

INCOLN, Oct. 16 .- Nebraska's last real practice session Thursday evening before the arrival of the Colgate Maroons was given over entirely to perfecting a de ward pass. The freshmen were shooting the passes and the varsity was trying to break them up.

There were two changes in the first string, Roy Mandery playing Robert son's end and Paul Kamm was at quarterback in place of Bloodgood.

The varsity had plenty of trouble knocking down the passes of "Jug" Brown but even more trouble when Poach Kline flipped a few. Douglas Myers was relieved by Ristine at full back and he began shooting the passes for the freshmen.

Ray Elliott, assistant coach at Minnesota last season was lending a hand. He played quarterback for Nebraska in the late 90s.
