morning, seeing the tattered wings of Little Nancy Etticoat's dead lovers. Nancy, her petticoat all crumpled and soiled, was quite dead too. 'It is time you slept without a light,' she told Bessie. Bess looked sad, but said nothing of Nancy's romance, knowing Nurse to be too grown up to understand Mother Goose folks."

Wiping away a tear, Mother Goose finished, saying: "The winged-women folk, jealous of her conquests, said that Nancy wore herself out coquetting, winking and smiling at winged-men folk. Fairies claim that she died broken-hearted at the sight of her lovers expiring at her feet. But grown-ups say that she just burnt out like lighted candles always have done and will always continue to do."
