Farm Relief Bill Loses in House

Last Minute Efforts of McNary-Haugen Supporters to Put Through Substitute Also Fail.

Vote Breaks Party Lines

Washington, June 3.—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was defeated today in the house.

Last minute efforts of its supporters to put through a less drastic measure also failed.

The bill was rejected 224 to 154. Rejection of the proposal left members of the house and senate in doubt as to what, if any, farm legislation could be rushed through if congress adjourned Saturday.

Break in Party Lines

There was a sharp break in party lines in the voting, democrats and republicans from the middle west and northwest rallying to the bill's support, while members from eastern states, irrespective of party, and many southern democrats opposed it.

Sponsored by the Agriculture department, the measure would have created a government corporation with capital of $200,000,000, to sell surplus farm products abroad.

It proposed to increase prices paid to farmers, seeking to re-establish the same ratio between the price of their commodities and some 400 general commodities as existed previous to the war.

Realizing that the measure as it stood would be defeated, those who had been leading the fight for it agreed at the last moment to propose restriction of its scope in the hope of gaining votes.

Amendment Offered. Representative Jones, democrat, Texas, offered an amendment to limit application of the bill to wheat, flour, swine and products of swine, to reduce the corporation's capital from $200,000,000 to $100,000,000, to limit the measure's life to two instead of five years, and to give the president discretionary powers to put the proposal in operation.

Representatives of national farm organizations who have been here working in support of the McNary-Haugen bill announced after its defeat that a nation-wide conference had been called to meet in St. Paul, Minn., July 17 and 18 "to perfect arrangements for expanding and carrying on the campaign for agricultural justice and equality."

103 INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

One hundred and three indictments were returned by the federal grand jury Tuesday afternoon.

Among those indicted are two brothers, business men of a western town who stand charged with using the mails to defraud wholesale houses in hundreds of cities out of thousands of dollars.

The names of the men are being withheld until the marshal's office serves the warrants and makes the arrests which are expected to be made by noon today.

Others indicted are 10 alleged bootleggers arrested in Robert P. Samardick's recent raids and 49 alleged dispensers of narcotics.

Three were indicted for violation of the Mann act.

Retired M. E. Bishop of Omaha Area Dies

Bishop Homer C. Stuntz

Sudden Release Snuffs Out Life of Bishop Stuntz

Methodist Church Leader, Recently Retired, Falls to Illness.

Bishop Homer Clyde Stuntz, retired bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church area of Nebraska and Iowa, died at 6:30 Tuesday morning at the Methodist hospital.

The bishop, who was believed to be recovering after a stroke of paralysis suffered on February 12 at Miami, Fla., became gravely ill Monday night. No cause was given by the attendant physician for the change for the worse. He became unconscious Monday afternoon and grew steadily worse and died at the early hour this morning, without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Stuntz at Bedside. Mrs. Stuntz and Rev. J. E. Wagner were at his bedside. The son, Clyde Stuntz, who had arrived in April from Calcutta, India, to be at the bedside of his father, was en route west by automobile from Springfield, Mass., where he had gone to attend the Methodist conference. He had spent a few weeks with his father before his departure for the east.

Mrs. Stuntz had received word that Clyde had reached Aurora, Ill., with his wife and children, and he was given the message of his father's serious illness by long distance Monday evening and Tuesday morning a wire message of his father's death. He left his automobile at Aurora and proceeded to Omaha with his family by train, expecting to arrive Tuesday afternoon.

Other Son in South America. The other son, Hugh Stuntz, is a missionary at Buenos Aires, South America. It will be another year before his furlough is granted.

Bishop Stuntz was stricken with paralysis, which resulted in his death, February 12. He was found prostrate on the floor of the bathroom in his suite at a Miami (Fla.) hotel.

He had arrived in Miami February 8 to speak at a conference of colored pastors of the state.

Temporary Blindness. While in Cleveland in January the bishop was stricken stone blind for 20 minutes at the railroad station, according to Rev. C. C. Cissell of the Nebraska and Iowa. He had complained of fatigue and a temporary blindness in one eye previously.

