One More Wild Day.
Lady Astor Wrong, Once.
Some Rockefeller Houses.
Owning a Necessity.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Are you "in the stock market" these days? If so, you had another exciting time yesterday. Wall street sold and bought about 2,500,000 shares and, "Oh, joy, oh, rapture!" You could borrow at 2 per cent "call money" with which to do your speculating.

Are you "out of the stock market?" You are missing excitement just now. But later, you may miss a most terrific financial headache. There are worse things than being out of the stock market for the man who likes peace of mind.

Lady Astor, charming American-born woman—sitting in Britain's parliament, says the United States will enter the league of nations and "soon." She is mistaken. The United States will not enter the league of nations at all.

The same charming young woman says she prefers "foreign wars to class conflict." A sound choice, for the wife of a man worth many millions. Class conflict interferes sometimes with fortunes and comfort at home—look at Russia. Foreign wars only burn up the little people.

Ancient kings, even wiser than Lady Astor, started foreign wars to keep down unrest and "class conflict" within their own borders.

"Members of the Rockefeller family plan large model tenements for workmen in New York City, the rents to be low."

That is useful work, but not in the regular philanthropic line of John D. Rockefeller. Mr. Rockefeller believes in working, not to cure temporary evils, but to eliminate the possibility of evil in the future. John D., jr., for instance, says that his father is interested not so much in curing one man or a thousand men of yellow fever or malaria, but rather in ridding the earth and freeing all men of malaria and yellow fever for all time to come.

Some financial Colossus of the future, whose income would enable him to buy all the Rockefellers once every year, will perhaps undertake to wipe out poverty, for all time, as the Rockefellers of today seek to wipe out the worst diseases.

Just as surely as diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid fever have been conquered by vaccination, just so surely will human intelligence and justice abolish poverty and all the evils—hatred, anxiety, superstition, drunkenness and brutality, born of poverty.

Are you amazed at the suggestion that the future will develop men richer than Rockefeller? Don't be. Industrial feudalism, with its dollar armies, is only starting. The Alexanders, Caesars and Napoleons of money are still to come.

Ownership of a public necessity in this nation is worth while, if you are a good manager. Mr. Trax, head accountant of a big telephone company, says his concern has built up a reserve of about $100,000,000. That's just in case of emergencies.

It would be interesting to know how much real property Judge Gary, the carefully careful financial housekeeper of the big steel company, has stored up for that corporation.

Not even Judge Gary himself could guess the future value of the vast coal lands, ore lands and other properties accumulated for stockholders.

Real estate pays if you buy the right kind at the right time. The edge of the North river on Manhattan Island was worth nothing once, just a muddy bank over which Indians dragged their canoes. Years ago one of the Dutch Rhine-landers got hold of a little piece when it was still cheap and held it. His heirs sold it yesterday to the Eastern Steamship company for $1,000,000. There are in this country many muddy banks to be bought for next to nothing that will one day be worth millions.

The problem is to pick them out.

Mr. Mary Walker cared little about fashion, but the latest news from Paris would interest her. "The new dress" is to be more like trousers than dress, a sort of slit skirt. Politics, athletics and common sense will finally do away with the cumbersome skirt. That impediment was all right in the harem, where it was born. It's all wrong on the public street, collecting germs, preventing free movement.

Ernest Sturm, beginning as office boy, is president of three insurance companies. That is not surprising. If his father had started him as president of one insurance company, he might be somebody's office boy now. It is no calamity to be compelled to work for what you get. And, for the majority, an early start in life is as good as an early start in a race.

Helen Murphy, a Former Queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, Dies

Lung Infection Fatal to One-Time Social Leader Who Doffed Royal Robes to Don White Veil.

Miss Helen Murphy, former queen of Ak-Sar-Ben, died Thursday morning at 5 at the home of her mother, Mrs. M. R. Murphy, 1025 South Thirty-sixth street.

Miss Murphy died suddenly after suffering from a slight cold taken a week ago. She had been in ill health since June, 1923, suffering from a lung infection resulting from an attack of influenza.

Miss Murphy was one of the most prominent members of the younger set in Omaha. She was crowned queen of Ak-Sar-Ben in the fall of 1919 when Randall Brown was crowned king.

Soon after Miss Murphy was made queen of Ak-Sar-Ben she cast aside her royal robes and social life in Omaha and entered the Sacred Heart convent at Kenosha, Albany, N. Y., a cloistered sisterhood. No members of this order are permitted to leave the grounds of the convent.

Later Miss Murphy was transferred to a convent of the same order at Lakewood, Ill. Final vows in the sisterhood were not taken by Miss Murphy on account of her return to her home in poor health.

She had taken the white veil and sought a return to her home would help her regain her health to return to the convent. When her health permitted, Miss Murphy planned to be professed at the convent and to don the black veil of the sisterhood that would make it impossible for her ever to leave the convent during the remainder of her life.

At the time of the death of her father, Michael R. Murphy, general manager of Cudahy packing company South Omaha plant, Miss Murphy was unable to leave the cloister and return to Omaha for the funeral services in the spring of 1923.

Upon her return to Omaha several weeks after her father's death, Miss Murphy was confined to her bed for several weeks.

An outdoor sleeping porch was built at the home to benefit her health. She improved gradually and was able to take short walks and go to her physician's office. Miss Murphy was out of doors only last week.

Miss Murphy is survived by her mother, three brothers, George of Omaha, John and Edward of Kansas City, and three sisters, Nan Murphy, Mrs. N. C. Leary and Mrs. George Leary of Omaha.

Funeral services which will be private will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at St. Peter church, Father J. F. McCarthy officiating. It is requested that no flowers be sent. Burial will be at Holy Sepulcher cemetery.

Henry—Yorrick Nichols, 60, and a well known cattleman of this section for 40 years, is dead at his home near here.

$6,000 WILLED TO MIDLAND COLLEGE

Fremont, Nov. 13.—The late Mrs. Louise Hedde of Grand Island, by her will left $5,000 to Midland college, Samuel L. Brower of Lewis town, Pa., allotted $1,000 of his estate to Midland, according to an announcement made by President J. F. Krueger.

Dr. Krueger stated that both legacies will be added to the funds already gathered in the greatest Midland campaign, now at the $350,000 mark. With money gathered thus far, the college was enabled to start the erection of a new girls' dormitory that will cost about $75,000. There is also talk of starting construction in the near future of a new library building.

Aged Thedford Man Found Dead on Railroad Track

Callaway, Nov. 13.—Jesse Smith of Callaway has received a message telling him of the sudden death of his father, John A. Smith of Thedford. The aged man was found dead on the railroad track a few minutes after he left his home. There were no marks on his body to indicate that he might have been struck by a train and it is supposed that his death was caused by heart failure.
