Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The fall opening of the North Side Branch of the Y. W. C. A. will be held Thursday, September 29, at 8:30 p. m. A larger and more helpful educational program is being offered to all who join in putting over this work through the classes this year. Attend the fall opening so that you can make your selections early. Art, dress-making, public speaking, choral club, gymnasium classes, and night school, are the classes offered this year. After the evening program, refreshments will be served. Do not forget Thursday evening, September 29.

The Fellowship committee is sponsoring the moonlight picnic, Monday night, September 26. A trip to Calhoun and return and your lunch for the small price of 50 cents.

On Saturday, September 17, the high school Girl Reserves spent the day at Camp Brewster, where the fall setting up conference was being held for 1927-1928. Mrs. Freddie Porter and Miss Ruth O. Collins sponsored the group from the North Side Branch.

The Athletic Gems met Tuesday afternoon in their second business meeting. Reports of the conference were given and future plans were made for the program of the club. Miss Eva Mae Dotson presided and Mrs. Freddie Porter sponsored the meeting.

The training course for leaders of girls is being sponsored by the Girl Reserve department of the Y. W. C. A. All Sunday school teachers and other women interested in girls are eligible. Call Webster 1539 if you care to get in on this course, which is free of charges.

The doll contest, in which little girls are competing, sponsored by the House committee, Mrs. Sarah B. Canty, chairman, will end and the prizes will be awarded at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon, September 27. The dolls are on exhibition at the Stuart Art shop, 1803 North Twenty-fourth street.

The contest sponsored by the Board of Management closes Tuesday night at 8:30.

A. PHILLIP RANDOLPH TO SPEAK HERE SUNDAY AFTERNOON

A. Phillip Randolph, of New York, editor of The Messenger and general organizer of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, will speak at St. John's A. M. E. church, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the present status of the Pullman porters' fight for a living wage and better working conditions. This is a mass meeting and is open to the public. There is no admission fee and no collection. The Pullman porters' fight for better wages and working conditions is one in which all our people should be interested. Mr. Randolph is one of the outstanding men of the race, who has been invited to address colleges and university groups in various sections of the country. He is an able speaker and knows his subject. He should have a large audience Sunday afternoon.

LOS ANGELES FLIER STARTS AVIATION SCHOOL

Los Angeles, Cal.—(ANP)—Ace Foreman, the Los Angeles boy who was the first colored aviator to attempt a transcontinental flight, is preparing to open a school of aviation here. Foreman received his education in aeronautics as apprentice without pay under the tutelage of Jesse Longbrake, one of the west's best airmen.

Made Arrow Complete Its Destined Course

In the mountain province of Luzon, Philippine Islands, where the Igorots and Ifugaos and Kalingas live by primal laws duplicated in the Old Testament of the Bible, but modified by Christ's philosophy in the New. A journeying missionary priest recently was shot in the back with an arrow. He turned back trying to discover his hidden assailant, and when the young man in the bushes found out that he was a priest, he came and knelt before him and begged heavenly pardon. There was a feud on, he explained and he had thought the priest an enemy; in the dusk of late twilight he had not recognized the priest's garb. All right, but how could they get the arrow out of the priest's back? Oh, that would be very easy and would not hurt much; so the young mountaineer stepped behind the priest, cut the feather-end of the arrow and jammed the point on through the priest's body and then he stepped around in front and pulled the arrow out. The wound healed soon enough, no vital organs having been scotched.—Exchange.

Setting Him Straight

"Aw I can't!" whined the young nephew. "You can't?" answered old Riley Rezzidew sarcastically. "You ain't been hypnotized, have ye, or got a broken leg, or the dyspepsy, or a wife and mother-in-law to henpeck the energy out o' you; you are not in the poorhouse or in jail, or bound hand and foot with chains, are ye? In this present Anno Domini and this Great Land of the Free any whole and healthy man or boy who makes use of the word 'can't', when referring to any task or duty of everyday life, ought to be arrested for misappropriating other people's property—stealing a word that is the rightful possession of cripples, paupers, prisoners and model husbands."—Kansas City Star.

Keeps Car on Rails

Many people think that a train is kept on the rails by the flange or rim that is on the inside edge of the wheel. This flange steadies the car, but does not keep it on the rails. The rail is slightly rounded on top, as is the rim of the car wheel, so that the wheel does not rest squarely on the rail. The outer circumference of the wheel is smaller than the inner and the wheel rests on the inner slope of the rounded rail. In running the wheels press outward because it is easier for them to run along the smallest edge and on top of the rail. By pushing outward and exerting the same force in opposite directions the wheels keep each other balanced and on the rails.

