Good Friends With Canada.
Roosevelt's Plain Talk.
You Are 90 Per Cent Good.
Air Travel 1 Cent a Mile.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Some of Canada's able men suggest getting out of the League of Nations, which they call unnecessary expense and a dangerous entanglement for their country. The fact that this country stays out of the league has some weight with our neighbors in the north.

A good League of Nations might be constructed on this continent with Canada and the United States as foundation members. A league to take care of America, North and South, leaving Europe to look after Europe, would be popular and useful.

Close and friendly relations between Canada and this country are especially important. Our interests, manner and standards of living are practically the same, and this country could learn several things from Canadians.

One of the things, very important, that Canada could teach us, is the efficient, profitable management of railroads owned by the people.

Here it is understood that our public men are too incapable, or too dishonest, or both, to be trusted with public utilities.

They have no such difficulty in Canada.

The late Theodore Roosevelt's letters to his friend, Cabot Lodge, and his remarks to others are interesting. W. J. Bryan he called a "small man and a demagogue," and of Woodrow Wilson, he said to a naval officer, "The man (Wilson) is a physical coward."

Theodore Roosevelt spoke plainly, especially in these private letters, published after his death, with the consent of his family.

What you are at birth limits definitely your future possibilities. Your surroundings and education may enable you fully to develop all that you have in you. But nothing can be added to the limits that are fixed, with your first breath of life.

Therefore it is a comfort to hear from Prof. T. H. Morgan, eminent biologist of Columbia university, that every one of us has, from his ancestors, a mental and physical inheritance at least 90 per cent good.

Had the percentage been lower, the ancestors would not have survived and would have no descendants.

Why a blue-eyed man and woman never have brown-eyed children. How it happens that a taste for drugs or drink is never inherited, and many other interesting things Prof. Morgan can tell you. But the most important is this:

Ninety per cent of the hereditary forces within you are working on the side of virtue and success.

News from Paris will interest railroad men of the kind that think for the cheapest airplane trip from Paris to Rouen, a distance of 80 miles, a 50,000-franc prize was offered. Droughin, a French flyer, made the trip at a total cost of 80 cents, 1 cent a mile for gas and oil. And he won the prize.

Up in the air there are no roadbeds or rails to be kept up, no friction or bumping, wearing out rolling stock. Before the Ford gets through with their airplane building, they will carry 10 passengers from Detroit to California or Florida for one-quarter of the present fare, in one-third of today's running time.

It is the old story of Troy, with Mumtaz Begum in place of Helen, and with conspiracies, high officials paid to plan to murder and other details to warm the heart of an exciting story.

Could you imagine better names, ready made for romance than Mumtaz Begum, Alla Bux Wazir and the maharajah of Indore.

Poor little Mumtaz, with the slim ankles, sold and delivered, had her delicate brown face slashed with the knives of hired murderers. Told to disguise her, that no other man might own her beauty. That is the sad part of the story.

Secretary Wilbur, according to a dispatch to New York Times, is worried. It seems that 11 warships, with all their anti-aircraft guns, blazing away to the limit, at an aircraft target, were unable to score even one single hit.

The secretary has demanded a report, and that is a good idea. A better idea would be to build about 4,000 fast fighting airplanes.

What do you think half a dozen bombing airplanes would have done to those 11 warships while they were shooting off their comic-opera anti-aircraft guns?

Warships are obsolete. Battleships are merely big humors, easy targets for aerial bombs. If the nation must support the battleship builders, why not subsidize them, and teach them to build airplanes.

Howard P. Curtis, who has spent five years in Japan, brings news of that capable and energetic nation's war preparations. Japan does not intend to be taken, unprepared, whatever foolish nations may do, and she deserves credit for her intelligence.

Japan owns and is building more of the swiftest light cruisers in the world, to look after her shipping and take care of any enemy ship. One of these cruisers, the Yura, carries torpedoes three feet in diameter and 21 feet long, most powerful ever made.

Japan's work in building air machines exceeds that of any other two nations, and will soon make of Japan the most powerful nation in the air, more powerful even than France, with her 4,000 airplanes that now make her mistress of Europe.

This nation should admire and imitate the intelligent and active people of Japan. Neither earthquake nor fire, no calamity can make them neglect the one important thing, national security. (Copyright, 1925.)

WIFE SAVES MATE IN DEATH'S CLUTCH

Superior, March 30.—William Harkins, 55, mail carrier, was snatched from death last night by his wife after he had become unconscious.

The family had moved into a home recently vacated by another family. Harkins stepped out of the back door to pump a bucket of water from a well. He placed his foot accidentally on the iron base of the pump, and as he touched the pump handle his wife, standing nearby, saw his body straighten and the muscles set, with his head thrown back, and heard him groan. He became unconscious, but did not fall on account of being unable to release his hold on the pump handle, and his body stood upright. The wife managed to pull him free, but was badly shocked and burned as she touched him.

It was found that the pump was heavily charged with the electrical current from a short-circuited electric lead wire which had formerly been used to operate the pump with a motor. His foot and hand were severely burned and he was incapacitated by the shock.

Menacing Prairie Fire Brought Under Control

Barneston, March 30.—A fire was started in a field near the G. A. Howell farm, south of here, in the Oketo vicinity Saturday afternoon, which burned over the dead grass and weeds rapidly and threatened the farm buildings of the Howell farm. Help was called by telephone and a gang of men was rushed to the scene by auto from here and from Oketo and the fire was brought under control before it reached any buildings. It is said the fire was set by sparks from a passing freight train on the Union Pacific.

Judge Duxbury Waives 10-Day Marriage Notice

Plattsmouth, March 30.—In view of the passage of the bill repealing the 10-day marriage law next July 1, County Judge Duxbury has announced that in cases where he knows the parties, or they are properly vouched for he will waive the 10-day requirement. As a result Judge Duxbury officiated at two weddings last week, the first in a long time.
