"HUMAN GORILLA" KILLED IN PRISON

By International News Service. Canon City, Col., Aug. 21.—Antonio Neroni, known as the "human gorilla," serving a life sentence in the Colorado state prison, was found dead in his cell this morning, the result of a terrific heatstroke administered by a fellow prisoner. Neroni, a man of stupendous build, is said by the authorities to have attacked a fellow convict, Robinson by name, after the latter had warded off Neroni from a crowd of visitors in the insane ward.

Robinson is said to have disarmed Neroni of a knife and in the battle that followed, administered a severe beating. Early this morning a guard, sent to the cell occupied by Neroni to ascertain his condition and see to his wants, found the man dead. Neroni was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1907 after having been convicted of the murder of four persons, a woman and three men on his truck farm a short distance from the state prison.

Fillmore County Boasts Banner Wheat Crop; Corn to Smash Records

By WILL MAUPIN. Geneva, Neb., Aug. 20.—Calamity faces the farmers of Fillmore county. They will have to stop threshing wheat unless they can find time to stack the straw. And if there are 20 or 25 more days of corn growing weather, they will wear their knuckles down to their wrists gathering the corn crop.

Want stalks abroad. The Farmers and Merchants bank in Milligan, a village of 200 persons, only had $351,720.95 on deposit at 11 this morning. Other banks in the county are in the same straits. I have toured a good portion of Fillmore county in company with Lee Thompson, county extension agent, and Val Kuska, agricultural commissioner of the Burlington. A considerable part of the territory covered was settled by Bohemians. It would be difficult to find a more self-contained section. These farm families could lose their can openers and never miss them.

Welcome rains that benefited the corn has delayed threshing, but yesterday and today, both shimmering hot, found threshing under way at excess speed. This has been Fillmore county's banner wheat year. The average yield is around 35 bushels an acre. There are no signs of discontent or political revolt in this section. Citizens of Bohemian birth, or descent are not easily stamped by apostle preaching against "whatever is."

Lunch and Talks. A visit was made to the small family orchard of Joe Kuska, three and a half miles west of Milligan. Kuska's orchard is bending beneath the weight of an immense crop of apples. A sample of what sanitation will do when applied to the hog lot was shown at the farm home of M. D. McCartney. And at noon there was a picnic dinner in the Schmidt grove, six miles northeast of Geneva. Then came a few snappy talks by demonstration agents, and the tour was resumed. Soy beans on the farm of E. B. Yates were examined. The tourists next visited the home orchard of Frank Vavra.

Mr. and Mrs. Acker enjoy a modern farm home. Theirs is a model poultry farm. Canning Demonstration. One of the most interesting features of the day was a canning demonstration, given by two young women at the home of Joe Kuska. A half-hour was spent at the Girls' Industrial school at Geneva, and the matron, Miss Ward, proudly showed the visitors around. The girls were all working canning sweet corn for home consumption. They are canning 1,200 cans a day now. The huge celler of the home is crammed with canned rhubarb, canned cherries, canned spinach and other food stuffs. The tomato pack will begin in a short time. The girls at the school are proud of the fact that they produce a surplus of vegetables on their farm. They also cultivate the corn, put up the hay and milk the cows.

County Agent Thompson says he is receiving wonderful co-operation from the farmers of the county. As the farmers became more familiar with the demonstration bureau work the more kindly they took to it, he says. Perhaps this spirit of co-operation has had something to do with the present prosperity of Fillmore county.

FLIERS SPAN SEA IN 825-MILE HOP

(Continued From Page One.) being weatherbound in Iceland for three weeks, Lieut. Lowell Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson, United States army "round-the-world" aviators, hopped off for Greenland at 7:15 to day. The Italian distance aviator, Lieut. Locatelli, who arrived here several days ago, accompanied the Americans. He had been granted official permission to do so.

Although Locatelli's plane is smaller than the American machines, it has a greater cruising radius. The fliers had hoped to get away at 3 in the morning, but were detained. Their decision to make a supreme effort to hop off this morning was due to the shortage of fuel and provisions on the cruiser and destroyer fleet that is guarding the waterway routes of the arctic.

800-Mile Flight. Smith said the airmen would fly to Frederiksdal, slightly northwest of Cape Farewell on the southern ex-trinity of Greenland. The distance is more than 800 miles. The United States cruiser Richmond, which came to port with spare parts for the two American machines, left last night and reported by wireless this morning that it was about 70 miles out of the route to Cape Farewell.

Quick repairs were made upon the planes of Smith and Nelson after the parts had been landed from the Richmond. The American cruiser Milwaukee is in Greenland waters and there are two destroyers patrolling in between to give quick aid if any of the aviators has an accident. The fliers hoped to reach the vicinity of Cape Farewell between 4 and 5 this afternoon. They took an extra supply of petrol, estimating that it would be sufficient to carry them more than 900 miles to a pinch.
