

Sister of Unwed Mother Tells of Death of Child

Blanche Galvin Breaks Down as Witnesses Relate Finding of Babe; Bright Lights Blamed.

The case has been moving rapidly since its beginning yesterday morning. A jury was obtained with little trouble and the witnesses have been disposed of promptly.

Both attorneys for the defense and attorneys for the prosecution feel certain that the case will be in the hands of the jury this afternoon.

Eight Defense Witnesses. The defense had no opportunity to call its witnesses to the stand until late yesterday afternoon.

Throughout the afternoon the prosecution called its witnesses. Police officers, who had been called in on the case, the man who had found the child, the doctors who had cared for the mother and the hospital, one followed the other to the witness stand.

A suggestion of what line the defense would take was made by Attorney John P. Tinley, appearing on behalf of Blanche Galvin, during his opening address to the jury.

In a quiet voice, intended to reach and impress the jury and the jury only, his words chosen with the utmost care, the attorney told of the past life of his client. He told how she had never seen a big city, how the nearest thing to a great metropolis to ever come into her life was Council Bluffs. There she had moved to Atlantic, Ia., from her farm home.

Atlantic furnished the thrill she needed and for years she lived there. It was, the attorney declared, the happiness, the entertainment to be found in such a place that had been the cause of his client's trouble.

The courtroom was packed with spectators long before the trial was well under way. Every available seat was taken and a few fortunate late comers were standing about before half of the jury had been selected.

Throughout the hearing Miss Galvin sobbed quietly. Occasionally some bit of testimony seemed to affect her more and her sobs increased only to quiet down as a new witness was called to the stand.

The ruling of the judge that Mrs. Anderson could not remain in the courtroom was, apparently, one of the hardest blows of the day. The defendant nearly collapsed at that.

The morning was spent in questioning venemans, and 34 were questioned before the jury was finally completed at 11:45.

Death Penalty Not Sought. In questioning the venemans County Attorney Frank E. Northrop did not ask whether they were opposed to inflicting the death penalty. This was taken as indicating that the state will not ask the extreme penalty.

While the questioning of the venemans was in progress Miss Galvin wept silently from time to time as some mention was made of the manner in which she is alleged to have caused the death of her child, by exposing it on the sidewalk outside her apartment where the child was less than an hour old. She did not watch the jurors who are to decide her fate as they were selected.

Her father, who sat behind her at the counsel table, betrayed no emotion as the venemans were questioned, but examined each prospective juror keenly.

The jury which was finally selected is made up entirely of married men, and every man on the jury has from one to eight children.

Jurors Chosen. The names of the jurors, with the number of their children, follow: E. G. Mark, lumber company employee, 3 children; C. F. Neal, horse-shoer, 3; D. White, carpenter, 8; P. J. Anderson, lumber company manager, 2; John A. Steffen, welder, 2; E. I. Copeland, utilities manager, Citizens' Gas and Electric company, 3; F. A. Barth, railroad conductor, 3; A. K. Sliuter, department store manager, 1; J. M. Allen, farmer, 6; W. G. Reynolds, retired, 2; Arthur Jensen, salesman, 1.

Two women were on the venire, but both were challenged. They were Mrs. Mathilda Hoch, Lake Manawa, and Miss Esther Hardy, 10 Oak street.

From time to time, as the witnesses described the baby as "a beautiful little child" or a "fat little lad," she broke down again and again and her shoulders shook with her sobs.

Neighbor Is Called. The first witness called by the state was F. C. Smutzer, who lived in the apartment below that of Mrs. Clarence Anderson, Miss Galvin's sister, where the child was born.

Smutzer told how his small daughter had called attention to the cries of the child. He went to the rear door of his apartment and the thought that the small body of the child was a cat. He went into the house, he said, obtained a club, and went out to kill "the cat." He then found that the body was that of a baby.

While he was picking up the child, he said, the door of the apartment above opened, and Mrs. Anderson looked out. She closed the door

Honest-Looking Egg Peddler Sells Wares 'Strictly Fresh,' From Storage

AS a rubicund and bucolic looking gentleman called at your door lately to sell you fresh country eggs, laid by his own hens? If he has, and if you bought some, you know. And many other good housewives know that all eggs are not fresh that are brought to your door in an old-fashioned basket by an "honest looking" alleged farmer.

"Would you like some fresh eggs today, right from the farm?" he asks his victims. "I sell them much cheaper than the city stores."

Then, being around 60 cents a dozen these days, the thrifty housekeepers are interested. The man from the country draws back a snowy cloth and displays the pretty white eggs in his basket.

"Are they fresh?" "I gathered them from the nests myself this morning at 4 with a lantern," smiled the good man. "How much are they?" "I'm getting 48 cents a dozen. I don't think that is too much, is it?"

Poor, simple child of nature! With the stores getting 60 cents for fresh eggs that just couldn't be half as fresh as these!

Of course, they bought. And the "farmer" hurried away to another neighborhood.

But when the eggs were opened the chicks began to die. Wouldn't that be a sorry dish to set before your husband?

