ARTICLE XIV. CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES.

Citizenship Rights Not to Be Abridged.

1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

ECCLESIA LOCUTUS EST.

Ecclesia locutus est. This means the Church hath spoken. In days of old when the authority of the Church because she spoke with one voice and not with many discordant voices, was recognized this meant that a judgment from which there was no further appeal had been given, and that they who value their soul's salvation must listen and obey. Today of course ecclesiastical unity does not exist, but at the same time there is a common Christian consciousness, which will hearken to the voice of the Christian Church, which includes all organizations of Christians, when it speaks clearly and fearlessly on moral issues and for justice and righteousness. The trouble has been that the Christian pulpit has been criminally silent against terrible wrongs and injustices, social and economic, which have existed all too long in the United States. The American Church, and by this term we would include all the religious forces of America, has been affected with an acute moral astigmatism which made it purblind to domestic ills and injustices and keen sighted as to the wrongs prevailing in foreign lands. Armenian massacres evoked, and justly, righteous indignation. American atrocities against black citizens were too trivial to be noticed. This attitude, considered by many hypocritical, has brought censure upon the Church. Fortunately however, the American Church is beginning to speak out against evils at home. Various religious bodies have of late expressed themselves in no uncertain tones against lawlessness and mob violence. The most conservative are being moved to find a voice. A recent notable case in point is the action by the Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Georgia, where the Bishop of that conservative diocese made a strong appeal for the people of his communion to take a stand against mob violence and an unlawful and unwarranted organization which can but provoke violence and strife. What is more notable perhaps is the fact the convention heartily endorsed the utterance of his bishop and took decisive actions towards creating a sentiment which must de throne lawlessness. This shows that when Christian leaders show courage for the right their followers will support them. A great burden and responsibility rests upon the Christian Church of America today to stem lawlessness. The demand is urgent for fearless religious leaders who will have the Lord's moral courage to say, "Thus saith the Lord." "Whoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murder hath eternal life abiding in him." Let the American Church speak out unequivocally and plainly, showing the people their transgressions and their sins and the clouds, heavy and ominous which hover over our nation will lift. Let the Church speak.

Pegg. There were no other attendants. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Russell Reese sang "I love you truly". The wedding march was played by Mrs. Charles Ransom, nee Ozella Dunning. The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. W. F. Botts, pastor of Zion Baptist church. A large number of guests were in attendance. The gifts were many, beautiful and costly, testifying to the high esteem in which the couple are held. A reception followed the ceremony. The body will be brought to Omaha for burial. While Mr. Terrell had been ill for some time the latest advices were that he was steadily improving. The news of his death came as a great shock. The Terrell brothers who have made it a custom to visit their mother yearly or have her visit them were here last year and increased their large circle of friends to whom the news of Earl's death, who was a young business man of promise, will cause sincere regret.
