BARBERS RAISE PRICES.

The colored barbers of the city for almost a year have worked under price. To safeguard their business, and keep their men from entering other fields where they could make more money with less hours, were forced to come to the standard price of barbering.

The matter hasn't created any great alarm. The people know the barbers have given their people the benefit of the doubt for a long time.

Some have wondered in the face of high cost of commodities how they were able to work as cheaply as they have for so long a time. It is rumored the white barbers are soon to raise again. The colored barbers do not contemplate an additional raise at this time. They say if there is any possible way to avoid another raise they will do so. Although they cannot guarantee that.

Commencing April 15, 1920, haircuts will be 50c and shaves 25c.
