LINCOLN LEAGUE HOLDS GREAT CONVENTION

field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Mr. Johnson presented statistics concerning the lynching evil in this country that astounded his hearers.

All of the subjects before the convention were discussed at length by the able thinkers of the group in the country. It was very evident from the discussion that universal sentiment prevails among the people for action and results in the wrongs suffered at this time by the citizens. The discussions were remarkable for the absence of the feeling of anger and radical agitation except in so far as it was made plain that 15,000,000 colored people are determined to get some kind of hearing before the bar of justice.

Resolutions Adopted.

At the final session of the convention Thursday night, the resolutions were read by Attorney Isaac Nutter of New Jersey, and after a short discussion by various delegates on some of the points, were unanimously adopted.

Among the leading planks in the resolutions are:

The republican party is called on to condemn mob violence and bring the crime of lynching under federal supervision; the endorsement of woman's suffrage; the urging of colored workmen to join labor unions where it is demonstrated that there is no discrimination on the grounds of race or creed; the call upon candidates for congress and for president of the United States to declare themselves on the subjects concerning which colored people are most concerned; the urging of the people at large to contribute more liberally to the expense of conducting political campaigns; the endorsement of the league of nations with the Lodge reservations; the republican party is accepted as the channel through which the league activities are to be carried on.

President Roscoe Conkling Simmons presided at all the sessions of the league and introduced the speakers for the various topics under consideration. One of the striking features of the convention was the inimitable eloquence of Colonel Simmons presided at all the sessions of was particularly true of his introduction of the distinguished speakers of the other race. With ready and deep meaning satire, fact after fact with reference to the two groups dwelling side by side in the United States, was driven home. Probably one of the most effective expressions of Colonel Simmons came after his description of how the white and colored people have been joined by God in working out the salvation of humanity in this country, giving a description of what each is doing, and then he added, amid great applause, "What God has joined together, let not man put asunder."

Distinguished Visitors Present.

It is deeply significant of the times that there were present during the Lincoln League convention, Will H. Hays, chairman of the National Republican Committee; Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois; Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, and General Leonard Wood. All of these men constantly have more engagements than they can fill, but they regard no engagement of larger importance than their appearance at this convention, representative of the 15,000,000 colored Americans, all of whom had their eyes turned to Chicago, and their ears to the receiver at the listening post to hear their declarations on manhood rights, and the privileges of American citizenship.

The first speaker Wednesday night was Chairman Hays. He launched into his subject with characteristic vigor, speaking straight from the shoulder on the things that he knows are uppermost in the mind of every colored American. He denounced lynching as un-American and unchristian, and declared that in the matter of citizenship, the constitution of the United States should be upheld.

Governor Frank O. Lowden followed. Governor Lowden took advantage of the occasion, being on the eve of Lincoln's birthday, and the name of the league bring "Lincoln" and confined his remarks largely to an eulogy of the life of Abraham Lincoln. His address was interesting from that standpoint, but the vast assemblage was plainly disappointed because he failed to make an open declaration concerning his views on the critical subjects affecting colored people.

It had been announced that General Leonard Wood would appear at the Thursday morning session at 9:30, on his way from Minneapolis, Minn., to Cleveland, O., where he was to deliver the Lincoln day address before the Tippecanoe club. He was to have only two hours in Chicago, and much official work to look after. The audience assembled early, but it developed that the train from the west was two hours late. Mayor Thompson was to appear at 11 and appeared practically on time, his appearance was announced by Edward H. Wright, and he was given an ovation. In the mean time President Simmons announced that General Wood would undoubtedly appear later. The mammoth church by this hour was crowded to the doors with delegates and visitors.

Mayor Thompson's address was typical of his belief in political equality and opportunity. He reviewed his career as mayor of Chicago, and told how he had always sought to uphold the constitution in the city for the people. He told why he appoints his assistants on merit, and not by race, and was loudly applauded.

In the midst of the mayor's address, General Wood arrived. He was given the greatest demonstration of the entire convention, Mayor Thompson discontinued his address for the time and warmly grasped the hand of General Wood, while the audience applauded and stood cheering.

At the conclusion of the mayor's address, President Simmons introduced General Wood of the United States army, as a "personal friend to the great American who believed in 'all men up.' Theodore Roosevelt."

General Wood minced no words, nor did he lose time in making himself understood. His first words were: "I believe in upholding the constitution of the United States, and that means that I believe the laws should be obeyed by all, and that all citizens should enjoy the privileges under the constitution." He declared that the government stands first for law and order, upon which foundation only can peace and harmony be maintained.

General Wood denounced lynching and mob violence as one of the most dangerous conditions of American life, and states that every interest of every group in all parts of the country must work for the elimination of the crimes in order that the majesty of the government must be upheld. He states that democracy must mean democracy at home and for the individual American, and that this is paramount to the troubles of Europe, so far as America is concerned. He paid a tribute to the soldiers of our group, and when he said: "The brave men of the Tenth cavalry were with me in Cuba," here and there among the delegates and other persons present arose and were recognized and saluted by General Wood.

THE MONITOR'S PRESS DAY.

THE Monitor goes to press Wednesday of each week at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. To insure publication in the current week's issue news items and articles must reach our office by Tuesday night. One form, that is to say, one chase, the iron frame in which one page of the type is "locked up" to go on the press is held open for emergency advertisements, the copy for which cannot be obtained before Wednesday morning, until noon Wednesday. Now and then we can get late news on that page, but ordinarily not. Copy, therefore, that reaches our office Wednesday later than 10 o'clock in the morning stands a slim chance of getting in that week's issue. Frequently copy reaches us Wednesday afternoon or Thursday and some irate individual calls up to know "Why isn't my item in this week's issue?" Too late, dear friends, that's all. Get your news in on time.

The Negroes are fine musicians, singers, poets, composers and novelists. Ragtime and jazz came from the Negro, and now all America dances to it. Pushkin, the greatest poet of Russia, was part Negro. Dumas, author of "The Count of Monte Carlo," had Negro blood in his veins. Samuel Coleridge-Taylor, one of our finest composers, was a Negro, and a genius. Mme. Marie Selika of Chicago drew London, Paris and Berlin to her feet when she sang. Paul Laurence Dunbar was one of America's best poets. And William Stanley Braithwaite, another Negro, guides the literary judgment of a good part of the United States. He edits anthologies of poetry and each year writes a critical review of the poetry printed in this country. He is an authority in that difficult art of assessing the value of a poem.
