Has 100 Pairs of Shoes; Goes to Paris for More

Gray Family Celebrate Birthday in Unique Way, Ermine Cape Added to Trousseau

By GABBY.

ONE of Omaha's smartly dressed young women is in Paris, and it is rumored, adding to her already marvelous collection of—no not antiques or jewels, but dainty foot-wear. The young lady has a trim foot, which has always been greatly admired, and an obsession for lovely shoes. One whole side of her large wardrobe, from ceiling to floor, is shelved and the shelves filled with pale gray and lavender shoe boxes, neatly marked as to contents on the outside, carriage boots, opera slipper, riding boots, sports shoes and dainty mules. It is said that the boxes number more than 100. Perhaps more shelves will have to be added to the already overflowing ones when the young lady returns and friends are awaiting with eagerness an opportunity to view her new "finds."

members of the family remember the honors with gifts but he in turn presents them with lovely things, and Mrs. Gray too remembers everyone with a gift. The family party last summer at the Gray home included the Carl Gray, Jr., family of Kansas City, the Russell Grays of Philadelphia, Pa., the Carl Grays, Howard Gray and his fiancée, Miss De Weenta Conrad.

Each month on the anniversary of the day Mr. Gray and Miss Conrad became betrothed Mrs. Conrad entertains the young couple at luncheon at her home. Gifts for their hope chest are presented at this affair to the young pair.

Miss Ernst, Mr. and Mrs. Borgium, Miss Eugenie Whitmore Dinkins, her father, H. P. Whitmore, and Harry Palmer and Arthur Palmer have been among the Omahans who have met Mrs. MacDowell at her camp in Vermont, which her husband founded, and which she has continued in his memory as a place where artists may go to work out their inspirations into a tangible form.

Enchanted Cottage Cast Announced

Plans have been completed by the directors of Omaha's Community theater for the production of Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's play, "The Enchanted Cottage." Two performances will be given on Monday and Tuesday, April 13 and 14, at Miss Mary F. Cooper's studio theater, Forty-first and Farnam streets.

Mr. Gregory Foley, director of the play, says "The Enchanted Cottage" is an ideal play for a little theater, as the many intimate passages, lost in a large auditorium, register there.

Travelers and Guests Interest Society

Mrs. Richard Henderson Mallory and daughter, Cynthia Ann, left early in the week for Orlando, Florida, to be the guests of Mr. Mallory's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Mallory at their winter home. They plan to accompany the Mallorys to Asheville, N. C., on April 1, where they will remain for three weeks at the fashionable Pinehurst hotel.

Mrs. Mallory is a member of the Omaha Junior league and has taken part in all of the league "shows." Miss Cynthia is just 3 years old and is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cassels Smith.

The social bond between Omaha and Sioux City has been largely cemented by the younger set. Miss Mary Ellen McLaughlin of Sioux City has been a frequent visitor here, with her hostess, Miss Edith Royal Tyler, former Sioux City girl. On Thursday Miss Tyler introduced her guest to her friends at an informal bridge. Miss McLaughlin is a graduate of Miss Baldwin's school, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and has been a student at Vassar.

Miss Tyler is an alumna of Nebraska university. She takes an active part in the activities for her sorority, Kappa Alpha Theta.

Mrs. John Madden is perhaps Omaha's most travelled matron. Each summer finds her en route to Europe, accompanied by Mr. Madden and their sons, John and Joseph. Each winter Mrs. Madden makes a pilgrimage to New York to see all the season's best, and between times she jaunts to other world playgrounds.

Mrs. Madden has just returned from New York City. During her stay her son Joseph, a student in Hotchkiss prep, joined her for a week-end there.
