

Fliers Prepare to Resume Trip

Army Airmen Wait Word From Washington to Hop Off.

By International News Service. Brough, England, July 22.—With the planes completely overhauled and their engines perfectly tuned, the American round-the-world fliers to-day awaited word from Washington, to start the home journey on the Atlantic.

Leut. Lowell H. Smith, flight commander said he would be ready to lead the flight tomorrow.

Patrol boats that will mark the ocean course have not all reached the posts and the final arrangements by the government are all that now delay the start of the flight.

Amsterdam, July 22.—Final arrangements were being made here today for another round-the-world flight. Major Zanna, Argentine, will hop off here Thursday morning at 5, moving eastward on practically the same course followed by the American fliers.

The flight will be made in a 450 horsepower Fokker plane. Zanna will have but one companion, Engineer Beltrame, another Argentine. The third member of the crew, Lieutenant Nelson, is ill.

Girl Weds While Newsboys Cry Story of Father's Tragic Death

Universal Service Staff Correspondent. By ROBERT J. PREW

London, July 22.—English scientific circles were startled today by the tragic death of Sir William Herdman, world famous biologist, a few hours before the wedding of his daughter. He came to London from Liverpool to attend the wedding, stopping at a Euston hotel.

After dinner he took a stroll, meeting a woman who accompanied him to a back street hotel, a place containing only eight bedrooms.

"A gentleman came in with a lady and asked for a room about 10:45 last night," said the manager. "A few minutes after 11 the woman rushed downstairs and announced that her companion had collapsed. We found his partly dressed body lifeless."

Lockjaw Takes Second Victim

Pin Injury Fatal to Youngster Who Loses Brave Fight.

James May, the 14-year-old boy who has been lying critically ill in the University hospital with lockjaw for a week, died Monday night at midnight, after his mother and father had left the hospital.

For several days doctors did not expect him to live, and express surprise that he fought it off as long as he did. His family was with him earlier in the evening, but he was alone when the end came.

The boy stepped on a pin July 11. He paid no attention to the small wound and infection set in, finally developing into lockjaw. The body was taken to the N. P. Swanson funeral home.

Young May's is the second death in Omaha from lockjaw within a week.

The Home in the Big Maple Tree.

There was no doubt about it; Happy Jack Squirrel and Mrs. Happy Jack had come over to the big maple tree by Farmer Brown's house to live. They were making their new home in a big, dead, hollow branch half way up in the tree. Farmer Brown's boy was delighted.

Of course, the new home didn't remain a secret very long. Some of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows manage to keep their homes secret, but others do not, and do not even try. It wasn't long before sharp eyes discovered that Happy Jack and Mrs. Happy Jack were spending all their time in or near that big maple tree. Most of the feathered people knew about that hollow branch, and right away some of them guessed that Happy Jack and Mrs. Happy Jack had taken it for their home. It took only a little spying to make sure of this. Then it was only a little while before everybody knew about it.

"The trouble with you, Chatterer, is that you are envious."

Perhaps I shouldn't have said that everybody knew about it. Shadow the Weasel didn't know about it. No one ever tells Shadow news of this kind. No one is mean enough for that. He has to find out such things for himself. But everybody else knew about it, and it caused a lot of talk. You see, before this, Happy Jack had always lived in the Green Forest.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel turned up his nose. You know, Chatterer and Happy Jack do not get along together at all. "It's the most foolish thing I ever heard of," declared Chatterer. "I've always said that Happy Jack has very little common sense. He was born in the Green Forest and has always lived in the Green Forest. That is where he belongs. You mark my words, no good will come of making his home outside the Green Forest."

Sammy Jay chuckled. "The trouble with you, Chatterer, is that you are envious. Right this minute you are wishing that you had thought of that hollow branch in the big maple tree for your own home."

Chatterer flew into a rage right away. He declared that it was no such thing, and said a lot of unpleasant things, too, to Sammy Jay. But Sammy only chuckled the more. He knew by Chatterer's bad temper that he had touched very close to the Divorce Defendant Starts a $20,000 Fire Before Committing Suicide.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 22.—"I'll get even," declared Philip Kovar of Belle Plaine when divorce papers were served on him last week. Mrs. Kovar charged that her husband pulled her out of bed by the hair and kicked her out of the house at 5 in the morning because she refused to work in the fields. She asked $10,000 alimony.

Early Sunday Kovar set fire to 10 farm buildings into which he had driven all his stock. He went to the house, fired it, and, going into the basement, rigged up a double barreled shotgun and killed himself. The fire

Lincoln man gets big 42-inch fish. Fremont, Neb., July 22.—L. C. Gunderson, secretary of the board of regents of the University of Nebraska, suffered the shock of his life last Saturday when he hauled in a fish from the waters of the Elkhorn river measuring 42 1/2 inches in length.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunderson were camping south of West Point and the usual haul was made on a set line. The specimen had a snout that measured 12 1/2 inches. Its peculiar shape and "shovel mouth" completely puzzled Mr. Gunderson, and for a time was somewhat in doubt whether the catch was fish or beast.

Research disclosed the specimen to a member of the "paddler" family, found usually in the waters of the Mississippi. For some reason or other, probably due to the high waters, the fish left native haunts and journeyed northwest via the Missouri and Elkhorn.

York—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rayls celebrated their first wedding anniversary Sunday.

There ought to be another name for such a vinegar as Heinz.

It is so different from what generally poses as vinegar. Vinegars vary just as teas, coffees, and spices vary. The difference between Heinz Vinegars and the ordinary kinds is so great they seem to belong to different classes. And the average family uses so little, that the difference in cost is negligible.

You will never again use vinegars that are "just sour" once you learn that vinegar can be as rich, mellow and delicious as Heinz Vinegars.