They were cold storage eggs, which can be obtained for much less than 48 cents. One woman reported that only two eggs out of a dozen were fit for use.

quikely. Smutzer took the child into the house and called police.

Niemo on Stand. Mrs. Smutzer testified next, briefly corroborating her husband's account. Edith Peterson, stenographer, and Mrs. J. E. Norworthy, living in another apartment in the same house, testified regarding the baby's condition after it was brought into the house by Smutzer.

W. H. Brown, police officer, who answered Smutzer's call, told of going to the Anderson apartment at Smutzer's suggestion, and of finding Miss Galvin lying on a couch.

He said he asked Miss Galvin and Mrs. Anderson if they knew whose child it was. Brown testified that Mrs. Anderson answered:

"Why, yes, it's my sisters," pointing to Miss Galvin. Brown said Miss Galvin, apparently only semiconscious, replied:

"Tell him that I don't want to go to the hospital."

Burgess Bedtime Stories By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Who takes a foolish risk for gain May pay for it in fright or pain. —Happy Jack Squirrel.

Happy Jack Squirrel Is Nearly Caught. There is such a thing as being too thrifty. Yes, sir, there is. Those who take foolish risks because of thrift are too thrifty. It was because he was too thrifty that Happy Jack Squirrel was very nearly caught and then got into trouble.

Happy Jack hadn't stopped long to Peter Rabbit, who was sitting in the bramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest. Happy Jack wouldn't waste time talking. He is too thrifty for that. So he soon started running about, looking for more nuts buried under the snow. How he knew where they were Peter couldn't understand. But it was clear that he did know. He would suddenly stop, begin to dig in the snow, and presently up he would come with a nut. He was so intent on hunting for those nuts that he grew careless. He got farther and farther away from the trees.

Now, when by Happy Jack, Reddy Fox had come stealing through the Green Forest. The instant he saw Happy Jack, Reddy crouched down and didn't move. He kept his eyes fixed on Happy Jack. Every time Happy Jack's back was turned to him he would steal forward swiftly. He saw that Happy Jack was so busy hunting for nuts that he had forgotten to watch out. He saw that Happy Jack was getting farther and farther away from the trees. Reddy grinned and licked his lips. Hunter and prey showed in his eyes. If only Happy Jack would get far enough away from a tree Reddy knew that he would catch him. You see Reddy can run much faster than Happy Jack.

At last Happy Jack started to dig in the snow at some distance from the nearest tree, and that tree was a small one. Reddy waited until he could see only Happy Jack's tail above the snow. Then swiftly he crept forward, his eyes fixed in that big, gray tail. It was then that Peter Rabbit saw him for the first time. He knew Peter was in the bramble-tangle looking out. Peter saw Happy Jack's danger. His heart seemed to jump right up in his throat. "Oh!" cried Peter under his breath. "Happy Jack will be caught!" Then Peter thumped with his hind feet. It was his danger signal.

Instantly Happy Jack popped out of that hole in the snow. Of course he saw Reddy Fox, and of course he started for the nearest tree as fast as his legs could take him. Of course Reddy Fox started after him as fast as his legs could take him. To Peter Rabbit it seemed as if Happy Jack never had moved so slowly. "Run, Happy Jack, run! Oh, run!" cried Peter.

Happy Jack was running. He was doing his very best. But Reddy Fox was running so much faster that it seemed as if Happy Jack were hardly moving. Would he be able to reach that little tree before Reddy Fox could catch him? It didn't look so. No, sir, it didn't look so. Peter was sure he couldn't.

But he did. Reddy Fox was within one jump of him when Happy Jack reached that little tree and whisked up it. Never in his life had he had a narrower escape. His heart was thumping against his side as if it would thump its way out. He looked down at Reddy Fox. Reddy gazed up at him. Then Happy Jack began to scold. He called Reddy Fox all the bad names he could think of, and listening to him Peter Rabbit chuckled. Happy Jack certainly had a sharp tongue.

JACKSON WILL STAY IN CHICAGO Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jackson, 3506 Ellison avenue, who were reunited in Chicago Tuesday after Mrs. Jackson had made a hurried trip to Chicago and found her husband in company with Miss Marguerite Davis, his former nurse, have failed to return to Omaha as yet and according to James Jackson, brother, they do not intend to return here.

Jackson, a commercial artist, left his home for Chicago shortly after Miss Davis, who nursed him during an illness, had left, and a few days later, Mrs. Jackson departed, according to neighbors. "I am satisfied he does not intend to return to Omaha, but will make his home in Chicago," said the brother.

PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED IN YARD Florence, S. C., Feb. 4.—The Atlantic Coast line's crack passenger train from Florida to New York was wrecked in the railroad yards here today. James Fagan, fireman, was killed. The engine, tender, mail and express cars were partly overturned.

North Platte Valley Plans Big Advertising Campaign Bridgeport, Feb. 4.—Associated Chambers of Commerce of the North Platte valley will convene here Thursday. The association now includes 15 towns and cities in the valley and single Wyo. was admitted to membership at the last meeting at Scotts-bluff, where more than 100 delegates from 14 towns outlined a comprehensive campaign for advertising the valley.

