Bible School.
W. B. Riley of Minneapolis, who is now preaching in McCook, is not only pastor of the First Baptist church of Minneapolis, but is the founder and superintendent of the Northwestern Bible School, located in Minneapolis. It has had but one year of history, having organized one year ago, July 12th.

THE PURPOSE OF THE SCHOOL is to equip men and women in the knowledge of the Bible, missions, sacred music, laws of health, English, and other branches, that they may be efficient Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. secretaries, home and foreign missionaries, pastors, evangelists—and above all, good laymen, if they follow no distinctly religious profession.

TWO YEARS' COURSE
in these studies will graduate one who has enjoyed good early advantages. The school has a faculty of sixteen, every one of whom is a specialist in his department.

Dr. A. J. Frost, the Dean of the Faculty, is a man 6 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 320 pounds, and is capable in proportion to his size. He is famed as a Bible teacher and popular lecturer. From July 15 to September 15 he will travel to the Pacific coast and return in a Bible-teaching and popular lecture tour.

The first year of school work has been phenomenal. One hundred and one students have enrolled. Some of them came from as far west as California, while North and South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, and other western states sent students.

Two young lady evangelists are employed by the school. The past winter they have held meetings lasting from two weeks to three months each in Duluth, Breckenridge, Bemidji, Wadena, and Crookston, Minnesota, and in Fargo, Jamestown and Cooperstown, North Dakota. At present they are engaged in Bottinau, N. D. In all of these cities they had crowded houses, and scores of converts have been added to the churches. Miss Smith, whose home is in Denver, Colorado, is the preacher, and Miss Millard the chorus leader and soloist.

Mr. Riley thinks the next term of the Bible school, which opens October 1st, will be much larger in attendance than the initial year knew. He hopes much for the school from the recent engagement of Prof. Walter E. Painter of Ohio, who will be in entire charge of the music of the school hereafter.

Persons wishing folders and other information can address Mrs. James H. Camp, 1006 Harmon Place, Minneapolis, Minn.

A man who has lived in Nemaha county for 36 years looked over this country three days, recently, and then said: "I never saw such a crop of small grain as this is."

Ed Osbaugh brought out a 10-foot round tank, Tuesday. It will be a great help in holding a good supply of water for stock.

Misses Mabel Wales and Maud Coleman have been on an outing trip up on the Frenchman, near Beverly. They returned Wednesday evening, and report a nice time.

No man or woman in the state will hesitate to speak well of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, after once trying them. They always produce a pleasant movement of the bowels, improve the appetite, and strengthen the digestion. For sale by L. W. McConnell, druggist.

PICTURES IN THE EYE

ONE OF THE MYSTERIES OF THAT COMPLEX ORGAN, THE BRAIN.

Theories as to the Cause of the Living Colored Fanciful and Changing Images That Appear on Lying Down After an Exciting Day.

There are many who will not readily understand what is meant by pictures in the eye, unless it be the imagination, or "mind's eye," of Hamlet, for the power of seeing them is not conferred on all alike. Even those who have seen them from time to time, and probably given them little heed, may not feel altogether sure about the matter without a word of explanation.

Lying in bed, after a tiring or exciting day, with your eyes closed and about to fall asleep, have you never seen, apparently in the eyeball, spots and streaks of colored light, changing their forms and shifting their places? Have you never watched them passing into complicated patterns, like those of the kaleidoscope, or into pretty landscapes quite unknown to you, or into strange faces, now and again very beautiful or angelic, but often as ugly and hideous as goblins from the infernal regions, or, haply, into scenes of action reminding you of the drama, but such as you never saw in real life or upon any stage? These pictures are more alive than the "living pictures" of the music halls. They have the hues of life and art and rival the quick change artist in their protean transformations. The cinematograph that can imitate their ceaseless evolution without a hitch or tremor will be a novelty and make the fortune of its inventor.

What are they? It is one of the mysteries of that marvelous—nay, miraculous—organ, the brain. We must distinguish them from other mysteries of the "border land" which lies between the adjoining states of wideawake and sound asleep.

They are not the images of a reverie or day dream. Whether we recall the past in our waking hours or invent new incidents like a novelist, we can govern them to some extent and are quite aware of their fanciful or mental character. They are not a hallucination in the proper sense of the term. We feel they are subjective, or within us; we suppose them in the eye itself, whereas we believe a hallucination is objective, or without us. An apparition or specter that we take for a reality is a hallucination. The ghost of Hamlet's father, witnessed by several persons, and the spook of his distant brother, seen by Lord Brougham, were probably hallucinations of a "telepathic" order. The picture of Millais where a man starts up and sees a luminous lady at the foot of his bed is a case of hallucination. The "dream image" of the undergraduate who dreamed that he was chased by a green figure and, awakening, saw it in his room was also a hallucination.

Pictures in the eye are more akin to what are called "after images." A gentleman (a doctor, if we are not mistaken), after a fatiguing day, was cheered by the sight of a beefsteak for his dinner, as he very well might, but seemingly the steak made a deep impression on his mind or his digestion, for while he was drowsing with his eyes closed after eating it, he saw it again as vividly as before, and on dropping asleep he saw it a third time in his dream. It was doubtless a substantial steak, not a ghost, and yet it haunted him.

There is, of course, more than one theory of these living pictures in the eye or, as they are called in science, "hypnagogic images." One is that they are formed on the retina of the eye and confined to it. Another is that they are purely mental and formed in the cortex or bark, so to speak, of the cerebrum. As often happens, the truth appears to lie in a combination of both views. Recent observations of M. Yves Delage have put the question to experimental proof. When we look at a bright body—for example, the sun—and shut our eyes we see a colored spot of light, and if we move the eye up or down, to right or left, the spot moves with it. The spot, in fact, is left by the image of the sun upon the retina and therefore moves with it. Now if the hypnagogic images are on the retina they will also move with the eye, and this is what M. Delage has found. Nevertheless the brain also comes into play in forming them.

Corry O'Lanus.

Joseph O'Brien is an Irishman who has traveled all over the world, served in the royal navy and knows everybody. You can never mention a man or a fact or anything else but Joe knows it.

One evening I was sitting in a "decent public" with some friends discussing the recent events.

I closed my remarks with a quotation from "Coriolanus," and just then Joe walked in and happened to hear it.

"Who said that?" said Joe.

"Oh, Coriolanus. Of course you knew him."

"No, I never knew him, but I knew his people. A fine old Roscommon family, the O'Lanus. I knew all his brothers, but I never knew Corry."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Leaf Cutting Bees.

The leaf cutting bees are near relatives of the honey and bumble bees, which they closely resemble. They derive their name from the habit you have observed of cutting out bits of leaves for their cells. The circular pieces are for the ends of the cells and the oblong pieces for the sides. These cells are usually in burrows cut into wood, for some of the leaf cutting bees, like the carpenter bees, have the talent of cutting holes into wood.—St. Nicholas.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time, and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or a limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises, and burns, it causes them to heal quickly and without maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. For sale by L. W. McConnell.

DR. GAGE and a representative of a Lincoln paint and glass house entertained the natives with a few informal automobile races, Wednesday afternoon, on the city streets. There was a dash of excitement in the contest, and the spectators were not a few.
