Strikingly Beautiful Afternoon Gown of Black Lightened by Silver Fur and Widely Woven Girdle of Silver Threads --- Gayly Insouciant as Youth Itself the Abbreviated Little Evening Frock of Velvet

SS McGUIRE of the McGuire Dress Shoppe, mezzanine floor, Paxton Block, 16th and Harney streets, is home from New York and such exquisitries as she has personally selected for Madam Mode's launch ing of the Fall Style Season. For afternoon wear is the black crepe satin model lightened by silver fur and widely woven girdle of silver. And a youthful insouciance is suggested in every line of a vivid little velvet frock shoulder-outlined in silver, a great fluff of ostrich on one hip, the draping effected by a mass of shirring on the other. Jade chiffon is a dancing frock studded in brilliants low on its high neckline at the back, solidly banded Sown front and back, and girdled in the same glittering stones. Chic! Delightful creations for afternoon and evening.

French Court of 'Louis the Magnificent' Inspiration for Exquisitry of New Silver Design, 'Louis XIV'

HE C. B. Brown Jewel Shop, 220 South 16th Street, offers a new sterling silver design, "Louis XIV" which owes the beauty of its design to the French Court which stood for such lavishness of decoration-beauty and luxury-the court of "Louis the Magnificent." Conventionalized flowers decorate the handle ends of quaint shaping, the same tiny flowerettes seen again on the gracefully curving stems of the service pieces near the rounding outlines of the bowls. Hollowware pieces in the same design, tea and coffee pots, sugar and cream sets cut on the same lines and carrying the same gracious decorative motif assure a service of sterling impressively peautiful, of unquestionably fine quality, a service to endure a lifetime. The Louis XIV design is much like the D'Orleans design in decorative detail but it is much less in price. Worthy of note, Madam Shopper,

A House is nothing in itself-A red-bricked hearth and a pantry shelf. A dining room and a room to sleep, A floor for a woman's hands to sweep; But whether or not the place is fair Depends on the people dwelling there. A house isn't finished but just begun When the builders leave and their work is done But brick and mortar and wood it stands Awaiting the touch of a woman's hands And the sound of a footfall on the stair And the prattle of children to make it fair.

A house needs laughter and mirth and song And the gifts of time as it speeds along And a welcome warm to its kindly friends When the day is done and the night descends With something richer that's born of these-The joy and grief of its memories. With never a face at its window pane A cheerless place must a house remain, For neither builder nor architect In the walls and roofs which their hands erect Can leave one memory sacred there Like the sound of a footfall o nthe stair. IT DEPENDS ON THE PEOPLE LIVING THERE-By Edgar Gues

From One Fashion Extreme to Another --- Chapeaux to Shoes Featured in Style Show This Week at Strand Theater---A Setting of the Fall and Winter Fashion Pace

HOMPSON-BELDENS are staging a style show this week in connection with glorious Gloria Swanson's "Her Own Love Story" at the Strand theater. From one style extreme to the other madam et madamoiselle will revel in the new models shown. Hat models from Hermine, Maison Maurice and Jane Parker are outstanding in loveliness of outline, gracious beauty of decoration, originality of color notes. An idea originating with the new season is the creation which uses the wondrous flowers from an antique tapestry, this cut out and applied by stitchery of silver and gold. Parisian as the Latin quarter is the softly draping "tam" cleverly beaded in "silver dust" beads, a model whose brim frames the piquant face of its wearer. Oh lovely! And as to the other extreme-shoes-what could be smarter than the nine new models you'll see at the Style Show. There's the chic colonia buckle effect, one in a soft finished patent with straps up from the ankle held by beaded buckle, the other a dull finished black with silver buckle Shoes high of heel, medium and low, buttoning by one, two, three or four buttons, shoes a bit higher than those of yesteryear, cut out and strapped in Fashion's most approved manner. A new oxford effect has cut out top to show light hose and has no frames on the tiny eyelets that hold the laces From one fashion extreme to the other, charming!