Germ-Proof Upholstery

Odors of such common plants as cloves, thyme, wild verbena, geranium and cinnamon will protect automobile upholstery against germs, an English expert has discovered. Upholstery in which quantities of the plants have been mixed remains germ-proof for eighteen months to two years. He found that the odor of cloves would kill microbes in thirty-five minutes, while cinnamon killed some species in twelve minutes. The essence of cinnamon was fatal, he claims, to typhoid-fever bacteria after twelve minutes.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

As Yet, Unseen

In the Lambs club a few evenings ago a Scottish actor, who had hearkened to a series of stories dealing with the alleged penuriousness of his race, was moved to remonstrate. He argued that thrift was a virtue and one of which the Scotch might well be proud. "As a collector of oddities," he remarked, "I have occasion to visit pawnshops all over the city, and to the credit of my race I wish to state that I have never yet seen a set of bagpipes in one of them."

Honest Preference

"I don't pretend to know much about art," said the lady who remembers something and thinks she originated it, "but I know what I like." "I'm that way, too," said Miss Cayenne. "And I'm frank enough to say that at an artistic reception the things I really like are chicken salad, ice cream and fudge."

Old Roman Religion

Ruins of a Roman soldiers' temple to the eastern sun god Mithra, dating back to before A. D. 325, have recently been uncovered near the north German city of Dieburg. The find is regarded as one of the most important archeological discoveries ever made in Germany. The altar piece, a slab of sandstone about a yard square carved with scenes from the mythical life of the god, was found in almost perfect condition. The cult of Mithra was an immensely popular religion in Rome during early Christian times, especially in the legions, which spread it throughout the vast extent of the empire, and it was only with much difficulty that Christianity finally was able to overcome and replace it.

Truly Feminine Role

The Woman's neighbor is the mother of a girl of eleven, a boy of nine, and another wee daughter of five. One recent rainy afternoon the Woman dropped in for a chat and found all three children at home. In the course of the conversation the subject changed to plans for the future. The mother in an attempt to discover her children's viewpoints asked each one to name his or her ambition. The girl of eleven replied without hesitation that she intended to be a great singer. The boy chose as his vocation the profession of acting. In response to the same question, however, the little one of five answered simply, "I want to be the audience."—New York Sun.

Effective Comeback

When Dr. Wellington Koo, highly cultured and American educated Chinaman, was in Washington he attended a banquet and found himself seated next to an obsequious American, of the kind who thinks there is only one kind of Chinaman. The first course had passed and the American thought it time to start some sort of conversation. "Likee soupee?" he asked of Koo. The Chinaman bowed affirmatively. A few minutes later, when the toastmaster had finished his opening remarks, Koo leaned over. "Likee speechee?" the Chinaman quizzed the American. Conversation between them lagged after that.—Capper's Weekly.

Ancient Courts

As a result of a recent inquiry, it has been ascertained that there are more than 100 courts in England that have not had a session for 50 years. The origin of these inferior local courts can be traced to the time when there had to be as many courts in the land as there were manors, so that justice could be taken to the poor man's door.

Among the Forest courts there exist the Survey of Dogs and the Court of Swainmote, which, although not repeated, have been out of use for centuries.

Belief in Witchcraft

Strong in Year 1680

A writer, looking over the annals of Newburyport, Mass., dug up a curious case of the witchcraft craze. It was in 1680 that some very strange happenings took place in the house of an old resident; pots and pans rattled at unearthly hours of the night and missiles flew through the air in the most mysterious manner and on one occasion a brick from the chimney struck the old man and nearly ended his earthly existence. His wife was tried and convicted of being a witch and sentenced to be hanged. A neighbor suspected a boy, the old man's grandson, and in telling the aged man he could determine the cause, hinted he had a knowledge of astrology and astronomy. Suspicion of witchcraft fell on him and he was tried and escaped conviction only when another neighbor testified he had seen the boy throw a shoe at his grandfather. Then suspicion fell on the grand-mother and she was convicted and sentenced to death. Meanwhile the grandson went away and the disturbances ceased. A reprieve was granted and later the case was dismissed.

KLAN PARADE STOPPED IN PUEBLO, COLO., BY PROTEST