Following his stroke at Miami he was removed to a sanitarium where he convalesced until he was able to be returned to Omaha on a stretcher April 11.

In Omaha Since 1916. Bishop Stuntz was retired head of the Methodist Episcopal church area comprising Iowa and Nebraska. He had been in Omaha since 1916.

Bishop Stuntz was born in Albion, Pa., in 1858 and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stuntz. He attended the state normal school of Pennsylvania and was graduated from the law college of Iowa university in 1882. In 1884 he attended the Garrett official institute at Evanston, Ill. Later he went to the Upper Iowa university, from which he was graduated in 1889. Shortly after he entered the ministry in the upper Iowa conference.

As a Missionary. As a young minister, Bishop Stuntz was sent as a missionary to India, where he remained until 1895. He returned to the United States and a year later was sent as a missionary to the Philippine islands. The bishop, while there, wrote the laws that established religious freedom for the people of the islands. These laws were signed by ex-President Taft, then governor of the islands. One of his great accomplishments on the islands was agitation against the opium evil among the natives.

Upon his return to the United States in 1912, the missionary was made a bishop at the general conference of the church in Minneapolis.

Rural Nominates Brookhart

Wins by Majority of 30,000 Over Sweet—Republicans Fail to Name Candidate for Governor.

Democrats Choose Steck

Des Moines, Ia., June 3.—United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart was renominated in the republican primary election in Iowa Monday by a majority somewhere in excess of 30,000 votes.

Returns from 2,272 precincts out of 2,412 in the state tonight gave Brookhart a total vote of 187,232 and his opponent, Burton E. Sweet 157,379. The precincts yet to be reported were for the most part in Brookhart territory and probably will tend to increase his majority.

Senator Brookhart gained a majority vote in 63 of the 99 counties of the state, according to almost complete returns. Two or three counties still are doubtful. Sweet carried the First, Third and Fifth congressional districts by substantial majorities and ran his opponent a neck and neck race in the Sixth and Ninth districts.

Brookhart gained most of his majority in the rural districts. Bluffs Man Wins. No nomination was recorded in the republican contest for governor. John Hammill of Britt, Lieutenant governor, led the field, with W. J. E. Bank, state treasurer, who has the backing of the Ku Klux Klan finishing second. Joe H. Anderson, speaker of the Iowa house of representatives, finished third with Glenn Haynes, state auditor, in fourth place. J. D. Evans and A. J. Banks, farmer candidates, went far in the rear.

In the democratic contests Dan Steck of Ottumwa was the winner for United States senator over Charles Keyes and John Denison of Des Moines, on the basis of incomplete returns. J. C. Murrigh of Waterloo was nominated governor on the democratic ticket over D. K. Unsicker of Mahaska county.

Clem F. Kimball of Council Bluffs was an easy winner over John R. Price of Albia for the republican nomination for lieutenant governor.

No Auditor Nominated. No nomination was recorded for state auditor on the republican ticket; the six candidates running a fairly even race.

Ray Johnson of Muscatine county was the winner of the republican nomination for state treasurer, having a substantial lead over Leon Alms of Des Moines, second in the race.

Fred P. Woodruff of Knoxville is apparently renominated for railroad commissioner but his lead over B. M. Richardson of Cedar Rapids is not large.

A republican congressional contest Judge F. D. Letts of Davenport defeated Harry E. Hull of Williamsburg, the present congressman from the Second district, by a margin of less than 1,000 votes.

W. D. Bois defeated former Mayor Wallace Short of Sioux City for reelection in the Eleventh district after a spirited campaign.

Lloyd Thurston of Osceola was the victor over John Darrah of Chariton in a contest in the Eighth district for the seat vacated by retirement of H. K. Evans.

Cassius Dowell of Des Moines was a winner by a large majority over Mrs. A. H. Huffman of Des Moines who contested his seat in the Seventh district.

The influence of the Ku Klux Klan was evident in many of the contests, the organization showing considerable strength in both city and rural districts.

Minority Report Upholds Ford's Offer on Shoals

Public Interest Would Be Best Served by Accepting Auto Man's Bid, Statement Says.

Washington, June 3.—Public interest would be served best by acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals, it was asserted in a minority report filed today by members of the senate agricultural committee.

Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, and Senator Smith, South Carolina; Senator Caraway, Arkansas; Senator Harrison, Mississippi, and Senator Hefflin, Alabama, democrats, signed the report, which sharply assailed opponents of the proposal as having exaggerated objections to it.

"The Ford offer," the report said, "has been made the subject of the most savage attacks which we have ever seen in any legislation. These attacks have not been of a character calculated to lead to a calm and logical decision. There have been exaggerated statements as to the amount of power involved, while the benefits necessary for the manufacture of fertilizer has been grossly underestimated."

"Statements which grotesquely distort the picture have been made with the fear of contradiction because of the technical difficulties involved in stating the real facts. These intemperate exaggerations have tended to lead us away from the actual facts and to appeal to our prejudices rather than to truthful suggestions as to the great benefits admittedly possible as Muscle Shoals can be best made available to this nation."

"The government owes it to the farmers to produce cheap fertilizer at Muscle Shoals," the report continued, adding that when congress authorized the construction at Muscle Shoals, it was made clear that the peace time purpose of the enterprise was the production of fertilizer.

"Of all the bidders for Muscle Shoals," it said, "only one, Ford, has undertaken to carry out the purposes of congress at his own expense. It was his bid which originally redeemed the enterprise from the prospect of dismantlement and destruction which already had begun when bids were requested by the government on April 2, 1921."

Happiness of Count Salm and American Bride Dependent on Seipel's Recovery

Wounded Chancellor Said to Have Promised Nobleman Ambassadorship—Father of Millicent Won't Accept Him Unless He Gets Post.

By BASHI, D. DOON, Universal Service Staff Correspondent. Paris, June 3.—On whether Monseigneur Seipel, chancellor of Austria, survives the terrible wounds inflicted by an would-be assassin's bullets in Vienna depends the future happiness of the Count and Countess Salm von Hoogstraten, the latter formerly Millicent Rogers of New York.

This is the news received today by friends of the couple here in a letter from the count who is in Vienna. The count's letter is reported to say: "Chancellor Seipel offered me the post of minister to Persia. I had to refuse it as I knew that Millicent would never consent to live in Tehran."

Thereupon the chancellor suggested that I be given the ambassadorship to Italy, with the possibility of thereafter being sent to Washington.

"The attempt to assassinate the chancellor leaves all this in doubt."

In well informed circles in Paris it is asserted that Col. H. H. Rogers, father of the countess, has stated as the condition for the acceptance of the count into the Rogers family that the count must obtain a high post in the Austrian diplomatic corps to which he is fitted by birth and education. This is said to be the real purpose of the count's visit to Vienna following the departure of his wife for New York with her father.

Wind Torn Balloon Is Funeral Pyre

Mangled, Charred Bodies of Two Former Fort Omaha Men Found in Field in Illinois.

On Experimental Flight

Just two years to the day from the time he nearly lost his life while flying in a balloon race, Lieut. James T. Neely, Philadelphia, formerly of Fort Omaha, met death when his balloon caught fire and exploded while in the air.

Neely, together with Dr. C. Leroy Meisinger of the United States weather bureau, also a former Fort Omaha balloon school lieutenant, had

Like Egg Shell. From a height of thousands of feet at which they were flying in the balloon 553, in advance of last night's storm, they were shot to the ground when the tempest overtook them and crushed their fragile craft like an egg shell.

Lightning completed the destruction of the balloon and the daring men—one a scientist and the other a pilot. Only burned bits of the fabric and a few twisted girders marking the funeral pyre when discovered today.

It was the ninth flight of the series scheduled for this spring, Scott Field officials said.

started on the ninth of a series of flights to study upper air conditions about storm centers, late Monday afternoon. Tuesday morning the bodies of the two men, horribly mangled, were found in a field near Bement, Ill.

Fall From Great Height Indicated. Every evidence indicated that the men had fallen from a great height. In addition to being completely crushed they were badly charred. It is believed that the balloon in which the men were riding became fired accidentally and burned before they could dispose of enough ballast to lower the balloon, nor could they take advantage of their parachutes.

