

Van Fleet Farm Wheat Yield 54 Bushels to Acre

Threshing Progresses Rapidly in Pawnee County—Grain Hauled Directly to the Elevators.

Table Rock, Neb., Aug. 1.—Rev. Peter Van Fleet, farmer-preacher of Lincoln, who owns several hundred acres of land east of Table Rock, and his wife have been camping on the farm for a few days looking after the wheat crop of 74 acres, yielding 4,000 bushels, an average of 54 bushels. One-half of this goes to the owner and the other half to his tenant, Rudolph Kallala.

Other record crops in this vicinity are: Mrs. F. C. Norris, John Covault, tenant, 46 bushels an acre, on seven and one-half acres; Dann Andrew farm, Ernest Keiser, tenant, 48 bushels an acre on 18 acres.

Wheat from Pawnee county farms is already beginning to appear on the central markets. Threshing has been progressing rapidly during the past week and a considerable amount of the grain has been hauled directly from the machines to the elevators.

Ord, Neb., Aug. 1.—The first wheat to be threshed in this vicinity averaged over 40 bushels to the acre. It was on a farm near Ord belonging to C. J. Mortensen, cashier of the Nebraska State bank, and son of Peter Mortensen, former state treasurer.

Ponca, Neb., Aug. 1.—Threshing of early oats and wheat has been in progress here several days. Wheat is yielding well, one field going 41 bushels to the acre. Early oats is not so heavy, 25 bushels being the average yield. Predictions are made that the late oats will be much better.

York, Neb., Aug. 1.—A field of oats on the Dan Keefe farm west of York threshed out 61 bushels to the acre.

Beatrice, Neb., Aug. 1.—Henry Dankroger, farmer and stock raiser of the DeWitt neighborhood, says he received a yield of 31 bushels of wheat to the acre from his field of 60 acres.

C. J. Hiatt, who owns a farm near Reynolds, Neb., reports that he obtained a yield of 27 bushels of wheat to the acre from a 57-acre field. The grain is of fine quality.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
For foolishness you'll have to pay
Tomorrow if you don't today.
—Old Mother Nature.

The Little Happy Jack Pays for His Foolishness.

The foolish little Happy Jack, who had managed to jump from his own home tree over to a branch of another tree, was in high spirits. He had had a bad fright when he so nearly fell, but this he soon forgot. Here was a tree he had never been in, a tree to explore all by himself. He felt as if he really were out in the Great World.

He explored every branch of that tree. He had one disappointment: there was no hollow in that tree. Because the only tree he knew was his own home tree, and that had a snuzhollow in the trunk, he had supposed that all trees had snug hollows in the trunks. But this tree hadn't even a knothole in it. This was disappointing. You see that foolish Happy Jack had thought it would be great fun to pretend to have a home of his own.

By and by he grew tired. His grew tired and sleepy. He thought of going back home, but somehow he wasn't quite ready to yet. So he Again he dodged around the trunk.

Such claws as he had! The foolish young Happy Jack hadn't dreamed there could be such great claws anywhere in the Great World. But he didn't have time to think about them. Already that great bird was coming back, and those great claws were reaching for him. Again he dodged around the trunk, the most frightened little Happy Jack in all the Great World.

Jump. He knew it. He didn't dare even try it.

"Oh, dear!" whimpered the foolish little Happy Jack. "Oh, dear! What shall I do now? However shall I get back there?"

He looked around him anxiously. Some of the earliest of the Black Shadows were beginning to creep into the Green Forest. They gave him the chills of fear. He looked down at the ground. What a long way down it was! A fall from that height might kill him. No, he couldn't jump back to his own home tree.

Then his common sense awoke. "Why all I've got to do is to run down the trunk of this tree, scamper across the ground to the trunk of my own home tree and climb up," thought he. With this thought he turned to scamper back along that branch. Just as he reached the trunk he heard a sharp, swishing sound.

Without really knowing what he was doing he dodged around the trunk, clinging fast to it. He was just in time. A great bird, the biggest bird he had ever seen, swept over where he had been only a second before. That swishing sound had been made by the great, broad wings of this bird.

Such claws as he had! The foolish young Happy Jack hadn't dreamed there could be such great claws anywhere in the Great World. But he didn't have time to think about them. Already that great bird was coming back, and those great claws were reaching for him. Again he dodged around the trunk, the most frightened little Happy Jack in all the Great World.
