Filed Voluntary Petition.

Thursday of last week, William Schroeder, a merchant of Eustis, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the McCook division of the federal court. The papers were forwarded to Lincoln by Clerk of the Court Rodgers, and on Monday the same were signed by Judge T. C. Munger and returned to the clerk here.

The Great Western

It follows most closely every law of nature, assisted by artificial forces in the most effective way. It is Ball-bearing which means easy running—low down Large Supply Tank—The Crank is just the right height to make the machine turn easy. Gears run in oil—practically self-oiling and has wide base to catch all the waste. Made as accurately as a watch.

Increases your yield of cream and butter $15 per cow each year. Ask your dealer about The Great Western and don't let him work any substitute game on you. It's your money you are going to spend, you should insist on having the best. The Great Western is the world's best.

Resolutions of Respect to T. D. Watson.

Whereas, the All-Wise Providence has seen fit to call our friend and neighbor Thomas D. Watson to appear in that great beyond,

Therefore, be it resolved, that the Woodman camp No. 5416 of which he was a consistent member has lost a valued friend and worker and one who on all occasions tried to the best of his ability to uphold, protect and promote the interests of the lodge. That he was esteemed by all of his neighbors for his sterling qualities and straight forward methods.

May it be further resolved, that this camp express its sincere sympathy for the deep sorrow of the wife and children in this great loss of husband and father.

Be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the record of the lodge and also a copy sent to the bereaved family.

Charged With Car Theft.

George and Albert Kenner of Bartley were before Squire Berry, last Friday, charged with stealing goods from Burlington cars. They are brothers and are said to be plasterers by occupation. Considerable loot is said to have been found in their possession, when arrested a few days previously, by Detectives Schmidt of Lincoln and Davenport of Denver, both members of the Burlington's secret service force. Both detectives were present at the trial. Squire Berry bound the men over to the next term of district court, placing their bonds at $300 respectively. The men are now languishing in the county jail, not being able to date to secure bondsmen.

Farewell to Bessie Smith.

The King's Daughters of the Methodist church met at the home of their Sunday-school teacher, Mrs. S. E. Calen, Tuesday afternoon, and extended a farewell to Miss Bessie Smith, a member, who has been making her home with Mr. C. H. Meeker for the past year. Miss Bessie has endeared herself to many during her sojourn in McCook and her friends and classmates were loth to have her return to her California home. The Sunday school class expressed their sentiment in the form of a beautifully-bound copy of Longfellow's poems.

Playing the Deuce.

As the number of "Merry Widow" hats increase, it is claimed the attendance of men in churches decreases. In other words the "Merry Widow" headgear is not to be enumerated among the "means of grace." Others are inveighing against the "creations" of the season because where previously six could be seated now but four can wedge in. Again others are attempting to require women wearing their "loves of bonnets" to church, to check them in at the cloak rooms. So the "Merry Widows" are playing the deuce generally.

Federal Court Will Try.

The supreme court of the United States, Monday, refused a writ of mandamus requested by the state of Nebraska, in the case of that state against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad compelling United States District Judges W. H. and T. C. Munger to remand back to the supreme court of Nebraska the suit begun by the state to enjoin the debtor company from charging for its intrastate traffic more than the rate fixed by the state statute.

O'Connell—Terwilliger.

Last Sunday afternoon, Mr. William T. O'Connell and Miss Caroline L. Terwilliger, both of Hastings, Nebraska, were united in holy matrimony in the Episcopal rectory, Rev. E. R. Earle officiating. Mr. O'Connell is a commercial traveler for an electric company and has his headquarters in Hastings, and Miss Terwilliger has been a teacher in the Hastings Business college. They will make their home in Hastings.

Where the Value Is.

Only two worthful items enter into the value of advertising, namely, quantity and quality,—that is how many and how good. THE MCCOOK TRIBUNE is in a field by itself, locally, on these two points. We challenge and invite inspection and comparison. We can give you from two to three times the value for your money that any other Red Willow county publication can offer you.

Attendance Not Up to Expectations.

Under Epworthian auspices, Monday evening, the Columbia Tennesseans gave their concert in the Methodist church. The concert was fairly up to expectations, but not so the attendance, which was limited in part at least by the fact that other attractions and interests occupied the attention of many, that evening.