The publicity committee, of which H. J. Wehn of Bridgeport is chairman, has proposed a plan involving the expenditure of $25,000 and the employment of a paid advertising man, to secure more settlers for this part of the country. In addition to advertising in magazines of national circulation, setting forth the advantages of living in this section, an illustrated booklet will be printed and distributed throughout the east.

Ingruous Toenail Causes Fatal Blood Poisoning Columbus, Feb. 4.—Patrick Buckley, 79, retired Union Pacific employe, died in a local hospital yesterday from blood poisoning resulting from an ingrowing toenail. Buckley entered the employ of the Union Pacific in its store department in Omaha in the late '70s, serving there until 22 years ago, when he came to Columbus. He continued in the company's employ here until he was retired on a pension nine years ago. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Dolan of Omaha and Mrs. Nellie Dolan of Columbus, and one son, J. A. Buckley of North Platte.

U. S. Store Clerk Liability, Claim

Hardware Men Told Counter Salesmen Work One Hour in Five.

John W. Gamble, president of the Standard Chemical Manufacturing company and other concerns, declared in an address before the Nebraska Retail Hardware association, Wednesday, that American store clerks are poor and inefficient.

"I am not scolding or blaming, but merely stating facts," he said, and was repeatedly applauded throughout an address crammed with sales facts. "I want to give you truth instead of platitudes. England has the best clerks, in my opinion."

"Carnegie institute investigations show that out of every 100 persons who enter American stores, 55 go out without buying and that clerks actually work only one hour out of five of their working hours."

"Advertising has performed its function when it brings a person into the store. Then it is up to the salesman."

Causes of Failures. Lack of proper financing, failure to couple up with national advertising campaigns and neglect of window displays were mentioned as three strong hindrances to success in retailing.

"I was in New York City while the prince of Wales was there," said Gamble. "I made a study of the Broadway window displays. The one that attracted the greatest crowd day and night was the largest live turtle I have ever seen. The owner of the restaurant told me it increased his patronage just about 50 per cent. The second window was that of a clothing store with a life-like figure of the prince. The proprietor of that store estimated it increased sales of the store by 25 per cent."

Emotions Sell Goods. "Ninety per cent of merchandise is sold by appeal—not to the judgment, but to emotion. Four years ago the Palmolive Soap company was 'broke.' It conceived the idea of the emotional appeal to everybody to 'keep that school girl complexion' and today its stock is way up."

"Think of the vast quantity of goods sold by appeal to the emotion of fear—fear that your car will skid, fear that you will get pyorrhea or fear of that disease concerning which even your best friends won't tell you if you have it." The correspondence school ads bring immense results by appealing to the ambition."

Pep for Clerks. Mrs. Bess Gearhart Morrison of Lincoln, speaking on "From a Woman's Viewpoint," also declared to the hardware men: "Your clerks are your biggest loss. Teach them. Put pep and ambition into them."

"And never argue with a woman in trying to sell her anything. You will lose the argument, the sale and a friend. Agree with her and sell to her through her emotions."

The women at the convention were taken on a tour through Technical High school in the afternoon by wives and daughters of local hardware men. Tonight all will be guests of the Omaha Hardware club at the Orpheum.

Rapid Growth Necessitates New School at Falls City Falls City, Neb., Feb. 4.—Falls City will vote on a proposed new senior high school at the spring election in April. It was decided at a meeting of the school board. The amount of the school bonds to be voted for will be approximately $300,000.

The action of the school board followed publication of a survey made by the chamber of commerce, showing that Falls City schools are overcrowded. The present high school accommodates about 300, but will be inadequate soon in the face of the rapid growth of this city, it was pointed out.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

MOTHER SHOTS DIVORCED MATE Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.

Peru, Neb., Feb. 4.—Mrs. Sylvia Waters, milliner, shot and probably fatally wounded her divorced husband, John Setzer, on the streets here last night. She claims that she shot him in self-defense.

Mrs. Waters has twice had Setzer placed under peace bonds, declaring that he had been annoying her. According to witnesses, he stopped her on the street last night and they became involved in an argument. She apparently became alarmed and drew a gun, shooting him in the abdomen.

Setzer was taken to the hospital at Auburn, where physicians say that his condition is extremely critical. Mrs. Waters is held in the county jail pending the outcome of Setzer's injuries.

Mrs. Waters is the mother of four small children.

Grand Island Ministers Discuss Dr. Fosdick's Views Grand Island, Neb., Feb. 4.—While the discussion at no time grew speculative or acrid, a decided division of opinion existed at the recent meeting of the Grand Island Ministerial union, at which the first three chapters of Dr. Fosdick's recent book were discussed in a paper by Dr. Wells, president of the Baptist college, and later by Rev. Messrs. Hunter of the Methodist, Ehlinger of the Evangelical, Rice of the Presbyterian and Fletcher of the Congregational churches. Dr. Wells sustained the alleged modernist views of the book under discussion and was supported by Messrs. Fletcher and Rice, while other members held to the fundamental idea. The modernist views, as expressed, it is stated, even included the proposition that the Bible should be wholly rewritten to fit with modern conditions.