On June 2, 1922, Neely, together with James B. Jordan, also a former Omaha, fought an eight-hour battle for their lives when they were caught in a high wind while crossing Lake

Inquest Wednesday

Monticello, Ill., June 3.—The inquest into the deaths of Dr. Leroy Meisinger, meteorological expert from the government weather bureau, and Lieut. James T. Neely, Scott Field pilot, whose bodies were found today on the Ralph Wright farm, five miles south of here, following the explosion of their balloon last night, will be held here tomorrow. Sheriff George A. Lindley announced this afternoon.

Michigan. They were contestants in a balloon race which had started at Milwaukee the Wednesday before.

Food and Ballast Thrown Overboard. In this flight Neely attempted to land his balloon at Ashabula, O., first, but the wind forced him to continue. He threw all of the food, as well as the ballast, from the balloon in an effort to save himself from the waters of the lake.

Neely came to Omaha as a cadet in the balloon school at Fort Omaha in 1917. He received his commission in 1918 and was assigned post signal officer. He acted as post officer until 1920, when he was transferred to Ross field, California.

Neely was assigned to act as pilot for Dr. Meisinger in the research work for the government. The men had made several flights from Scott field.

LeRoy Meisinger was a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

"Leopold Never Laced Own Shoes Until He Was 14," Says Former Nurse in Home

Pampering Went to Head, Declares Woman Who Believes Long Term at Hard Labor Would Reform Franks Slayer by Dulling Brilliant Mind.

Martinez, Cal., June 3.—Mrs. Pauline Van Den Bosch, wife of an oil worker here, who said that she was a nurse for two years in the home of Nathan Leopold, jr., youthful Chicago confessed slayer, detailed her experiences as such today.

"I do not want to see him hang," she said, "but I believe that he should be given a long term at hard labor. 'Babe,' as we called him, was a lovable child, despite a meanness that manifested itself, not only toward the servants in the Leopold household, but toward his companions and his parents. He was inclined to use bad language, but in spite of his faults, he drew many friends to him. His brilliant mind needs to be dulled a bit, and hard labor will do it."

"Until he was 14 he never laced his own shoes. The servants did it for him and attended to other details of his dress that other boys care for themselves."

"He was a great lover of birds. At one time he came near killing a maid in an adjoining home through accident, while shooting at a robin. The bullet lodged in a window sill but a few inches from where the maid was standing."

"I worked in the Leopold home from Labor day of 1915 to Labor day of 1918. I was constantly with Nathan during his hours of study and play."

"Problems that would take others hours to solve he would solve in a few minutes. He knew many languages even as a child. I have received numerous letters from him since I left and all tell of the progress he is making."

"He had the most wonderful mother I ever knew. If she had lived, this tragedy would never have happened."

"He simply was pampered and spoiled. He was so used to having others wait on him that it must have gone to his head and given him an idea that he was made to be waited on by others, and that, therefore, he was a superior being. But 'Babe' has a good strain in him. He is too bright. He needs to have his light dimmed a little bit, that's all."

Senate Agrees on Adjournment Date of June 7

Resolution Already Passed by House Adopted, but Closing May Be Blocked by La Follette.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 3.—The senate this afternoon adopted the concurrent resolution already passed by the house providing for adjournment of the 68th congress at 7 p. m. on next Saturday, June 7.

This makes the entire congress agreeable to winding up at the end of the week, but adjournment may yet be blocked by a filibuster under the direction of Senator Robert M. La Follette, republican, of Wisconsin, the insurgent leader.

A proposal by Senator La Follette to recess from June 7 to July 9 was defeated by a vote of 53 to 35.

La Follette was supported by 13 other republicans and two farmer-laborites and 29 democrats. His resolution was opposed by 33 republicans and 19 democrats.

After defeating La Follette's motion, the senate also voted down a motion by Senator Francis, republican, of North Dakota, to continue the present session of congress until June 21, instead of June 7. As this date included the time scheduled for the republican convention at Cleveland, it was beaten 52 to 24.

The adjournment resolution itself was finally adopted by a vote of 53 to 35.

