Death of a Public Spirited Citizen.

The death of George Berry has effected McCook hearts as has few deaths since McCook has had a being and suffered the approach and unstayable destruction of the grim monster Death.

The following obituary and tribute is from the pen of one better able to pay the willing tribute of respect than the publisher, and we reproduce it in full:

George B. Berry, was born in Macon county, Illinois, May 2nd, 1858. His departure from this life occurred at 12:45, this morning, (July 17th, 1906,) at the age of 47 years, 2 months and 15 days.

At the age of two years, his parents moved to Cass county, Ill., and located near Virginia. At the age of ten years, his parents moved into the village, just mentioned, where George attended public school until he was eighteen years old, when he entered the post office as assistant postmaster of his own town. About a year later he went to Chicago and was employed in the wholesale book store of M. A. Maxwell & Co.

In 1877 he came west and located in McCook and engaged in the book and stationery business, selling out in 1890, to our brother the late Dr. S. L. Green, and returning to Chicago again entered the employ of Maxwell & Co., remaining with them a number of years. Later he returned to McCook and entering the drug business with L. W. McConnell.

About four years ago he sold his interest to Mr. McConnell and accepted the position of deputy in the county clerk's office of this county, which position he held at the time of his death.

For some time our brother's health has been failing, his unsteady steps we all noticed. A recent trip to Omaha to consult a specialist regarding his health was kept, for a time, from relatives and friends; but the last straw that broke down the already overworked brother, was his over exertion a couple weeks ago in the heated sun, for the comfort and lightening the burdens of others.

Mr. Berry has been confined to his bed since the night of the fourth of this month, his condition becoming critical and it seemed like hoping against hope for him to recover. All that skill, science, love and prayers could do was done, but of no avail, and some days ago Mr. Berry realized that his hours were numbered and attended to his business interests and Sunday made arrangements for his funeral services and the place of burial.

The large assembly of friends, at this very busy time, tells with what respect, esteem he was held by all. George Berry was an honest, honorable and upright man. The county loses a trustworthy officer, the city a useful citizen, the family a beloved brother.

The Master's chair is vacant,
Where George did once preside;
But the love, we had for this brother,
In our hearts doth still abide.

The gavel lies there silent,
And beside it, the compass and square;
But he, who once used them,
We commend to a Father's care.

The level and plumb of uprightiness
And the sprig of acacia so green;
Brightens a hope that burns in our bosom,
Of a life beyond that which now intervenes.

His column is fallen and broken,
But the mortar he spread is still here,
And we trust in the Lion of Judah,
Who cometh and casteth out fear.

Though the silver cord be loosed
And broken be the golden bowl,
Our trust we've placed in God,
Who has taken the immortal soul.

My brothers, we're erecting a building,
Each stone should be laid with care;
That when we are called from our labor,
We may have a building, a temple up there.

My brethren, he, our presiding master,
Who provided for so many funeral services,
is now the subject of this solemn occasion. He who always was first with his service in time of sickness and death is now the victim of the enemy of mankind. He who bore the flowers in days so soon gone, is now the recipient of the token we bring. He who so often has laid the white apron and evergreen on the coffin of a fallen brother, now in like manner receives these symbols from our hands. He who only last Easter in this church read the roll of the fallen knights, is now with that white plumed company. He but two weeks ago in company with his brethren walked down yonder aisle, today we follow his body and coffin down that same aisle.

Our brother was serving his 2nd term as Master of McCook Lodge of M. M. He was a member of the Chapter and Commandery, and of the Shrine in Lincoln.

George has told me many times "that he loved these verses for a service of this kind," they being the ones that were recited at the funeral of his brother Charles:

"Sunset and evening star
And one clean call for me,
And may there be no moaning of the bar
When I put out to sea."

But such a tide or moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam;

When that which drew from out the boundless deep,
Turns again home,
Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark.

For though from out one borne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far:
I hope to meet my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

A father, mother, three brothers and sister Rachel, proceeded him to the spirit world. There are left behind to mourn his loss three sisters in Illinois, one in Arkansas. Mrs. Lem Heffelfinger of Red Oak, Iowa, who was present here. Mrs. L. W. McConnell of this city, and his only surviving brother Rev. H. H. Berry.

His remains will depart tomorrow morning on train No. 12 for Virginia, Illinois, to rest beside the remains of his father, mother, brother Charlie and sister Rachel. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. McConnell will accompany them.

We bid thee a long farewell, Brother George.

WHO CALLS THE DEAD.
Dead as a knight is when he doth but lay
Aside his armor with battle won.
Dead as a knight is who hath gone away,
In better mail, beneath another sun.

Dr. Fowler Becomes a Benedict.
The Englewood (Ill.) News of recent date announces the wedding of Dr. Alfred Hugh Fowler and Miss Josephine Smith Bates, both of Chicago. The doctor is a son of Mrs. Josephine Fowler, a former resident of our city. The bride is a teacher in the Chicago schools.

Both are most estimable young people. The doctor is an alumnus of Chicago university and of Rush medical college. Here is joy and success to Fred and his bride.

A Slight Fire, Last Friday.
A fire in a box car in rear of Phillip Blatt's stable, last Friday afternoon, caused an alarm and a run for the department. In a few minutes after water was thrown the fire was under control. The damage was slight. The box car was used by several colored gentlemen as a domicile. Their property loss was also slight.