Death of Mr. Hollister.

Word from Miss Ida Hollister, an early resident of McCook, announces the death of her aged father, recently, resultant of an attack of whooping cough. The remains were taken from Ashland to Denver for cremation.

A BILL IN CONGRESS.

The Method by Which a Measure Is Transformed Into Law.

On a day set for the consideration of the bill the house goes into committee of the whole. A chairman appointed by the speaker presides. The bill is read by sections and clauses after general debate has closed, and any member may offer amendments. All voting in committee is by rising. The yeas and nays are not taken.

When the bill has been gone through and all amendments have been voted upon, the committee rises and the chairman reports the bill back to the house, with the amendments. The house then votes upon them either singly or in gross and by yeas and nays if they are ordered to be taken.

The bill is then ordered to be engrossed—that is, written out in a fair hand and just as it is after being amended—and to be read a third time. As it is usually already engrossed it is at once read the third time—by title, as before—and passed.

The clerk takes the bill to the senate, by which body it is referred to the finance committee. In due time the committee, if it sees fit, and not otherwise, reports the bill back to the senate, with propositions to amend. In the senate the bill is considered "as in committee of the whole," the amendments of the finance committee and other volunteer amendments are accepted or rejected, they are again voted upon when the bill is reported to the senate from the committee of the whole, and the bill is passed.

As the two houses are not agreed upon the bill, a committee of conference, usually consisting of three members of each branch of congress, is appointed. The committee, when it has come to an agreement, reports to each house, and the acceptance of the report is the final stage of the bill in its passage.

The measure is now "enrolled"—that is, it is printed in large, open type upon a parchment—and is taken first to the house, where it is signed by the speaker; then to the senate, where the vice president signs it, and finally to the president, and makes the bill a law.

Congress is notified that the bill has been approved, and the original copy of the act is deposited in the department of state.—Edwin Tarrisse in Harper's Weekly.

Full of Reminiscence.

At the different army stations in the west it is the practice for the officers on leaving their post for some distant station to sell off everything they do not care to keep. In connection with this custom in "Reminiscences of a Soldier's Wife" Mrs. Ellen Biddle tells an amusing story.

There was a very estimable woman living at the garrison, a veritable Mrs. Malaprop. She told us of some jewelry she had lost, and among the things was a topaz chain with a beautiful "pendulum."

The lady held an auction before she left, after her husband's death, and when some silver plated knives were put up for sale she rose and in a sobbing voice said: "Oh, dear, no! I cannot sell them! They have been in dear John's mouth too often!"

Lasting.

"Your suggestion," said a depositor to the bank receiver, "offers very cold comfort. It is a bachelor's comfort—that is to say, no comfort at all."

"What," said a bachelor to a Benedict, "only married a year and already so blue?"

"Ah, but," groaned the Benedict, "I never imagined that a wife would prove so expensive."

"The bachelor patted the blue married man on the back in a consolatory way.

"Yes," he said, "a wife is an expensive article, that is true. But then you must remember that she lasts a very long time."

Aristocracy.

What subsists today by violence continues tomorrow by acquiescence and is perpetuated by tradition till at last the hoary abuse shakes the gray hairs of antiquity at us and gives itself out as the wisdom of ages. Thus the clearest dictates of reason are made to yield to a long succession of follies. And this is the foundation of the aristocratic system at the present day. Its stronghold, with all those not immediately interested in it, is the reverence of antiquity.—Edward Everett.

Satan Terrified.

There is as great genius displayed in advertising as in the higher branches of literature. No problem baffles the modern advertising man.

In the window of a little book store in Eighth avenue, New York, was recently heaped a great pile of Bibles marked very low. Never before were Bibles offered at such a bargain, and above them all in the letters was the inscription:

Satan trembles at the sight Bibles sold so low for thank.

Well Circumcised.

"Is my son getting well grounded in the classics?" asked the anxious millionaire.

"I would put it even stronger than that," replied the private tutor, "I may say that he is actually stranded on them."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Certainly Would.

City Man (to villager)—"Wouldn't it open your eyes if you were to look across at that lot there and see one of our city skyscrapers covering it? Village Man—Waal, I guess I would, see'n as I've got twenty head o' cattle grazin' there.—Bohemian.

