

Governor McRae of Arkansas signing the child labor bill ratifying the amendment to the Federal Constitution. Arkansas has the distinction of being the first state to enact legislation to ratify this amendment.

—Wide World Photo

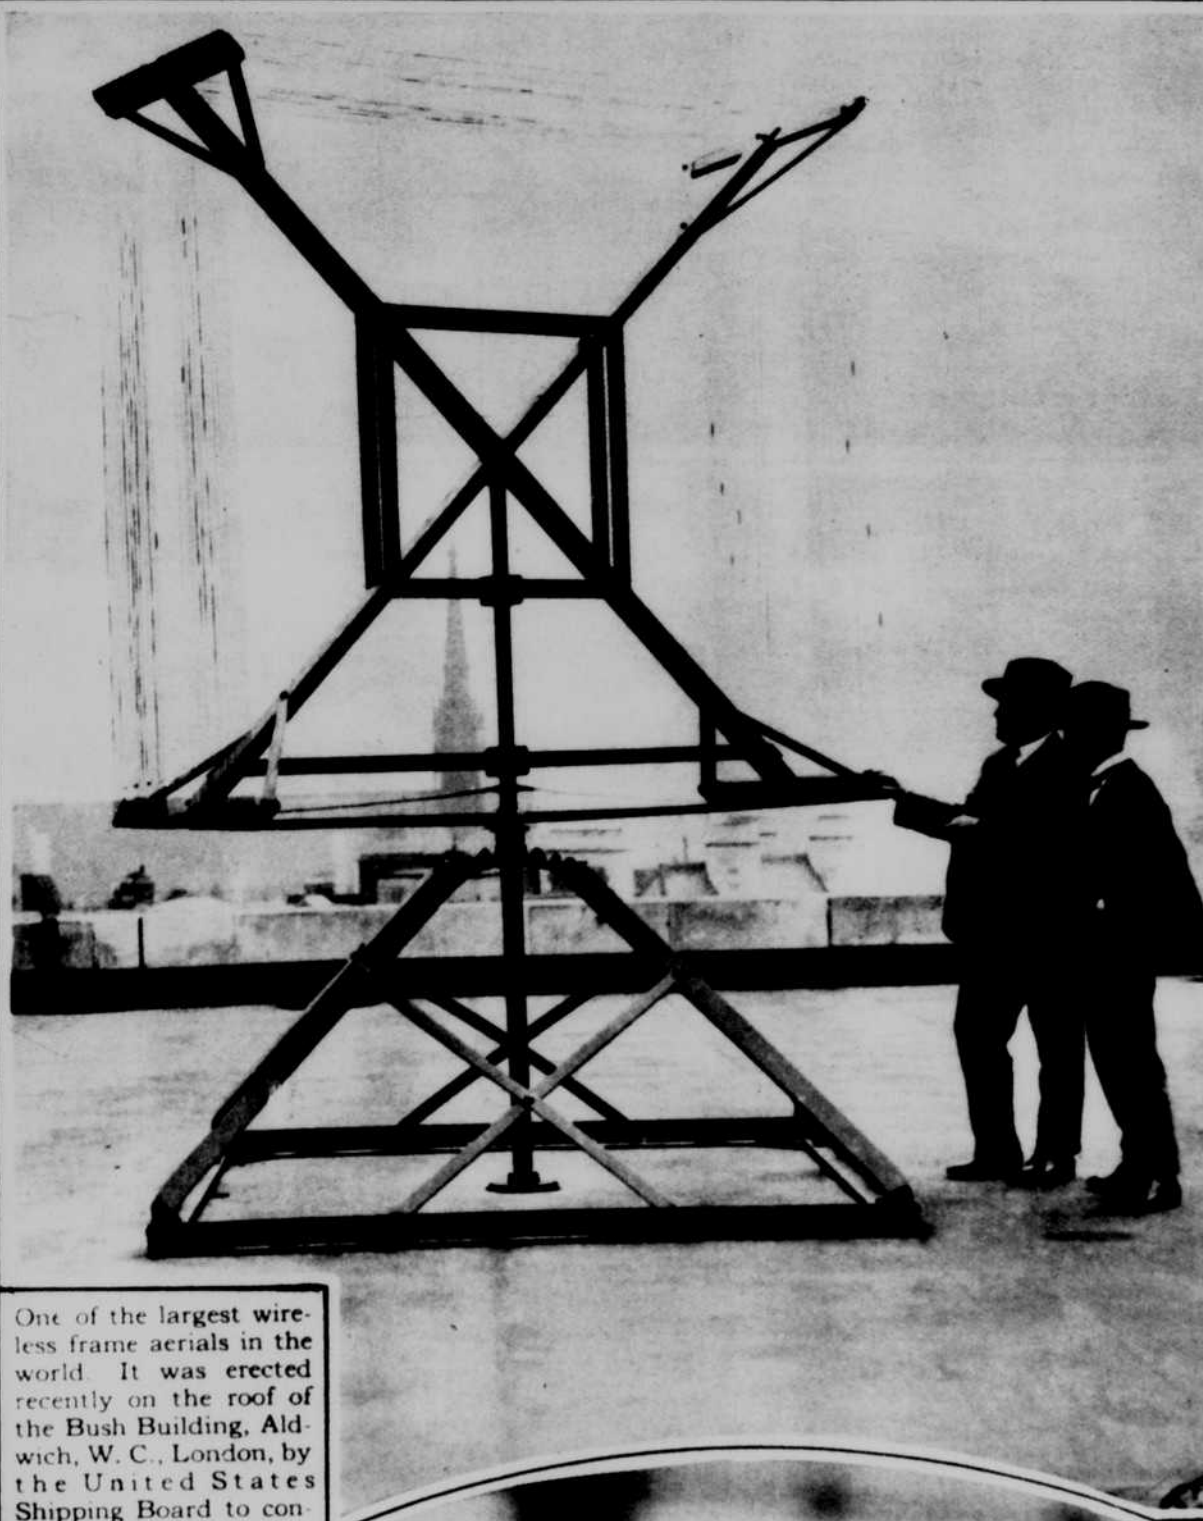

Above The graves of Harmon B. and James O. Vedder, sons of the president of the Gold Star Mothers Association in Bony Cemetery where the major engagement of the 27th Division was fought on September 29th, 1918.

—Wide World Photo

H. E. Terry of New York, a special employee of the U. S. Capitol Building in Washington wearing a summer suit for which he paid $4, thirty years ago. Mr. Terry would probably have to pay $25 or $30 for the same suit.

—Wide World Photo

One of the largest wireless frame aerals in the world. It was erected recently on the roof of the Bush Building, Aldwich, W. C., London, by the United States Shipping Board to conduct business between the British metropolis and America. The aerial is 8 feet by 8 feet and is wound with forty-eight turns of aerial wire. Messages can be received from places 8,000 miles away.

—Wide World Photo

Yakima Canutt, world's champion cowboy with the Roosevelt Trophy, which he won last year. He will take part in the Pendleton, Ore., round-up.

—Wide World Photo

Dr. C. W. Garrison of Little Rock, Ark., State health officer for Arkansas, one of the two health officers appointed to represent the U. S. at the League of Nations Health Convention at the Hague.

—Wide World Photo

John G. Price of Ohio, newly elected Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks

—Wide World Photo

Mrs. E. M. Walcott as a butterfly, representing British Guinea in the British Empire Costume Ball recently held in London in conjunction with the British Empire Exposition

—Wide World Photo