

Police Shakeup and Dismissals Loom at Station

Chief Dillon to Retire July 1; Pszanowski Successor, Is Report Going Rounds.

On the heels of the city election, a basic shakeup in the Omaha police department is predicted at Central police headquarters.

This prediction is not based, however, on the persistent report that Henry Dunn, police commissioner, is to be returned to the department of accounts and finance together with the transfer of Dean Noyes to the police department and Dan Butler to the streets department.

Chief of Police Peter Dillon will retire July 1 on chief's pay, the prediction indicates, and he will be succeeded by John J. Pszanowski, now inspector of police, who has been in the department 15 years and has served in every branch with credit.

Heller Auto Theft Head.

Pszanowski's post as head of the automobile theft bureau will be taken by Robert Heller, member of the bureau who will be promoted to the grade of captain, it is reported.

Pszanowski's position as inspector will be filled by the promotion of Chief of Detectives Charles H. Van Deusen, it is claimed, whose vacated job will be filled by one of these men: Paul Haze, Tom Crawford, Bert Thorpe, Fritz Franks or Ben Danbaum. Paul Haze is said to be the favorite for this position at this time.

Many Minor Changes.

But before this change of chiefs is made, many changes in the rank and file personnel of the department are to be made, according to the authority for the prediction, who cites an admission by Commissioner Dunn just a few days before election that a number of patrolmen were facing dismissal, because of a shortage of funds in the department.

Names mentioned in connection with the dismissal report include A. C. Anderson, superintendent of the Registration Identification Bureau, Joe Dudley, Joe Wavrin and Charles Whalen. These will be augmented by six others, it is said.

BLAZE DESTROYS DAIRY BARN

Beatrice, Neb., May 8.—The dairy barn, silos and all equipment belonging to J. B. Smith at Platte City, Mo., formerly of this city, were destroyed by fire, according to word reaching here today.

Fifty-five head of Jersey milk cows and calves that were in the barns were led to safety. All was insured, but Smith states that the amount will not replace the barns that were destroyed. He formerly operated a dairy southwest of Beatrice.

First World-Wide Radio Strike on Operators Quit

Paris, May 8.—The first world wide radio strike began this morning when all the "radio France" operators sending messages between France and America quit their keys.

They demand a minimum pay of $60 a month instead of $50.

The company claims that the official tariffs at the present time will not permit an increase in salaries.

St. Rita Novena.

A novena in honor of St. Rita will be held in St. Mary Magdalene church from May 14 to 22. Special services during novena at 7:45 p. m. with sermons preached by Rev. Wm. P. Haley, a missionary of the Oblate order.

Weak Women

HEALTH IS MOST VITAL TO YOU

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—A few years ago after motherhood I could not gain back my strength. I developed quite a severe case of woman's trouble, suffered with bearing pains which would be so severe I would have to lie down. I became so weak that all I wanted to do was lie and rest. It seemed that every spark of vitality had left me. I consulted a doctor and he said nothing but an operation would help me, but I would not consent. I had seen Dr. Pierce's medicine advertised, so at once began taking the "Favorite Prescription" and it was not long until I noticed my appetite was returning, I could eat, so I knew the medicine was doing me good. I took about 12 bottles and it was well worth it for it completely restored me to health, without the operation.—Mrs. W. H. Avis, 214 S. 19th St.

Domestic Heroines in Our Homes

Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around women continue to work. Necessity to keep on their feet all day when over-tired, or sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings on ailments from which women suffer tortures. For 50 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been strengthening women and over-caring such ailments. Sickness and pain vanish under its influence and thousands of women have been benefited by it.

RAIL FUEL MEN MEET AT C. of C.

The Omaha chapter of the International Railroad Fuel association held its quarterly meeting Thursday at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

Purpose of the conference was to discuss means of conserving fuel.

John Welch, locomotive inspector of the interstate commerce commission, was the principal speaker. H. E. Dickinson, general superintendent of the Northwestern railroad, acted as chairman.

Officers were elected. Dexter C. Brandeis, 9 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Lowden, 2615 Sprague street, held by Dorothy Norton; Billy Bruce, 15 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Bruce, held by Frederika Nash, and Le Clare Adele Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gardner, held by Frances Swift.

