

Davis Wants Release From Cabinet Post

Secretary of Labor Informs Coolidge He Desires to Lay Down Portfolio on March 4.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Secretary Davis of the Labor department has informed President Coolidge he wishes to retire from the cabinet after March 4, next.

Mr. Davis is the only cabinet member who has indicated he desires to retire, it was said officially today at the White House.

Meanwhile, it was said, the president has given no consideration to other possible changes in his cabinet, and has expressed the hope that Mr. Davis will remain.

The vacancy caused by the death of Secretary Wallace of the agricultural department is to be filled shortly. The law requires the term of an acting secretary can run for only 30 days.

Mr. Coolidge may appoint Acting Secretary Gore to the cabinet post to serve until March 4, however, when he becomes governor of West Virginia.

White House officials appear to take no stock in newspaper reports that the president might display a changed attitude now that the election is over and he has been chosen president in his own right.

Some of these reports have indicated that he might desire to ask for the resignations of some of the holdover cabinet members in order to make personal selections.

Nevertheless it is known that at least one or two of those who now hold cabinet positions desire for one reason or another to return to private life, and it remains to be determined whether Mr. Coolidge can prevail on them to stay in the government service.

Peace With Honor, Is Goal of Legion, Says James Drain

National Commander, in Omaha, Outlines Work and Ideals of Ex-Service Organization.

(Continued From Page One.) never forget them or lack in the full measure of honor we pay them. But all honor also is due the women and men at home who sometimes bore a greater burden, because for the men in the armies overseas, or the men in the armies at all, there was always the splendid spur of the great adventure looming near.

For the women who suffered at home for the men who were gone; for the men too old or too hampered by responsibility to take their places in the fighting forces, there was a load—a great load—in many ways a load heavier and harder than that of the fighting man, but they bore it well.

It was a magnificent demonstration of national spirit; the spirit of America; the spirit which has made this nation great and which in the providence of God will keep it great for generations and centuries to come.

Peace Harder Than War.

When you turn back the pages of American history you see there a divinity which has shaped this nation's end. Time after time it has been preserved for further usefulness when the odds seemed overwhelmingly against it. The world war was another evidence of the right of the United States of America to be one of the great nations of the earth.

I want you to think back with the comfortable assurance of trust well placed to the conduct of our men overseas. Many of them were untrained, or little trained, in the arts of war, yet they all bore themselves bravely, and often heroically, in the face of a powerful enemy. We can take just pride in them, in our statesmen and rulers at home, in our home people. We have full cause for pride as Americans.

And then November 11, 1918, and the armistice. Six years ago today when joy and gladness filled the hearts of men, that the great war was over. Yes, that war was over, but another even greater began when that ended—a war harder to win than the other because it must be fought without blare of trumpet or boom of gun, because it must be fought and won against indifference and misunderstanding—the war to make available in peace

Child Welfare Work Vital.

Second only to our interest in the disabled comrades is that which we have for the children of America, and especially toward those who are the orphans of veterans. Of them we say the least we can do is to guarantee a home to every homeless orphan of a veteran. This must be a real home; not a place in an orphan asylum; not placement in a family as a hired charge, but through adoption into an American family, there to become as nearly as we may be like unto the blood members of that family.

Legion Stands for Peace.

The American Legion does well when it occupies itself as one of the principle activities with the welfare of American children, in that it not only proposes to take care of its own, but it proposes and it actually does endorse, reinforce and back up the activities of every legitimate organization—and there are many worthy ones—interested in child welfare.

The Americanization program of the American Legion is under full headway, in the making of better citizens, with all that this involves; the entrance into every wholesome civic activity of each community.

This is part of the business of every post of the American Legion, and I am very glad to say that over 5,000 out of 11,000 posts are now coming to be or actually are, the strongest single influence for civic good in their communities.

The American Legion is for peace; peace with honor; and it recognizes that peace can only be guaranteed if the people love their country and are willing to make sacrifices for it, and also if before war comes there is a reasonable preparedness as to material and personnel. A sound military policy for the country will make it always possible to preserve the life of this nation against any foe which would attack it, and to permit the exercise of its will for good upon less well-meaning nations.

What a wonderful field of service is open to the American Legion, so long as it holds firmly to its present line of progress; so long as it stands fast without partisanship in politics or bigotry in religion, to a genuine love of God and country it is invincible. No power can for long or in much disturb or interrupt its forward march. And it will stand fast, you may depend upon that.

Has Confidence in Legion.

For every legionnaire there are things within his very close grasp to do each day. First of all to live as a self-respecting, law-abiding citizen, thinking continually of his duty to God and country. Second, to hold office in the legion when and where it is his duty to do so to attend post meetings; to see that others do the same, and to bring into the legion every worthy man who is not now a member of it. And I say these things because no matter how noble and high the purpose which rules a man, unless he takes thought to giving practical effect to these purposes through his every-day, every-hour, every-minute actions, he is not a live man but a dead one and might just as well be laid away.

I believe and I know that the men and women of the American Legion appreciate and value the priceless heritage of freedom and opportunity under the law which is theirs, and I believe and I know that in and out of the American Legion they are going to do their full share to make this country of ours, this America which we love, a better and better country for men to live in and a stronger and stronger influence for good in the whole world of men.

Pinto Pleaded.

Health Commissioner A. S. Pinto was pleased when he scanned the record of infectious and contagious disease record Tuesday morning.

"We have had an unusual year thus far from the standpoint of health," the doctor said. "No more smallpox cases and for that we are thankful when we consider what several other cities have experienced this year and several are now encountering."

Hines May Quit Veteran Bureau

Col. Theodore Roosevelt Possible Successor to Present Director.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Frank T. Hines is ready to give up his post as director of the veterans' bureau, it was learned authoritatively here today.

The appointment of Col. Theodore Roosevelt of New York as the bureau head in the event of Hines' resignation is being urged.

General Hines is understood to be anxious to quit the veterans' bureau for two reasons. He has objected to frequent interference by members of congress with the conduct of the bureau, and has felt that this interference and other political moves tended to hamper him in his work. He also has received attractive business offers.

Both these considerations are regarded as making it likely that General Hines will be "among the missing" before March 4, 1925. He so far has refrained from indicating his intention to retire, as he did not wish to interfere with the political campaign, it is believed.

Yacht Party Safe.

New York, Nov. 11.—Joy Finn, who was reported missing with a party of New York men aboard the yacht Admiral, off the east coast of Florida, telegraphed relatives here last night that the party had returned safely to Miami. It was learned today.

for the first cool days Warm Knit Underwear

It's sensible to wear warmer underthings during the cold weather. Smartly gowned women choose knit underthings with care, giving particular thought to individual needs.

With warmly heated homes and apartments, the woman who is out of doors but little, needs only a light weight cotton suit; the school girl and the out-of-doors girl require heavier weights and ankle length suits. Children who are protected by woollens do not suffer the colds of those whose mothers are less careful.
