

Sailor Tells About Ships of All Times

Hawthorne Daniel Writes Absorbing Story of the Development of Vessels of All the World.

"SHIPS OF THE SEVEN SEAS" by Hawthorne Daniel, Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y., publishers.

"Mr. Hawthorne Daniel has rendered a conspicuous service in writing a book which can be understood and appreciated by the average citizen. It will be a good thing for us to have some knowledge of the great epic of ships and the men who have made them and sailed them," writes Franklin D. Roosevelt in a foreword to Mr. Daniel's volume. And he thereby tells just what the book is and what may be expected from it.

Hawthorne Daniel left Nebraska, intent on being a sailor. His way was to lead through the naval academy at Annapolis. Fate would otherwise, for his health forced him to resign from the navy. He did get in and served with distinction through the American share of the world war, an officer attached to the fleet commanded by Admiral Sims in English waters. To this he has added other experiences on board merchantmen, as a stoker, a deckhand, and officer. So he knows the sailor's life inside and out from actual experience. This knowledge has been supplemented by his study and research, until he is admirably equipped to deal with a subject that is so close to his heart.

Mr. Daniel served an apprenticeship at writing as a reporter on The Omaha Bee, leaving this work to take up his studies at Annapolis. When he resigned from the navy, he engaged with Doubleday, Page & Co., as one of the subeditors of World's Work. To that magazine he contributed many articles, and collected extensively in gathering material for his pages. One of his trips took him far into the northern regions of America, beyond the polar circle, looking up information on oil fields and the like. And he has to his credit a romantic novel, "In the Faraway of the King," which was very well received.

All this preface to substantiate the assertion that "Ships of the Seven Seas" is the knowledge of a sailor of proven ability set down by a writer who has the charm of expression essential to holding the interested attention of the reader. He begins as far back as any knowledge of men going down to the sea in ships is recorded, and comes steadily down to the present. Every ship of every clime is touched upon, so that it may be understood. The boats of ancient Egypt, of Tyre, of Carthage, Rome the Norsemen, all are mentioned. So also are the canoes of the savages, the junks of China, juggers, feluccas, and all, until the wonders of today, the Mauret, the Leviathan, the mail liners and the tramp steamers—everything that floats and carries passengers or freight is dealt with.

Naturally, the development of the fighting ship, from the very earliest to the modern superdreadnaught, the destroyer and the airplane carrier, is explained in detail, although Mr. Daniel confesses such an aversion to the submarine that he puts it off with rather scanty reference.

Power for propulsion, from oars to sails, and sails to steam, gets ample treatment and detailed explanation. Knots are illustrated and explained, the names of masts and sails on ships of various types are made plain, and a glossary of nautical terms is attached that will enable any one soon to learn the language of the deep blue sea.

"Never does Mr. Daniel become technical in his description. The varied land lubber can understand him, the saltiest of sailors will admit his accuracy. And now that the United States once more has a merchant marine, and Americans are again turning to the trade of sailors, the book is timely.

George M. Cohan Tells His Own Simple Story

TWENTY YEARS ON BROADWAY AND THE YEARS IT TOOK TO GET THERE, by George M. Cohan, Harper & Brothers, New York, publishers.

George M. Cohan is a towering figure among what Gilbert Seldes calls the "lively arts"—and here is George himself, in a book with many pictures, telling the story of his life in his own easy, colloquial way.

Exhilarating and basically American is this tale of the youngest, the bad boy of the four Cohans, trouncing with his family, fighting tempestuous battles with managers and other actors, traveling with gaiety and courage the long, rocky road that stretched between him and acceptance by the profession and the public. The years of his youth and manhood were the changing years of the American stage, and perhaps no other man had more to do with the change. But it is the man himself you will like, and his story. Read it for its verve, its sincerity, its engaging candor.

Touching on Man's Way With Women and Effects

"MINDALWOOD," by Fulton Oursler; the Macaulay Company, New York, publishers.

Before your eyes Mr. Oursler holds up to view the secret that nearly every married man fatuously thinks is his alone—the fact that at some time he has been untrue to his wife in thought if not in deed.

There came a time in the life of Eddie Carpenter when the path of the other woman crossed with his. Far away pastures are always green, and Eddie looked longingly over the fence of matrimony to where Faith Waring walked alone.

The lively graphic manner in which Fulton Oursler portrays the conflict of Eddie Carpenter and Faith Waring, for the love of a man who, like other men, had feet of clay, is a masterly piece of dramatic writing.

Through Fantastic Africa With E. Alexander Powell

"BEYOND THE UTMOST PUNTO," by E. Alexander Powell; Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, publishers.

