Commends Editorial and Douglas County Bar

Omaha, Neb., April 2, 1924.
The Rev. John Albert Williams,
Editor Monitor,
My Dear Sir:

I wish to personally thank you for the editorial expression contained in the last week's issue of your paper entitled, "The Judiciary." Coming at the time it did, a season of political agitation, I am frank to say that your message could not have possibly been more serviceable and opportune.

It is, as it ought to be, that the office of judge is non-partisan. Because of the service they render society in deciding the legal issues between man and man, neighbor and neighbor, it must necessarily be non-political. Because it is non-political it forces upon those occupying the bench in times of campaign, the duty of being politically non-aggressive. In political times, therefore, the general public is not permitted to have such expressions from the lips of judicial aspirants as they have from those seeking other offices. Because of this condition, men occupying positions such as you and I do, must for the benefit of the general public become spokesmen, advocating the virtue and fitness of men who have to do with the legal side of our state and national life. It is in this respect that your editorial is most commendable. I wish to thank you also for the fine word you had to say for Judge Hastings. I know of no man more worthy.

I believe that I can safely say that I have about as large and diversified practice as the average lawyer in the city and I am called upon to take sides against the biggest lawyers as well as the smallest; to represent Negro causes as well as causes from other races and I am therefore, in a position by virtue of experience to make you the following statement: For honesty, patience and willingness to give fair consideration to the causes of all races coming before the bar in this jurisdiction, I have never seen the present bench of Douglas County surpassed. I understand that Judge C. O. Stauffer, Judge Charles Goss, Judge L. B. Day and Judge James M. Fitzgerald will go before the people for re-election during this campaign. I wish to say that if either one of these men should be defeated, that our group would lose the service of men, whom I believe to be divinely called to the bench and before whom no meritorious Negro cause has or shall ever be abused. As an attorney, handling as I am a large volume of Negro business, for the sake of my work and those calling upon me to render them legal service, I am extremely interested in having these men succeed themselves, and am calling upon all voters to stand squarely behind me.

Very truly yours,
JOHN ADAMS.

For City Commissioner

A City Commissioner should possess highly developed business ability, be a man with big business ideas, and be able to distinguish between details and worth while matters. The operations of a City Government are numerous and usually very vital. A good business man will not let petty details overshadow the real points at issue. A City Commissioner should know that he cannot perform his duties well unless he employs men under him who are experts in their lines. In brief, a good business manager will make a good City Commissioner.

A City Commissioner must be a man of integrity. It is a well known fact that a spring cannot rise higher than its source and it is equally true that a Commissioner's department will not be any more efficient than the man at the head. If he believes and practices honest and faithful performance of duty, strict adherence to business principles, the men under him will follow his example or look for another job.

Mr. T. F. Stroud possesses these character qualities. He has lived in Omaha most of his life, made a success of his Little Red Wagon Business, and retired a few years ago to become County Commissioner. Being an energetic man he desires to spend the riper years of his life serving the community which has given him a livelihood.

We recommend Mr. Stroud for City Commissioner because we know he will devote his entire time and energy to the city and will do his utmost to substitute business principles for mere talk.—Dr. Frank Smith, Fred Crane, Lou Adams, C.
