Money Not to Bar Boys From Death

Fathers Deny Their Millions Will Be Used to Save Sons From Noose.

Only Fair Trial Sought

Chicago, June 6.—Their millions will not be used to save Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of Robert Franks, from the gallows, a joint statement issued tonight by the fathers of the accused youths, both Chicago millionaires, said.

"Only such defense as that to which every human being is entitled will be provided for their sons," the statement said. "Assuming that the facts in this case are substantially as published, then the only proceeding they favor is a simple, solemn investigation under the law, touching the mental responsibility of their accused sons."

There will be no legal counsel outside the attorneys now representing the accused, with one possible exception, the statement said, and no large sums will be spent for either legal or medical talent, and "in no event will the families of the accused boys use money in any attempt to defeat justice."

By H. C. HAMILTON.

Chicago, June 6.—Dickie Loeb, the soft-eyed, delicate featured youth who is charged with having participated in the brutal slaying of Robert Franks, again today was the cause of a woman's anguish.

First it was his mother who, although assured by her son's voice over the telephone that he was involved, refused to believe him, and moaned pathetically for her boy.

Today a grey-haired old woman climbed wearily to the tier of cells in the county jail where Loeb is imprisoned. Through heavy rimmed, thick called spectacles she peered through the bars seeking the features of the youth within.

"Hello, Mamma," Dickie cheerily called. "It's awfully sweet of you to come."

Then she faintly—a pathetic heap on the floor outside the bars. The old woman was Mrs. Theodore Minner of Kenosha, Wis., Dickie's nurse from the time he was only a few weeks old, until he was four and a half.

Jail attendants rushed to the side of the crumpled and broken woman. They carried her unconscious in the death cell, which is used as an emergency room when there are no prisoners waiting to be hanged. Revived, she began to weep.

"My boy," she sobbed, "oh, my boy. Even his own mother never knew him as I did. She could not have loved him more. When I heard his voice I just couldn't stand it. I couldn't see him through the grating—but I could hear his voice."

"I never have missed one of Dickie's birthday parties. His birthday is June 11; he will be 20. But I thought I'd better come a little earlier this year since Dickie is in so much trouble."

Hardened jail attendants, touched by the misery of the weeping woman, remained with her as she recovered her composure.

The former Loeb nurse was one of the first persons at the jail today—the first day visitors had been received since the boys were removed to the county jail.

Loeb has recovered a great deal of his composure, but Leopold is becoming more nervous. When a jail guard went to him with word that the state's attorney was waiting to see him in the warden's office, he joyfully shouted: "To hell with the state's attorney!" and slapped the guard in the face.

Hoch-Smith Rail Rate Cut Measure Passed by House

Resolution Orders I. C. C. to Make General Survey With View to Reductions and Adjustment.

By Universal Service.

Washington, June 6.—The Hoch-Smith resolution, ordering the Interstate Commerce commission to make a general survey of railroad rates with a view to reductions and adjustment, particularly with regard to farm products, was passed by the house today, 335 to 8.

The resolution, which deals with farm products specifically, previously had passed the senate in a resolution by Senator Smith, democrat of South Carolina, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission.

The combined measure now goes back to the senate, where Smith has assured house leaders it will be passed promptly.

The fight against the resolution was led by Representative Huddleston, democrat of Alabama, who is affiliated with the La Follette progressive group. He charged any reduction in rates on farm products would be at the expense of other payers of freight.

Representative Homer Hoch, republican of Kansas, pointed out it covered all rates and contemplated the elimination of discriminations and increases in all instances, not the addition of more unfair schedules. He cited President Coolidge's address to congress December 6, in which he urged the passage of just this sort of a measure.

The resolution orders the commerce commission make readjustments so as to eliminate injustices and inequalities as between commodities, classes of traffic and localities. The commission is directed in doing this to take into consideration the general and comparative levels in market values of commodities, as indicated by the reasonable period of year.

Such an inquiry may result in both decreases and increases in rates, according to the findings of the commission.

