

Tenth Year Dundee Group Celebrate Fourth Together

A Fourth of July that is always spent together will not be missed this year by a neighborhood group of forty-eight and Chicago strains. For the last ten years this certain group has celebrated the national holiday by a large picnic supper on the lawn of one of the families, followed by a fireworks display. If the Fourth is not spent in the immediate neighborhood the same group spends it in the country, where they go by automobile or on a trip to the state fisheries at Gretna, Neb. Although some of the children have grown up since the start of this sort of celebration, the picnic is held. Younger children in the neighborhood often attend. More than 20 persons attend this yearly event.

Among those who have been together with their children on the Fourth of July for a number of years are Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carmichael, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Goodman and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Kimberly.

taste little group to gain access, but if one has the craft, a scenario is an "open sesame."

Mrs. F. H. Myers, armed with "The Feathered Snake," a soon-to-be-filmed story devised by her daughter, Mrs. Marlon Brando, which she was endeavoring to market, found herself possessed of the magic key. During the winter she met socially many of the most interesting characters in the film world, as in Pasadena with her daughter, Betty, a student there.

Through George D. Baker, now a director for Goldwyn, formerly of Beatrice, and well known here, Mrs. Myers presented the scenario written by Mrs. Brando, between the baby's bottles," as the author herself said, for she has three unusually cunning children, the last one a boy of 4 months.

"The Feathered Snake" is a singularly clever story of Aztec life, according to those who have read it.

When Gabby asked if the writer had gone west for the local color, she was told that the encyclopedia, Mrs. Tom Carr, editor of the Van Dusen's office, had served as a guide to correct form for scenario. These, and an active imagination turned the trick.

In only one feature was Mrs. Brando's work found impracticable. In the final fade out, falls into the arms of a Mexican whom she is supposed to wed. Mixed marriages, the directors informed Mrs. Myers, are taboo, in the films, at least, so the finale must be changed in order to give the public "what it wants."

Honors Parents

Mr. and Mrs. Dana Van Dusen gave a small luncheon on Saturday at the University club for Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Spain of Memphis, Tenn., guests of Mrs. J. G. Fisher, Mrs. Tom Carr, editor of the Van Dusen's office, Mrs. Smith of Wilmington, Del.

MAN isn't always the aggressor. One young bachelor who has been considered desirable by designing mothers for several years is being besieged with invitations to luncheons, dinner parties and dances. One of his admirers, a musician, who has returned recently from New York city after several years' study, is so enraptured with this young man's charms that she goes to his place of business at every opportunity and gazes upon him from afar.

Although this young lady has an ardent suitor from Council Bluffs, she ignores his attentions to spend time admiring the young musician. The young man has known this young musician for many years. In fact their families are intimate friends, but he little knows all the attention he has received since her return from the east.
