Chapter XXVIII-Continued. "You are no longer that," she said, and strove to smile. 'Yet I owe no thanks to you that I am not," he answered. "I think pirate's ways, I think! Release me! there's no more to be said, unless it Julian Wade has also nothing to ap- I release ye? Must I let ye go and prehend from me. That, no doubt, never set eyes on ye again? Or will will be the assurance that your peace ye stay and make this exile endurable of mind requires?"

"For your own sake yes. But for our own sake only. I would not ave you do anything mean or distributed with the work of the wo your own sake only. I would not have you do anything mean or dis-

"I am going, Captain Blood. Since you are so generous to my uncle, I shall be returning to Barbados with him. We are not like to meet again—ever. Is it impossible that we should part friends? Once I wronged you, I know. And I have said that I am sorry. Won't you . . . won't you say 'goodby?'"

A corporal's guard was drawn up to receive him, and in advance of this stood Major Mallard and two others who were unknown to the deputy governor; one slight and elegant, the other big and brawny.

Major Mallard advanced. "Colonel Bishop. I have orders to arrest you."

He took the hand she proffered.
Retaining it, he spoke, his eyes somberly, wistfully considering her.
"You are returning to Barbados?"
he said slowly. "Will Lord Julian be going with you?"

"Why do you ask me that?" she confronted him quite fearlessly.

"Sure, now, didn't he give you my message, or did he bungle it?"

"No. He didn't bungle it. He gave the me in your own words. It touched."

"You were," said the little man the governor."

"You were," said the little man

"Oh! You are insufferable!" She tore her hand free and backed away from him. "I should not have come.

New York -- Day by Day--

By O. O. McINTYRE.

New York. Oct. 8 .- In other days in New York the head waiter was a king along Broadway. In reality a giorified serf, people clamored for his dignified salaam. There was some thing of magic about his abracadabra Diners shrank from his frown. All sought his smile.

Now nearly all of the Jules, Alfreds and Charlies are out of jobs. Many had quit posts in hotels to stand at the entrance ropes of the gilded resorts. They knew the mellowing influence of illicit beverage sold in these places in increasing the size of the Then padlocks came to the White Way and they stood just as they made many customers stand-outside looking in. More than 20 of the most famous head waiters are gone. A few have returned to Paris and London. Others are trying to adjust themselves to sudden change.

Outside of the big hotels New York is eating in intimate little hideaways where the need is only for two or three waiters. The proprietor greets customers, for he wants to be sure they are "all right" before taking a chance on liquid cheer.

While the head waiter has suffered the ordinary waiter has prospered. He is permitted to wait on more peo ple than he was in old days and consequently he collects more tips. The Head waiters in those days worked for nothing. Some even paid for the privilege of holding the job. Then came the midnight supper clubs which made the pickings good. But it is all over now. Head waiting is going the way of the horse drawn landau.

The most aptly named district in New York is "Hell's Kitchen. It is, especially at night, a place to hurry through. The pedestrians are furtive and hurried. The curbs are lined with overflowing garbage pails topped by mangey, meowing cats. All the lights are dim and in the pool halls and sawdust coated cafes are wicked, leering faces. The movie theaters specialize in blood and thunder. There is a dreary monotony to the brick houses. Young ruffians stand in groups at street corner. Men and women talk in monosyllables.

There is one mean, ugly and crooked street in Hell's Kitchen that is filled with cheap rooming houses. The lodgers seem to be those battered mercilessly by life and then cast aside. People sit in musty hallways or be hind faded blinds. The children do not laugh. They stand about apparently wondering what will hap pen next. The men are coatless and the women sit about in bare feet. It is a street to forget.

And by way of contrast the brightest and liveliest block in Gotham to my notion is on the west side of Fifth avenue between Forty-second and Forty-third streets at noon, And at night you cannot beat the rumble and glitter of Times Square.

Yet with all the dazzle of the world metropolises-New York, Paris and London, there is one impressive scene that time will not erase. It stands out vividly with cameo like clearness. It was about 20 years ago on a side wheel steamer pulling into the levee at Cincinnati. The city had shed up for the night. Nothing before or since has been so breath

(Copyright, 1924.) 27

the door

He sprang after her, and caught THE NEBBS her. Her face flamed, and her eyes stabbed him like daggers. "These are

"Arabella!" he cried on a note of e to add the assurance that Lord pleading. "Are ye meaning it? Must until we can go home together? Och, ye're crying now! What have I said body but you, Peter."

They had, of course, a deal to say

"Thief and pirate though I be?"

She clenched her hand, and made little gesture of despair and impatience.

"Will you never forgive me those duties of his office. He had reached little gesture of the duties of his office. The had reached little gesture the duties of his office. will you never lorgive me those words?"

"I'm finding it a trifle hard, I confess. But what does it matter, when all is said?"

Her clear hazel eyes considered him a moment wistfully. Then she put out her hand again.
"I am going, Captain Blood. Since

"By order of the governor of Jamaica," said the elegant little man behind Major Mallard. Bishop swung

"Sure, now, didn't he give you my message, or did he bungle it?"

"No. He didn't bungle it. He gave it me in your own words. It touched me very deeply. It made me see clearly my error and my injustice. I owe it to you that I should say this by way of amend. I judged too harshly where it was a presumption to judge at all.