WOMAN SUES OVER TRAM ACCIDENT

Mrs. Flora Sovell, 2103 Sahler street, 44, filed suit in district court Thursday against the street railway company for $50,000, stating that she suffered injuries when she was thrown from a car enroute at Sixtieth street and Military avenue, last Monday.

OMAHANS ACTIVE IN MUSIC RECITAL

Norfolk, Neb., May 8.—Omaha artists made a hit via radio from radio station WJAG last night in a special music week song recital. Two hundred messages came to the artists congratulating them on what was declared to be the best program on the air. The Omaha artists taking part included Eloise Wood Milliken, pianist; George S. Johnston, tenor; and Fred G. Ellis, baritone.

SIXTEENTH AND HOWARD STREETS

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

The Protective Questions Edith Fairfax Asked About Lella.

At the unexpected sound of her sister's voice in the hall, Lella Durkin's hands went fluttering to her heart and her face grew pallid. I saw Katherine look searchingly at her, and move quietly toward her, but before she reached her side, the rose flush of joy had suffused Lella's cheeks, and with a little cry of "Eddie! Oh, Eddie! Here I am, in the library!" she rushed to the door as it swung open and was clasped close in Edith Fairfax's loving arms.

For a long minute the two sisters stood closely embraced, oblivious of everyone save themselves. Lella was sobbing nervously between little ejaculations of "Eddie! Eddie! I've wanted you so!" and the older girl, while soothing her deftly, was scrutinizing her closely.

"What have they done to you, Kit-ten?" she demanded after a minute, putting her hand beneath her sister's delicate face and turning it upward to her own.

In her voice and eyes was the fierce, protective, maternal love which I knew always had been here for this idolized younger sister. And as Lella's eyes fell before hers, and her voice murmured, brokenly, "Nothing, Eddie. Everything's all right, now that you're here," I saw Edith Fairfax's face harden, and I knew that Lella needed nothing more of me or anyone else.

Fierce Maternal Love.

Bess Dean would have less than the "Chapman's chance" which Dicky is always quoting, when pitted against Edith Fairfax aroused by any wrong to Lella, real or fancied. Not that I meant to forego using the effective weapon against Bess Dean which I believed I had discovered. That procedure was not only a duty to Lella, but a pleasure to me, and I felt that I would not miss the interview with my former colleague for many shekels.

"I'm here, don't you forget that, darling," the elder sister said softly but tensely, and then Lella, still clutching Edith's arm as if she were afraid she might be snatched away, turned to the rest of us with a pretty, little air of apology.

"I'm fearfully remis," she said contritely, "but I haven't seen Edie for so long."

"Perhaps after a hundred years or so, we'll be able to forgive you," Dicky drawled, coming forward and putting out his hand. "Salaams, Edie. How's the girl?"

"Very well, thank you, Dicky," she returned. "One doesn't need to ask you that question. You're looking unusually fit."

"The same to you and many of 'em," Dicky replied flippantly, and then Katherine and I took possession of her.

"The Easiest Job."

"Do you know what you are?" Katherine queried in a low tone, taking advantage of the fact that Dicky was monopolizing Lella's attention with some of his nonsense, a deliberate proceeding, I suspected on his part, to enable us to speak to Edie.

"No, what?" Edith countered.

"A Direct Interposition of Providence with capitals," Katherine replied.

"You never were more needed in your life, Edith," I supplemented, and she looked from us to Lella and back again before answering.

"I guessed as much," she said slowly, and then more briskly but still in an undertone she added: "What's the principal trouble?"

I gestured to Katherine, and in the fewest words possible, she told Edith of the domestic problems presented by Mrs. Durkin's convalescence and the servant problem.

"If she only could go away somewhere until she gets strong," Katherine said.

"What's the principal trouble?" I gestured to Katherine, and in the fewest words possible, she told Edith of the domestic problems presented by Mrs. Durkin's convalescence and the servant problem.

erine finished. Lella could manage beautifully here. Edith's face showed relief, as if the solution of the problem suddenly had flashed upon her.
