England's Plan.
How Does Canada Do It?
All Were Once Killers.
Japan Won't Attack Us.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Great Britain, with a labor prime minister proposes to show that lack of employment can be avoided. Instead of paying men to do nothing with "unemployment pay," public work will be created and men will be put at it.

We should call that socialism here.

Secretary Davis tells the president that payrolls here are improving. Nine thousand establishments in the United States increased by 2.7 per cent, the amount paid to 2,500,000 men and women. Secretary Davis says this is "a business revival," the first he ever saw in a political campaign.

We are doing fairly well in America. May it last.

La Follette's son says Canada has reduced freight rates on agricultural products to prices prevailing before the war. And she pays her railroad men as well as we pay them in this country.

That railways owned by the Canadian people have changed a deficit of 37 millions in 1921 under private management to a surplus of more than 20 millions in 1923, under government management?

How do you explain that?

Here the government can't manage anything apparently. It can't even manage to keep its own high employes from stealing its own naval oil reserves.

Luckily, the United States can afford to be robbed in divers ways. The treasury did a business of more than a billion dollars in one day recently. It would be interesting to know the real income of the United States. More than 100 billion a year probably.

The head of the Chicago university sees in young Loeb and Leopold a strange puzzle. There is no great puzzle about it. Men living today, buried with them, memory of days when killing was a pleasure and torture a matter of course.

If Cyrus, a really great king, could write, calmly, or another defeated king, "I cut off his nose and his lips and chained him at my gate," what wonder that horrible brutality crops out here and there a few centuries later?

Those worried about Japan attacking the United States—because we decline to have this country colonized by Asiatics—should remember these facts:

In one week three steamers have unloaded $20,000,000 worth of silk, including raw silk, at the port of Seattle. The Japanese, good business people, won't attack a country of which one single port can absorb $20,000,000 worth of their product in a week.

In Japan a man will be tried soon for an attack on the life of the prince regent. In all the history of Japan there have been only two attempts to murder the nation's ruler. The other occurred 18 years ago, when a bomb was thrown at the Mikado Meiji. Then 70 radicals were sentenced to death.

The man soon to be tried will be executed undoubtedly. A few years ago his crime would have been punished with a refined ingenuity beyond the wildest dreams of Gilbert and Sullivan.

There are now regular quotations for counterfeit notes. The average price is $25 for $100 worth of bogus bills. The market is stabilized by the demand for such money, used by bootleggers in buying liquor from the rum fleet, sent by our British brothers.

The managers of the boats are good bootleggers, but not familiar with American money, and many, it seems, have been taking bad money for worse whisky—which seems fair enough.

Governor Pinchot has signed the death warrant of a young colored woman who killed a policeman and pleaded self-defense. She will be the first woman executed in the state of Pennsylvania in 35 years. Governor Pinchot signed the death warrant when he was in a hospital. When he comes out, entirely recovered, it may occur to him that putting a negro to death instead of locking her up is small business for a great state.

The question is not "does she deserve death?" It is "does Pennsylvania deserve disgrace?"

Republican newspapers indicate Coolidge and his management ignore John W. Davis, and are concerned only with the race that La Follette is making.

It is difficult for the average mind to understand that Davis probably will get the states to which he is "entitled" according to tradition in the south. There is a big vote that can't be taken from him. It seems to be quite certain that Mr. Davis will not run third in the number of votes cast, at all events.

A small boy, arrested for smashing a straw hat on a pedestrian's head, pleaded not guilty. "It's September 15, and I only did my duty," he told the judge. They let him go.

That's enlightening as regards the education of some American childhood.

Fairbury, Neb., Sept. 17.—Fairbury school opened with 140 nonresident pupils bringing in an annual tuition of more than $15,000. The number exceeds that of last year by 30. Most of these are rural graduates of last year in Jefferson county schools.

Slash in Tariff, Taxes, Pledge of Davis to Voters

Says Coolidge Claimed Credit for Democratic Relief; No Reason for Economic Barrier, He Declares.

Des Moines, Sept. 17.—Further tax reduction and a downward revision of existing tariff duties in a manner to avoid jeopardizing the stability and sense of security that are essential to the transaction of business were promised here tonight by John W. Davis in an address in this stronghold of republicanism.

In making these promises, Mr. Davis vigorously assailed the existing tariff law and attacked President Coolidge for what he described as "coolly" claiming credit for the tax relief given by "the democratic tax bill" passed by the last congress, a bill which he asserted the administration opposed at every step of the way through congress.

Contrasting what he said were the guiding principles of the two parties in the handling of matters of tariff and taxation, the democratic presidential nominee declared "the democratic theory is a maximum of revenue with a minimum of tax; the republican doctrine is a minimum of revenue with a maximum of subsidy."

Besides promising tax and tariff reform, Mr. Davis declared for economy in government, national and state, and in this connection he said he wanted to take exception to the republican administration on the subject of tax and public debt reduction. He presented figures to show that the democratic administration had reduced taxes more than two billions of dollars after the war and that it had cut the public debt at a rate of $140,000,000 a month against the $67,500,000 under the present administration.

Makes Four Speeches.

Mr. Davis' address tonight at the coliseum was the fourth delivered here since his arrival early in the day from Missouri. He spoke first at an organization meeting of democratic leaders, then at a gathering of democratic women, and finally, at a dinner by the junior chamber of commerce. He left late tonight for Chicago, where he is to speak tomorrow night.