POISON FOUND IN WHEAT KERNELS

Lincoln, Neb., June 6.—Chemical experts at the state department of agriculture reported this afternoon that they had discovered strychnine in brightly colored kernels of wheat sent in for examination by the sheriff of Scotts Bluff county in connection with the recent death of Laura Duff, 19, of Gering, Neb. Miss Duff is said to have died as a result of a suicide pact with Cecil Corbin, 21, also of Gering, who is recovering from poison in a Scotts Bluff hospital.

Previous chemical analysis of the stomach and liver of the deceased girl had failed to show traces of poison, but the wheat examined today contained enough poison to kill white mice kept for experimental purposes at the state laboratories here.

25 Pastors Bodyguard at Funeral

Methodist Church Filled to Overflowing at Last Rites for Bishop Homer Stuntz.

Titus Lowe Breaks Down

Last rites for Bishop Homer C. Stuntz of the Nebraska and Iowa districts, were held Friday afternoon at the First Methodist church in the presence of more than 1,000 persons. Men and women in all walks of life crowded into the church until every pew was taken in the gallery as well as the church proper. Flowers of all colors and kinds were banked at the altar of the church before which the flag-draped casket was placed.

After the reading of the scriptures by Rev. G. T. Notson of Sioux City, Bishop Thomas C. Nicholson of Chicago gave an address in eulogy of the late bishop. His most precious possession at this time, he said, was a letter received from Bishop Stuntz 24 hours after the death of the bishop. In this letter, he said, was the same keenness, even judgment and comprehensive interest in the general conference. No indication of illness was apparent, he said.

"The bishop was a man of great personality," said Bishop Nicholson. "He was incapable of playing any trick or any pettiness. He was human, had a keen wit, and was a gracious and an engaging conversationalist. Perhaps the most noticeable thing about him was his ability to gather young people around him. When I was of the faculty of Cornell college and he was pastor there, Bishop Stuntz was the idol of the students. He knew personally and by name every student on the campus. The bishop made the college town a recruiting place for missionaries."

"The bishop was a great evangelist. He walked and talked with God. He had the faith of everyone because he believed that to lose faith in humanity was to lose faith in God. Everywhere the bishop went he became a man of adaptability. He was a successful man at a job anywhere. Perhaps the only criticism anyone ever made of Bishop Stuntz was that his interests were so scattered. There has never walked in the shoes of any Methodist minister in America a truer American than Bishop Stuntz. He was an unqualified believer in fundamental religion."

Bishop Titus Lowe of Singapore, formerly associated with Bishop Stuntz as pastor here, spoke for the board of foreign missions of the church.

"While I was in India," said Bishop Lowe, "there were men who marveled and wondered at the way in which Bishop Stuntz could grasp religious and political problems of the country. His ability was known everywhere, even into the far hills. While in the Philippines, Bishop Stuntz made a record for himself and his country that has never been equaled. He cleaned out the squalor there and drove opium users away. Everywhere the bishop went the echo of evangelistic work was heard."

"The element of fraternity dominated his personality. His was the kind of democracy that was high. His brain was the type that juggled with problems until they cleared. The bishop was a lover of God. He was swept out of himself when he prayed, in fact he swept all of us out of ourselves and we would forget the man."

"Love for children was remarkable in Bishop Stuntz. I have seen him play with the children on the floor of my home lying flat on his back and allowing the children to pull his hair and mustache."

"But we must all be called some time. It was only 20 months ago that the man who called Bishop Stuntz to India passed away and other prelates have gone before him. He will walk in heaven with the great men and when he meets his Master he will be told that his work has been well done."

As Bishop Lowe spoke in eulogy of his chief, his voice broke often and tears were in his eyes. He was in fact he swept all of us out of ourselves and we would forget the man."

A biographical sketch was given by Dr. C. C. Cissell of the Methodist area office. Dr. J. E. Wagner made the announcements. A quartet from the church choir sang the bishop's favorite hymns.

As the casket was taken from the church Methodist ministers from the Iowa and Nebraska numbering more than 25 acted as honorary pallbearers and formed a bodyguard.

