POLISH NATION HAS 27,000,000

Country Is Now Sixth in Population in Europe, According to Official Information.

New York .- The new republic of Poland, now in its fifth year, has a population of 27,160,163, and is the sixth nation in Europe, according to official information compiled by the Polish bureau of information.

"Its population is exceeded only by Russia, Germany, Great Britain, France and Italy," the statement says. "Poland has a population as large as Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland combined." Warsaw Has 941,000.

Warsaw's population is given as 941,001; Lodz, 451,444; Lemberg, 219,-000: Cracow, 181,000; Posen, 169,000; Vilna (estimated), 146,000.

The republic has now been divided into 16 states or administrative units, called voyvodships. The city of Warsaw, however, as capital of the repub-lie, is distinct from any voyvodship. After struggling with various boundary disputes on all sides, and emerging victorious from a war with Russia, Poland established her frontiers and then turned her attention to internal affairs. The first regular Polish parliament came into being November 27, 1922, succeeding the constituent assembly that had been organized as an emergency governing body early in 1919. During its life, the assembly enacted more than five hundred laws, including a constitution providing for a house of representatives elected by universal suffrage, and a senate elected in the same manner. Economy was another far-reaching measure instituted by the new republic. During 1922, a reduction of 25,-000 civilian employees was made in the various departments. Military affairs also were subjected to sweeping changes. A standing army of 25,000 was recommended, with compulsory military service of two years for all males reaching the age of twenty-one.

Demonstrates Its Stability. The republic demonstrated its stability in December, 1922, following the assassination of President Narutowicz, the first chief executive, after he had been in office but two days. In the absence of precedent, the leaders turned to the constitution for guidance. Four days after the assassination, an election was held and a new president took office in accordance with the expressed will of the people.

Chimneys an Old Institution. It is said chimneys were first introduced into Great Britain in 1200. their use being confined to the kitchen and large hall. They were in general use in domestic architecture in 1310. How far the Greeks and Romans were acquainted with chimneys as we now know them is a matter of dispute. An ancient mosaic found in Algeria, representing a Roman country house. shows chimney stacks projecting
