

Omaha University Gala Day at Kountze Park in May

EVERY afternoon fair maids of the University of Omaha may be seen dancing lightly on the sward at Kountze park or rhythmically swinging in time to music on the gymnasium floor under the direction of Miss Dixie Miller. The annual gala day festivities of the university, which come in May, are the reason for such activities on the part of Omaha U's maidenly.

The pageant, to be given on the afternoon of gala day, the exact date of which has not yet been set, was written by Miss Dixie Miller, instructor in gym and dancing at the university, and is called "A Story of Spring." The action will take place at Kountze park, and in order of appearance come the trumpeters, announcing the procession; the Girls' Glee club, the flower girls, the herald and crown bearer, who make the procession.

The queen and her attendants make their appearance, and the queen takes her seat on the throne, with her attendants grouped about her. Then for her majesty there is danced a pretty Bow and Arrow dance, a Parasol dance, a Bluebird dance, Bubble dance, and a Play-time dance, the last done by two little five year old maids in the kindergarten department. A Scarf dance follows, and then the grand May Pole dance closes the queen's entertainment. Ruth Betts will present a solo dance in connection with the finale. Singing is by the glee club.

Electors of the queen and attendants will take place during the middle of April. The queen of the May is elected by a majority vote of the entire school from girls of the senior class. Her attendants are elected by the school at large, one candidate from each class. Perry Borcharding is chairman of the Gala Day Central committee.

Kappa Psi Delta sorority of the University of Omaha held an afternoon meeting at the home of Betty Sowell Friday. Details of the annual all-sorority tea were discussed, and refreshments served.

Alpha Sigma Lambda fraternity had a stag party Friday evening at their meeting house across from Central High.

University of Omaha Gateway poetry contest closed Friday. A number of contestants submitted poetry. Winners will be announced in the next week's issue of the Gateway.

The Y. W. and Y. M. cabinets of the university met Friday in a two-hour session with Miss Swallen, who is traveling in the interests of the student volunteer movement. She is the daughter of a missionary in Korea. Miss Swallen spoke at assembly in the morning.

Members of the varsity and girl's basketball teams are invited by Martha Honey to a hike Wednesday afternoon south of Camp Brewster. The walking club shack will be the objective.

Royal Couple on Riviera

"Vanishing Party" Is Latest Craze in London Society.

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES, special Cable to Universal Service.

London, April 4.—King George and Queen Mary are far from Mayfair and its foibles, having a laytime on the Mediterranean. As the queen is such a shocking sailor landlady, she has made each day. The king is now quite recovered and spends most of each day reading. The royal pair listen in a good deal on the radio, and the queen is very fond of London, Paris and Madrid. The queen may be seen sewing a good deal, no doubt on jumpers and suits for the young Lascelles, her grandchildren.

Samuel Insull of Chicago was entertained by "Tay Pay" O'Connor at luncheon and dinner in the house of commons this week. Tay Pay has been having a fortnight of happy renewals of old acquaintances, among them being another of his oldest friends, J. W. Redding of San Francisco, with whom he has been spending much time.

The "vanishing party" is the latest fashionable craze in London. It has been introduced by the Countess Lancaster who gave a vanishing luncheon at the Berkeley to seven guests Tuesday. The luncheon was for charity, each guest contributing a small sum. Then each of the seven guests gave similar parties to six guests each of whom in turn agreed to entertain five, each of whom would also contribute a small sum. By the time the number of guests is reduced to one or two, the vanishing party, 5,040 guests will be, or should have been entertained, and the scheme ends.

The only hitch to the scheme is that the numbers become unmanageable in the exclusive coterie.

Mrs. Jimmie Corrigan and Mrs. Harry Brown had a race to get Spencer house, the Earl of Spencer's wonderful home in St. James square, for the season. Mrs. Brown won. Never has there been such a frantic search for town houses as this season, the reason being that many English families are going to have their first season in town since the war. Lines of powdered footmen at the Vanderbilts' receptions at Spencer house last year were the sensation of the town.

Arrangements have now been completed for the brilliant opera season at Covent Garden opera house this summer. Richard Strauss is coming to specially conduct Elektra and Salome. All the German singers who made such a furor last year are returning as well as the Italian singers. Trazzini and Melba are likely to make a number of appearances. There will be only five performances a week this summer, none being given on Saturdays.

Temple Israel luncheon. Temple Israel sisterhood will entertain 50 guests at luncheon, bridge and mah jong at Hotel Blackstone on Monday.

Altrusa Convention Chairman

Mrs. Perle Hungate. —Richard Marsden Photo.

When as delegate to a convention you step off the train and are greeted instantly by a friendly voice which says "Here's my car" and are then whisked to headquarters, where a pen is handed you and you sign up for several days of unbelievable fun and inspirational meetings and acquaintances—well, you do rather take the attention for granted as though it were just another modern miracle.

But it's not a miracle. It's a convention chairman. She anticipates every emergency, plans luncheons, drives and necessary business sessions, places cars at your disposal, and all of that.

Mrs. Perle Hungate it is who for Omaha Altrusa is chairman of the committee which is arranging details for the national convention of the organization meeting in Omaha April 22-25. With heads of other committees she has been busy all winter on the work and as a result convention plans are very definite. Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25, will be devoted to business sessions. A luncheon will be given Friday at the Athletic club, a dinner at Miss Mary Cooper's studio that night and a banquet at Hotel Fontenelle Saturday night. A drive is planned for the visitors for Saturday afternoon.

HOME-NOTES By JENNY WREN

This porch is a thoroughly delightful spot in summer, partly because it was so carefully planned when the house was built—partly because its furnishings were chosen with such good taste.

Because it is on the east side of the house it is shaded all afternoon, and because it faces the garden and not the street it is delightfully secluded.

The awnings, at either end, are very gay, striped in orange, green and black. The Chinese rattan chairs and tea table of hour glass shape, are black and the cushions are orange or green.

The hanging center light is disguised by a yellow Chinese lantern and glows romantically at night quite like a pale summer moon.
