

Decatur Arrives Here; to Travel North in 10 Days

Comes From St. Louis Without Difficulty, Despite Low Water in Missouri.

The river boat Decatur, built at St. Louis by the Western Barge Line company, steamed up to Omaha, the destination of its maiden voyage, Friday afternoon, having completed the trip from St. Louis in 13 days. The Decatur will haul barges between Omaha and Sioux City.

Craig to Move Here.

The three Mrs. Craigs, W. M. Craig, Jr., 8 months, and Doreen, infant daughter of the Thomas P. Craigs, also made the trip from St. Louis. The three brothers will locate their families in Omaha, they said.

Other members of the Decatur's crew include J. C. Palmer, who built the barge at Omaha; George Bruce and J. P. Jipp.

"I believe that it is possible to connect Omaha and Sioux City with New Orleans by barge line," declared Thomas P. Craig. "If my company prospers, I may do it."

Old river men at St. Louis told the Craigs they would never reach Omaha.

"We navigated it all right," said Thomas Craig. "And were only around 25 minutes on the whole trip."

Craig reported the river was the lowest he had ever seen it in his 10 years of piloting up and down it. Craig came to Omaha with the McPherson in 1915, 1916 and 1917, and with the Silver in 1917.

The Decatur draws 26 inches and the barges it will haul will draw eight inches. The river boat has a 45-ton hull. The boat was named for the Nebraska town.

"Decatur was the first town to boost my barge line," declared Thomas Craig. "The people there invested $5,000 in the company, so I named the steamboat Decatur."

A permanent dock will be built below Pierce street. A warehouse is now being sought by the barge line concern.

McMullen Speaks at Fair at Wahoo

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Wahoo, Neb., Sept. 19.—Adam McMullen, republican candidate for governor, spoke on "Citizenship" here today at the county fair. Excepting for reference to democratic deflation and its injurious effect upon the farming, he did not refer to politics. He urged upon the women in particular to study men and issues and to use their influence in persuading their fathers, husbands and brothers to do the same.

Council Bluffs Firm Gets Farragut Sewer Contract

Shenandoah, Ia., Sept. 18.—A bid here today at the estimate of the engineers was received on the sewer project at Farragut, the contract being let to Jack Doane of Council Bluffs, whose bid was $17,496.50. The engineers' estimate was $18,000. There were 10 bidders. The highest bid was $20,850.55. Work will start October 1.

Fruit Is Making Its Last Stand

Advent of Fall Weather Causes Housewives to Speed Up Canning.

By MARKET BASKET.

Business in the Omaha markets is getting better since people are beginning to eat heat inducing food. But especially are the fruit departments in the various stores doing a rushing business. Related housewives are now coming forward in pursuit of canning supplies, realizing that waiting much longer will mean that home canned goods will not fill their shelves this winter.

Italian prunes are still to be had, although an increase in their price has been noted. They will complete their season within a week or 10 days, and those who have not yet bought prunes should do so during the coming week. Colorado pears are the reigning pears on the market today. They can now be bought cheaply, but the last opportunity for canning them will be next week. The first supply of fancy primrose pears have made their appearance.

For jellies, the housewife can purchase wild plums for as low as 65 cents a basket. Crabapples at 50 cents a basket can also be used for jelly purposes. Blue concord grapes are still abundant and cheap. Tokay, malaga and conocheon grapes from California are plentiful and cheap. Quinces have shown their appearance.

and many housewives are buying them for making into jelly. Melons, such as honeydews, casahuate and Persian are swamping the markets and are cheaper this year than for years. The first supply of the season's cranberries is greeting the market shopper.

With the exception of a few items, vegetables are coming in in good condition. Peppers, red and green celery, cauliflower, head and leaf lettuce, radishes and beets are cheap. Sweet corn and tomatoes are not so good, and those coming in show an increase in price.

Cucumbers are also scarce and high, 10 cents each being about the lowest at which they are procurable. Green tomatoes are now on the market and the housewife can begin to pickle them for the winter.

Eggs still remain high and will probably remain so throughout the winter. They range in price from 23 1/2 cents to 45 cents a dozen. Creamery butter is about the same. Beef cuts are being substituted for pork, since the latter is high. The oyster season has arrived, and as usual at the beginning of the season, they are high. Large fat oysters are being shown.