After outlining his conception of the difference in the taxation doctrines of the democratic and republican parties, Mr. Davis launched into a scathing denunciation of the Ford-McCumber tariff law. He declared that because of shifting economic conditions then existing "it was not a time for the preparation of a tariff measure based upon any principle except that of greed."

Reviewing these economic conditions, Mr. Davis declared that "never in all the history of America was there less reason to erect a Chinese wall around its borders and cut off productive commerce with the outside world." Pointing out that the republican press had condemned the measure "as even more out of line with the times than the Payne-Aldrich bill was in 1909," the speaker said that tested by any standard, a bill of this sort does not protect, but merely exploits.

Pledges Rate Slash.

"Every consumer in America can, from his own daily experience, bear witness to this fact," said he. Asserting that the measure had restricted the market abroad for American agriculture and American industries which must export if they are to prosper, the democratic nominee said the bill was "economic madness and political destruction."

"Mr. Coolidge and his party pledge themselves to maintain the existing law," he went on.

"As against this legislative monstrosity and in substitution for it, the democratic party proposes to reform the tariff by revising downward the existing duties to a truly competitive basis and by eliminating all favoritism and the evils that flow from it. We do not propose any ruthless and vindictive slashing of rates to gratify political animosities or class antagonism."

Jury Exonerates I. C. Train Crew

Holds Engineer Blameless in Death of Fern Ward; Companion Testifies.

A coroner's jury Wednesday found that the Illinois Central railroad was blameless in the death of Fern Ward, 15, 1722 Avenue D, Council Bluffs, who was fatally injured a week ago when she was struck by a switch engine.

The verdict exonerating the railroad and its employes of any blame for the girl's death was reached after the jury had visited Thelma Reed, companion of Fern Ward, at her home. The Reed girl was slightly injured by the same engine, and is slowly recovering from the shock of the tragedy.

The Reed girl told the jury Wednesday that she and Fern Ward had been walking between the Illinois Central's double tracks on Eighteenth street, and that they stepped onto the switch when they heard the engine's bell and whistle, believing it to be a train on the main track.

The Reed girl escaped serious injury because she was a step in advance of the Ward girl, and was able to save her life by leaping from the track.

Members of the train crew testified at the inquest Wednesday morning that they did not see the girls on the track until the engine was within 20 feet of them.

Callaway—Lewis Anderson, residing a few miles west of Callaway, was fined on the charge of selling liquor at a dance.

Miss Turney Wed to Maynard Buchanan

Before an altar banked with ferns, roses and pink and white asters, Miss Alice Mary Turney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Turney, was wed last evening to Maynard Buchanan.

The bride, who during her school days, was one of the University of Nebraska's 10 most beautiful girls, was her loveliest, in a slender tube gown of white georgette embroidered in crystals, with a wide band of maribou at the hem line. The gown, cut with a V neck, was sleeveless.

Her veil was held with a bandeau of orange blossoms and arranged with a frill at the back to leave her brunette locks uncovered. It covered a Spanish lace train. This train, one of the most unusual worn here, was secured by the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. C. Cooley of Tampa, Fla., in a quaint old shop in Madrid, Spain. Just how old the lace veil is, neither Mrs. Cooley nor Miss Turney knows. Mrs. Cooley, who has spent much time on the continent, picked up at the same time a lovely Brussels lace handkerchief in Belgium, which Miss Turney carried.

Miss Frances Castetter, maid of honor, wore a tube gown of peach colored satin with godets of tulle, ostrich trimmed, one forming a train. She carried a staff, rhinestone tipped, to which a round bouquet was held with gold ribbons. These ribbons were tied to Miss Castetter's wrist with another tiny bouquet.

Mrs. Turney wore cream georgette with silk lace.

An unusual feature of the marriage service was the final prayer

Iowa Couple Go to Africa to Serve as Missionaries

Shenandoah, Ia., Sept. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Durkee of Tabor are leaving for three years' mission work in Africa. They will go by the way of Liverpool, making direct connections there with a ship which will take them to the African port where they will disembark for the overland trip to their station, Jebba. This station is near the Niger river and not far from the equator.

The climate is very hot and the white people there can not endure exposure to the sun between 8 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon without sun helmets to protect them. Wild animals are numerous there, including lions, tigers and leopards but they do not bother people unless disturbed. The population is entirely native.

Mr. and Mrs. Durkee will be busy for a while learning the native language.

NERVOUS, RUN-DOWN MOTHERS

Worn Out Caring for Children and Housework—See how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"I was in a very nervous and run-down condition while nursing my baby, and hearing some talk of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began taking it. From the second bottle I noticed a big improvement, and I am still taking it. I am not a bit nervous now, and feel like a different person. It is a great medicine for any one in a nervous, run-down condition and I would be glad to give any one advice about taking it. I think there is no better medicine and give you permission to publish this letter."—Mrs. ANNA SMITH, 541 W. Norwood St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

The important thing about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is that it does help women suffering from the ailments common to their sex.

If you are nervous and run-down and have pains in your lower parts and in your back, remember that the Vegetable Compound has relieved other women having the same symptoms. For sale by druggists everywhere.