Wait is a hard word to the hungry.—German Proverb.

Odd Use For Bread.

Perhaps the most novel use to which bread is put may be seen in one of our great watch factories, where more than forty loaves of fresh bread are required each day. An official of the watch factory is quoted as saying:

"There is no secret regarding the use of bread in this factory, and I am willing to tell all I can concerning it. From the earliest times in the history of watchmaking it has been the custom of watchmakers to reduce fresh bread to the form of dough. This is done by steaming and kneading. They then use this dough for removing oil and chips that naturally adhere in course of manufacture to pieces as small as a part of a watch. There are many parts of a watch, by the way, that are so small as to be barely visible to the naked eye. The oil is absorbed by this dough and the chips stick to it, and there is no other known substance which can be used as a wiper without leaving some of its particles attached to the thing wiped. This accounts for the continued use of bread dough in the watchmaking industry."—American Food Journal.

A Quaint Compliment.

On Mark Twain's seventy-second birthday a Hartford clergyman said of him:

"No wonder he finds happiness in old age. All the aged would be happy if they were as sympathetic and as kind as he. He is continually going out of his way to please others, and the result is that he is continually pleasing himself. Listen, for instance, to the quaint compliment he paid me the last time he came to hear me preach. He waited for me at the church door at the service's end, and shaking me by the hand, said gravely:

"I mean no offense, but I feel obliged to tell you that the preaching this morning has been of a kind that I can spare. I go to church, sir, to pursue my own train of thought, but today I couldn't do it. You interfered with me. You forced me to attend to you and lost me a full half hour. I beg that this may not occur again."

Philosophy of Descartes.

Turning the mental vision inward, as Bacon turned it outward, Descartes watched the operations of the soul as an object in a microscope. Resolved to believe nothing but upon evidence so convincing that he could not by any effort refuse his assent, he found as he inspected his beliefs that he could plausibly doubt everything but his own existence. Here at last was the everlasting rock, and this was revealed in his own consciousness; hence his famous "cogito ergo sum" (I think, therefore I am). Consciousness, said he, is the basis of certitude. Interrogate it and its clear replies will be serene, for all clear ideas are true. Descartes in the depths of the mind is the Idea of the infinite perfection—the mark of the workman impressed upon his work. Therefore God exists.—New York American.

Science and Sound Fact.

"The workings of the human mind when asleep are full of wonder," remarked a scientist who was paying a visit to an acquaintance. "Have you ever started up from a sound dreamless sleep, with every sense on the alert and with your whole being thrilled with a vivid yet indelible feeling that something was wrong and instant action required?"

"Often," replied his hostess, "and in nearly every case I have found that I was awakened by the fumbling of my husband's key at the front door!"

Impertinent.

Speaking of a man noted for his impertinence, an acquaintance said: "Blank's impudence was second only to that of a waiter I heard about the other day."

"Look here, waiter," said a guest, "this fish is not cooked properly."

"I know it, sir," said the waiter, "but you told me it was for your wife."

Well, what of that?

"Well, what of that?" asked the surprised guest.

"Why," said the waiter, "I knew that if the lady was your wife she couldn't be very particular."

Realism in Art.

Two artists were boasting how they could paint. "Do you know," said one, "I painted a sixpence on the ground one day, and a beggar nearly broke his fingers trying to pick it up?" "That's nothing to what I did," said the other. "I painted a lump of mutton on a stone, and it was so realistic that a dog ate half the stone before he found out his mistake!"

His Narrow Escape.

"I tell you, the closing of the Seventh National was a mighty close call for me."

"How was that?"

"Why, a crowd had advised me to put my money in it."

"And you took their advice?"

"No, but I had had any money."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Net the Kind He Wanted.

"Liza! What can you do to hunt restskins."

"Yes?"

"But he didn't get any until his father had netted what he wanted."—Harper's Weekly.

Unpleasant.

"My face is my fortune, sir," she said.

"Well," he replied, "poverty is no disgrace, but it's awfully inconvenient at times."

The Wicked Husband.

"Why does a man lie to his wife?" asks a woman writer. Dear me, does he?—Duluth Herald.

A moral, sensible, well bred man will not insult me. No other can.—Cowper.
