A 20-Point Rise.
For Pinkston $2,561.35.
Only a Name.
Works Without Faith.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

One big "operator" in Wall street sent around yesterday for an "opinion on the election." He and others, associated in profitable speculation, believe that certainty of a Coolidge victory would immediately start the beginning of a "20-point rise in the market."

If, as printed in Cyrus H. K. Curtis newspapers, that Hiram Johnson really believes a Coolidge victory in California certain, then "big operators" might as well begin buying. Republican managers, figuring carefully, believe Coolidge now has 255 votes safe in the electoral college, without California. Those that know New York politics on the democratic inside say New York is certain for Coolidge, and Davis will run third.

Willis Pinkston, young American sailor, high up on the steel mast of the United States ship Richmond, using his keen eyesight faithfully, saw a little flare at sea and saved the life of the brave Italian flyer Locatelli. Readers who contributed to a fund for Pinkston will be glad to know that the money deposited, $2,561.35, is now deposited to Pinkston's credit in the Bowers Savings bank in New York at his request.

On the grave of Anatole France nothing is written except "Anatole France, 1844-1924." Fortunately and few are men whose names alone are sufficient epitaph. The Persian conqueror could order written on his tomb "I am Cyrus, Oh man," with fewer than 10 words about his worth, trusting history to supply details.

Archimedes needed no name at all. On his tomb when Cicero found it in Sicily there was only the figure of a sphere inscribed in a cylinder.

Mathematicians would know the meaning of that. Archimedes cared little about others. But a majority of the so-called "great" need full explanation. A few years, then "Anatole France, 1844-1924," will mean nothing. One French name, "Villon," on the other hand, will identify genius for a thousand years to come.

The Protestant Episcopalians of New York are making an earnest drive to get $15,000,000 for a great cathedral. Dr. Wickersham, much interested, says "the same methods must be employed as in the Middle Ages." But it was the faith, not the methods that built the world's great cathedrals. It was the faith of old painters that created beautiful Madonnas. Faith without works amounts to little. Work without faith, in the religious field, amounts to even less.

An inspiring sight was that great

German air boat, shining like polished silver in the sun's light, sailing over New York City early yesterday morning. That flight across the ocean in three days is a tribute to man's genius. A race capable of such achievement will learn eventually to end war.

Such European trips by airships will be regular routine, attracting as little attention as an automobile bus line.

Airships have come to stay and will do all passenger carrying except for the shorter distances. What a crime against civilization, and the genius of man, if the German plant that created that great flying machine should be destroyed by the French, insisting on the letter of the Versailles treaty. There should be some solution of "war danger" better than the destruction of a great industry.

The German bonds sold instantly. Everything went through in theatrical fashion. Morgan & Co. announce that they could have sold a billion of the bonds. Doubtless they will sell a billion, several billions perhaps.

Germany intends to pay, and will, if other nations give her a chance. But one hostile movement toward the Ruhr by France, and the interest on the bonds would stop. The value would drop to 50, then lower. Germany meant to pay bonds that she sold here in war time. They are worth less than the excellent paper on which they are printed. To be safe invest in America.

A race horse called "Chilhowee" has broken the world's galloping record, covering a mile and one-eighth in one minute, 48 4-5 seconds. That would have been important once, now it's a mere incident in a gambling sport. Paul Revere today would ride in a small automobile, blowing his horn as he went with the "cut-out" wide open. Or he would fly close to the ground in his little monoplane, or would stay at home and wake the countryside through the "loud speaker" in every house. The running speed of a horse is as unimportant today as the flying speed of a falcon that, also was important once.

Jackie Coogan celebrated his birthday in Vienna yesterday. Notables, solemnly dressed, attended his reception. It must interest the Viennese to reflect that the small American boy whose mother complains of lack of "good American breakfast food," could do a great deal by his own earnings, to help Austria in her financial trouble.

John Brown, 83, Civil War Veteran, Dies at Fairbury
Fairbury, Oct. 16.—John Brown, 83, a veteran of the civil war, died Tuesday evening at his home in this city after an illness of three years. The Brown family moved to Fairbury in 1850 from Kansas. He is survived by his widow; one daughter, Mrs. E. Cook of Fairbury, and six sons, W. T. S. of Holly, Colo., and George, Eugene, James, Clyde and Cliff, all of Fairbury.