Mr. Powell has added another charming volume to his group that deals with Africa. This one treats of Abyssinia and the hinterland of the Sudan. Where lions are kept as house pets, where the empress is a lineal descendant of the queen of Sheba who visited Solomon; where noblemen still live in castles and their retainers wear armor; where a hungry soldier cuts a steak from a living animal; where automobiles and machine guns, phonographs and sewing machines, the radio and the movie jostle with customs that have not changed since the days of old Rameses. All these and more are discussed by Mr. Powell in that style that has made him the best of modern observers and chroniclers. The book will be eagerly seized by those who enjoy "fireside" travel.

ables them to conquer. A love story with an exciting, up-to-the-minute plot by the author of "Here Comes the Sun" and "The Trail of Con- flict."

Tale of the First French Settlement in America

"THE SCARLET COCKEREL," by C. M. Sublette; The Atlantic Monthly Press, Boston, publishers.

When Charles Boardman Hawes, author of "The Mutineers," "The Great Quest," and "The Dark Fig are" (Newbery medal book for 1923), died in the summer of 1923, The Atlantic Monthly Press offered a prize of $2,000 for a tale of adventure of the same general character and excellence as these splendid stories. The prize was intended as a memorial to Mr. Hawes, whose untimely death at the age of 34 deprived a large public of further tales such as those in the writing of which he had no rival. Of the scores of manuscripts submitted, "The Scarlet Cockerel" was the unanimous choice of the judges to receive the prize. The new author, who is 37 years old, has never written a novel before, although he has published a number of short stories of the adventure type. Mr. Sublette is particularly interested in history and his novel has a distinctly historical background, being a 16th century tale of the French Huguenot colonists in the Carolinas and their difficulties with the Spanish from Florida.

Smugglers and the Like Move Through This Tale

"HIGH NOON," by Crosby Garstin; Fred. Sickel A. Stokes, New York, publisher.

This is a quick-stepping tale of the Cornish coast, of the high seas and of the land of the Barbary pirates—a story in which things happen and continue to happen in a high pitch of excitement which is marvelously sustained.

Everything to make a lively romance is here; smuggling, wrecking, horse-trading with sycops, pirating off the Barbary coast, fighting galore, and love-making, both gentle and passionate.

And lots of good people are planning this year to spend their vacations where the water is clear. But death! bacilli! May lurk in a glass of water that sparkles like the dew on the grass.

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run-down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into

Tanlac Restored Her Health

"Typhoid fever reduced me to 95 lbs. and left me weak as a rag. Failing to get relief from other sources I tried Tanlac and after 6 bottles had gained 20 lbs. Now I enjoy a fine appetite and feel like a new woman. As a nurse I give Tanlac to all my patients."

Scout Leaders' Course to Open

Training Open to All Over 21 Interested in Boys.

The Omaha scout leaders' training course which will start Wednesday evening at 7:45, will be a unique course. The men taking this course will be organized exactly as a troop of Boy Scouts.

Patrol leaders will be in charge of seven men and the same ideas and same activities as the Boy Scouts use, will be used by the men. These sessions will be held in the library at Creighton university. There will also be a Saturday afternoon session at Elmwood park for instruction in map making, and another session at Camp Gifford lasting over Saturday and Sunday, May 2 and 3, when the scout leaders will be taught camping stunts, hiking, training, tree identification, life saving, signalling, and bird study.

The course will cover 32 hours of instructional work and will entitle those completing the course to receive a diploma from the National Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Professor Donovan, Coach Schabinger, experienced scoutmasters and representatives from the national Boy Scout council, will be on the list of speakers for the course.

The course is open to anyone 21 or over who is an American citizen and wants to receive instruction in boy leadership. Already over 50 men have signified their intention of taking the course. A number of professional men have signed for the course.

New Goitre Remedy

Great interest attaches to reports of a remarkable method for treating goitre recently demonstrated at the W. T. B. Laboratory, 3640 Minty Block, Battle Creek, Mich. It is used by the patient herself in her own home and it is said that the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller and smaller until in three or four weeks they are often gone entirely. The treatment is perfectly safe for anyone to use and many believe it will prove the long sought specific for all goitres. A little book issued by the laboratory explains the method fully and will be mailed free for the asking to anyone interested.

MOTHERHOOD

It may be that the blessing of Motherhood is denied you because of physical weakness. In many cases this condition has been corrected by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I want to thank you for the help your wonder medicine has done me. I had one boy ten years old and we wanted another but the other children lived only a few hours. I was in a nervous, run down condition with some female weakness for at least two years. My sister bought the first bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me seven years ago and as it had helped me then I began taking it again with Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and the Liver Pills, while I was carrying this baby. He is a lovely healthy boy and of course I nurse him. I am in better health myself than I have ever been since I was married and I lay it all to Providence that guided me to take your medicine. I will be very glad to answer letters to any one I can help as I am so happy over my baby boy."