MOVIE MAN TELLS OF BLACKLISTING

For two hours today Charles Binderup, former owner of a motion picture circuit, told a jury in federal court how the Omaha Film Board of Trade had convinced to blacklist him.

For this damage, Binderup of Minden, Neb., asks that 18 New York film corporations pay him $750,000. Binderup told a story as was never before related in federal court.

Beginning with the time he got into trouble because of his Orleans house, Binderup told of how the men had made several flights from Scott field.

Indictment for Murder Is Sought

Possible Connection of Franks Kidnapers With Death of Two Others and Mutilation of Third Probed.

Jury Hearing Opens

Chicago, June 3.—The Cook county grand jury today was asked to indict Nathan Leopold, jr., and Richard Loeb, youthful sons of millionaires and confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks, school boy son of another wealthy Chicagoan, for murder and kidnaping for ransom, each crime punishable by death, while authorities investigated the possible connection of the youths with the deaths of two other persons and the mutilation of a third.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, who is presenting the Franks case to the grand jury in person, ordered assistants today to investigate the possible involvement of Leopold and Loeb in the shooting last fall of Frank Louis Tracy, university student, whose body was found with a bullet through the head, and in the mutilation a few days later of Charles Ream, a taxi driver. With a similar end in view, an unofficial investigation was under way of the death several months ago of Melvin Wolf, who left a score year ago of his grand parents to mail a letter and whose body was found in the lake. Relatives were never satisfied with the decision of authorities that he committed suicide.

Eleven witnesses went before the grand jury during the day and more than a score yet remain to be heard. The grand jury reconvenes tomorrow afternoon.

Possible connection between the slaying of Tracy and the youths was found when authorities discovered that the bullet which killed Tracy was a .38 Smith & Wesson caliber, which he said he carried when the Franks boy was kidnaped and which he purchased several months previously. A motive for the shooting of Tracy was never found. He appeared to have been a brilliant student and a popular member of his class. His body was found almost on the campus of the University of Chicago, the institution attended by both Leopold and Loeb and by Tracy. Friends of Tracy said that he knew both the youths.

Authorities Skeptical. A few days after Tracy was slain, Charles Ream, a taxi driver, was attacked and mutilated. Yesterday he was taken to the state attorney's office by newspaper reporters to view Leopold and Loeb and expressed the hope that they would be hanged. The authorities were skeptical until an investigation had been made, however, as Ream had told them shortly after he was attacked that he did not get a full view of his kidnapers, who clubbed him into unconsciousness and carried him away taking him away in an automobile.

The reason for the investigation, the authorities said, aside from Ream's statement that he believed Leopold and Loeb were his assailants, was the similarity of the attack on him and the slaying of the Franks youth.

Among those who appeared before the grand jury today were Jacob Franks, the slain boy's father; Percy Van De Bogert, druggist, from whose store the youths said they telephoned ransom demands to Franks; James C. Kitzan, employed by Van De Bogert; Irving Hanemann, who attended a private school with the Franks boy and who saw Robert start for his home on the day he disappeared and who believes he entered an automobile parked nearby; Dr. Joseph Springer, coroner's physician, who made an examination of the body; Dr. Emil Deutsch, who solved Leopold's pair of horn-rimmed spectacles which the latter lost near the place young Franks' body was concealed and which led to his arrest; Sven Englund, chauffeur at the Leopold home, whose statement that the Leopold car was in the garage the day of the kidnaping when Leopold and Loeb said they were driving about town with it, led to their breakdown and confession; Mrs. Sven Englund, his wife; Elizabeth Salter, maid at the Leopold home, who told authorities that Leopold owned a typewriter of the same make as that on which the ransom letter to Jacob Franks was written; and Mrs. Lucille Smith and her daughter, Elizabeth, who have said they passed an automobile the night of the kidnaping resembling that in which Leopold and Loeb hauled Franks' body to the swamp.

Mr. Crowe said before going before the grand jury that he did not expect indictments to be returned for three days. He said he expected to submit the evidence of the youths and every bit of evidence to the jury in order to make all the information a matter of record. He said this action was also being taken to prevent the possibility of any of the witnesses changing their stories later. Should they do so, he said, they will be charged with perjury and prosecuted.