Active pallbearers were Rev. Arthur Atack, Rev. M. Allen Keith, Rev. E. E. Pfouts of Plattsmouth, Neb.; Rev. E. L. Baker of Fremont; Rev. George D. Roberts of Glenwood, Ia.; Rev. E. J. Laird of Silver City, Ia.; Rev. J. O. Corder of Missouri Valley, Ia.; and Rev. R. Burton Shepard of Council Bluffs.

A long funeral cortege of automobile will be to Forest Lawn cemetery, where short services were held at the grave.

Boys Horrify London by Silk Hats of English Clerks

And Englishmen Drop Their Famous Dignity and Urge Wild Westerners to Capture Their Headpieces—Party Will Say "Howdy" to King.

By HAYDEN TALBOT.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

London, June 6.—Two hundred American cowpunchers today gave London the biggest sensation of its life—by sheer noise. Arriving from Tilbury at the Liverpool street station this morning, they clambered aboard the waiting fleet of six charabancs and proceeded to upset Fleet street, the Strand and the West End generally with what the plaintive English call "prairie calls," as this section has never been disturbed before.

Riding in the folded tops in the rear of the charabanc, sextettes of cowboys wielded their ropes and deftly removed innumerable silk hats from the heads of bank clerks and others gathered to welcome them in the narrow streets in the neighborhood of the Bank of England.

One fashionably dressed girl lost a police hat and also her pearl necklace.

When the cowboys wore their roping merrily they cleared their principal eagerly held up their silk hats and dared the expert ropers to gather in the trophies, not one was missed. The greatest interest evinced by the cowboys during their 12-mile trip to Wembley came when they sighted the marble arch entrance to Hyde park and learned that the king rides there daily at 8 o'clock in the morning.

Millerand Ouster From Presidency Expected in Week

Eleven Parliamentary Leaders of Radical Bloc Refuse Premiership at Present Chief's Hands.

By C. F. BERTILLE.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, June 6.—Eleven parliamentary leaders of the radical bloc today refused to accept the premiership at the hands of President Millerand. According to the left bloc newspaper La Nouvelle, "the president has added generally to his constituents" and predicts "grave developments should the crisis persist."

The general opinion is that the president will play his last card when he calls M. Maginot, or a similar partisan to form the government, as such a government would certainly not last for two days. It is considered probable that a new president will be elected in the near future.

Further strong intervention by banks on the Bourse today failed to send the franc up, but did succeed in holding the quotation at a precarious 2 to the dollar.

The three men are alleged to have entered the Metro cafe, becoming abusive to Louis Matonovich, 5402 South Twenty-seventh street, Rudolph Supek, George Hojke and Theodore Andrews. According to Matonovich, they demanded money for food.

Nick Gugas, night cook, offered to feed the trio if they would be orderly. Whereupon, he declares, they directed the abuse toward him. Lawler, he charges, struck him several times in the mouth.

Empty Gun Chambers.

Gugas ran into the street in front of the restaurant shouting for police. Neilsen responded. As he reached the cafe the trio dashed off. Neilsen says Lawler's bullet struck at his jaw, but did not penetrate the officer's shoulder.

Defense Attorneys Question Binderup on Film Profits

Plaintiff in Suit Against Picture Corporation Submits to Cross-Examination—Five Days on Stand.

After five days on the stand in his own behalf, Charles Binderup, who brought suit in federal court against 18 New York film corporations, submitted to cross-examination at 3 Friday afternoon.

Monday will mark the third week of this famous film suit that has traveled for four years from Omaha to the United States supreme court and back to Omaha again for retrial.

Attorneys for the defense began to cross-examine Binderup regarding his books and accounts while he operated his circuit of motion picture houses, which he alleges in his suit, were closed because the defendants conspired to keep him from obtaining any film.

For five days, Binderup has been on direct examination.

Attorneys for Binderup are attempting to show the jury the exact amount of damages incurred during the 10 years by basing it on the yearly earnings of the six theaters owned directly or indirectly by Binderup.

The total annual profit of the six theaters ran about $11,802, with the cost of machinery and other supplies to be added, it is claimed.
