GAYETY AGAIN SCORES

Return of the Show That Did the Gayety's Biggest Business Last Season is Better Than Ever

Lew Talbot's presentations of "Wine Woman and Song" twice daily next week at the popular Gayety theater promises the return of a show always popular on the Columbia "Wheel" and, this year, made more attractive than ever by new scenery, costumes and mirthful scenes. Bert Bertrand, who is featured in Hebrew comedy, Harry S. LeVan, his first assistant, and Nate Busby, a black-face funster of droll manners, will carry the laugh impelling incidents while a bevy of attractive beauties, headed by Gertrude Ralston, Betty Burroughs and Viola Spaeth, will contribute the necessary elements of vivacity that makes burlesque favorite entertainment with the whole family.

Bert Bertrand wrote the book and Max Ferhmann supplied new music for "Wine, Woman and Song." Bertrand's style of Hebrew comedy has gained for him increasing popularity with the burlesque "fans" for the reason that his methods are original and his "jew" a unique creation in stage business.

Harry S. LeVan presents an eccentric style of comedy, featuring a routine of dancing steps that are said to be decidedly out of the ordinary. Nate Busby, Jimmie Welton and Otto Johnson are other men of versatile ways in entertaining.

But, after all, burlesque would be less attractive if mere man was in the ascendancy throughout the show, for beauty of female face and figure lends a charm that even good, hearty, clean comedy cannot entirely supplant. So it is that Gertrude Ralston, Betty Burroughs and Miss Spaeth, while they are attractive and talented principals, will be backed by a chorus of 20 singing and dancing girls to embellish the musical numbers.

Costuming of unique design, fabric of costly sheen, and style that will supply eye-filling pictures for spectators is depended upon to especially please the women patrons who now throng the daily matinees. Scenery in glittering profusion, stage pictures of pleasing brilliancy and arrays of sightly scenes will make "Wine, Woman and Song," according to advance promise, measure up with the most elaborate productions of the season.

Crowded into two acts and eleven scenes will be twenty-one musical numbers and an appealing array of vaudeville specialties to vary the entertainment and fill the measure of snappy amusement to the brim.

Ladies bargain matinee at 2:15 on week days. The Sunday matinee and the grand holiday matinee Thursday (Thanksgiving Day) will start at 3:00.

THE PASSING AWAY OF MRS. ELIZABETH CLARK

By O. J. Burekhardt

A star of unusual brilliancy and great Christian magnitude and influence, has been removed by "that reaper whose name is death." This star has reflected a ray of light upon each life that was blessed to be associated with her. She was a strong Christian, a loving wife and a kind and patient mother. She was even dutiful to her church and pastor. As a friend there was none truer. The passing away of this splendid woman has caused sadness and gloom to hover over the entire community. She has left a vacancy that will be hard to refill.

She is not dead but sleeping. To awake the resurrection morn. There is no death, but stars go down. To rise upon the fairer shore And then in heaven's jewelled crown They will shine forever more.

MT. MORIAH BAPTIST Rev. E. H. McDonald, Pastor

Sunday School was largely attended. The superintendent was absent on account of illness in the family. The pastor's theme in the morning was "Is Your Heart Right." In the evening, "God is a Man of War."

The Choir rendered special music. Among the visitors who worshipped were: Miss Stratton of the Y. W. C. A. and Mr. Washington of Lincoln. Special services next Sunday. The Public is invited.

TABLE MANNERS IN ARABIA

As Might Reasonably Be Expected, They Are Primitive in the Extreme.

Manners vary according to time and locality, so they say. For instance, in Arabia a young woman's table etiquette is judged by the skill with which she scrapes the dish with her finger and conveys the results to her mouth. American relief workers, writing from Ismid, Turkey, give an account of a family luncheon party of a half-dozen Armenian girls who had been rescued from Arab harems that is a most enlightening glimpse on manners of the Near East.

"It was during some games we held that the girls who had been in captivity among the Arabs acted out the native customs of their former masters. They ate without fork or knife or spoon from a common dish placed on the ground in their midst. One girl showed us how the Arabs eat hot food. With her finger tips she smeared the food around the edges of the plate with a circular movement, blowing her fingers from time to time. When the dish was well smeared, she scooped up the food with the same circular movement and carried it into her mouth. She can eat thick soup thus, and more quickly than you could with a spoon. The soup running down her wrist was licked off hurriedly and another scoopful taken, for there was a circle of girls around the dish, and the slow ones lose out."

Severe Chinese Punishments.

It is enacted in the laws of China that "if a mandarin, on the strength of his power or credit, steal the wife or daughter of any freeman, he shall be imprisoned for the usual time, and be put to death by strangulation." The poor man so sinning is beaten and imprisoned only. The heaviest punishment that can befall the woman is castigation and sale. And in no instance can she be sold but to a man who binds himself by the most sacred of all Chinese oaths to treat her kindly. In some provinces she may be sold, not by her husband, but by the judge before whom her offense is proved.

A Chinese who forgives a wife who has not kept her marital vows, receives 20 strokes of the bamboo. A man who connives at his wife's frailty is most severely punished.