He was still holding her hand. "And Lord Julian, then?" he asked, his eyes watching her, bright as sapphires in the copper-colored face. "Lord Julian will no doubt be going home to England. There is nothing more for him to do out here."

"But didn't he ask you to go with mg more for him to do out here."

"But didn't he ask you to go with im?"
"He did. I forgive you the imperinence."
A wild hope leaped to life within him.

"And you? Glory be, ye'll not be The remains of Bishop's anger fell from him like a cloak. He broke into a sweat of fear. Behind him looked on his handsome Lord Julian looked on, his handsom face suddenly white and drawn. "But, my lord—" began the colonel.

"Sir, I am not concerned to hear your reasons," his lordship interrupted harshly. "I am on the point of sailing and I have not the time. governor will hear you and no doubt deal justly by you." He waved to Major Mallard, and Bishop, a crum-pled, broken man, allowed himself to be led away. To Lord Julian, who went with

Abe Martin

Remember when we used t' sneer sequently he collects more tips. The job isn't so exacting and he doesn't have to remain so much the servant. It used to be the best head waiting job in New York was at the old Knickerbocker hotel. The bloods of the town dined there. Sports often after a "killing" gave the head waiter a $100 bill just to be recognized and fawned over.

Remember when we used t' sneer when the other party had a political meetin', an' say, "Ther wuz only two or three hundred listened t' th' speech, an' they wuz mostly wo men'? These judges who are bein' lenient with criminals 'cause ther still boys should remember that th' boy o' t'day is about 20 years older than th' boy o' yisterday.

(Copyright, 1924.)

him, since none deterred him, Bishop expressed himself when presently he had sufficiently recovered.

"This is one more item to the account of that scoundrel Blood," he said through his teeth. "My God, what a reckoning there will be when when the meet!"

Major Mallard turned away his face Blood when Major Mallard entered.

His announcement startled them back the garden and Major Mallard fetched the colonel.

"You will be merciful with him. You will spare him all you can for my sake, Peter," she pleaded. Then this head was raised, and a pair of blue eyes solemnly regarded the prisoner. Colonel Bishop made a noise in his throat, and, stared into the door.

"To be sure I will," said Blood, "but I'm afraid the circumstances won't."

Major Mallard turned away his face Blood when Major Mallard entered.

The situation was best expressed to the colonel.

"You will be merciful with him. You will spare him all you can for my sake, Peter," she pleaded. Then this head was raised, and a pair of blue eyes solemnly regarded the prisoner. Colonel Bishop made a noise in his throat, and, stared into the door.

Colonel Bishop staggered in and stored the governor of Jamaica, which was the won't."

At the table sat a man of whom face of the man he had been hunt able blossomfs. So? Ha, ha:"

The situation was best expressed to the colonel.

"You will be merciful with him. The colonel.

"To be sure I will," said Blood, "but I'm afraid the circumstances won't."

At the table sat a man of whom face of the man he had been hunt able blossomfs. So? Ha, ha:"

The situation was best expressed to the colonel.

The colonel.

The colonel.

The situation was best expressed to the colonel.

"His excellency, the governor, will blue eyes solemnly regarded the prisoner. Colonel Bishop staggered in and stored in his throat, and, stared into the colonel.

The colonel.

The colonel.

Sole flashing.

The situation was best expressed to the colonel.

The co

Directed for The Omaha Bee by Sol Hess

AND WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT?

Bishop stared, empurling. "What the devil? Arrest me, d'ye say. Ar Barney Google and Spark Plug THEY'LL GO PREPARED FOR EMERGENCIES.

Drawn for The Omaha Bee by Billy DeBeck

WELLTIN THAT CASE WE CAN GRAS ONE OF THE SMALLER BOATS -SPARKY AND RUDY DEM SMALL WOULDN'T KNOW , THE BOATS AIN'T SAFE. DIFFERENCE -MISTAH GOOGLE - WE MIGHT CWASH INTO INTO ONE O' DEM BIG ICICLES - NO LIFE BOATS - NO NUFFIN T. AN I SPAHKY AN WUDY AN ME. WE CAN'T SWIM A STWOKE Copyright, 1924, by King Features Syndicate, In

IN THAT CASE WEVE GOT TO PREPARE FOR AN EMERGENCY -COME ON WE GO TO CENTRAL PARK AT ONCE

BRINGING UP FATHER

SEE JIGGS AND MAGGIE IN FULL PAGE OF COLORS IN THE SUNDAY BEE

Drawn for The Omaha Bee by McManus

I WONDER IF DUGAN WOULD CALL THE BET OFF FER $100 I'D HATE TO LOSE $1000 BESIDES I HAVEN'T GOT $1924 BY INT'L FEATURE SERVICE. INC Great Britain rights reserved

JERRY ON THE JOB

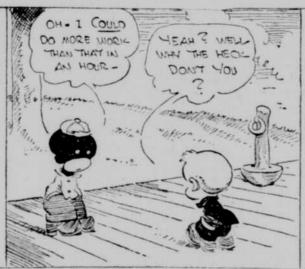

SHY LITTLE GUY

Drawn for The Omaha Bee by Hoban

By Briggs ABIE THE AGENT

SHOW ?

Drawn for The Omaha Bee by Hershfield

THIS IS WHAT

I LOVE IN THE

MOVIES - IT'S

POSITIVELY A

EDUCATIONAL

LEARNING!

