Employees Organize.

On Wednesday night about fifty employees gathered at Ganschow hall. The meeting was called to order at eightthirty by J. B. Wade, who stated the object of the meeting as being simple; that it is as a protective measure that he was asked by the State Railway Protective Association to call this meeting and introduced C. D. Hopkins, member | helped than any other. of the O. R. C. from the Northwestern R. R.

Mr. Hopkins read an extract from the report of the interstate commerce commission showing how much the earnings had fallen off in earning capacity of thirty-one per cent of the railroads of the United States; 340,000 employees idle or 1,500,000 people without their us ual means of livelihood. A side track reaching from Chicago to Sau Francisco would not hold idle cars and locomotives. He said, "It makes no particular difference what originally caused this, but threatened drastic ruling and adverse legislation had a tendency to destroy public confidence, and in that way harm business materially. Fifteen per cent reduction on a suit of clothes would make the saving to consumers so small that the retailer could never allow the consumer the benefit of it." Mr. Hopkins explained the by-laws of the organization of United States Railway Employees' Protective association and explained they had been drawn upon a purely democratic principle; that is, that every employee has a right to protection. Our feature particularly noticeable is, that the officials of the companies have been made ineligible to membership. The treasurers are placed under bond and every safeguard is placed around the funds of the association. Fees for admission for all earning sixty dollars or less, twenty-five cents per year; all earning more than sixty dollars, fifty cents

Mr. Ryan, chairman of the executive committee of the association, was next introduced and explained that the farmers' associations, commercial clubs and employees' associations are identical; that it is not to the interest of any of these to quarrel with the other; that when one is prosperous all three are, and a prosperous year to the farmer is just as prosperous to the dealers' association and employees get their share. He called attention to the fact that the text of the employees' association is simply fairness. Mr. Ryan explained that an editor of a paper from O'Neill had asked to have his name withdrawn from the petition because "It had become so wide" and "for other reasons" not stated; he explained that because the need for some such move was so generally felt this man thought the roads must be behind it. He also explained that the railroad employees are the largest class of labor in the country and are the only ones not protected by the protective tariff.

Mr. Mecomber was next introduced. He brought out a dozen reasons why the formation of such an association was a necessity today. His reasons were logical and met with applause at different times. He said that the employees had a very fair treatment and Garrett, Mr Wm were met by very friendly spirit by the railway commission. Mr. Mecomber called attention to the increase of the valuation of the O'Fallon branch of the U. P., where there is only enough business to keep busy only about two cars a Broyles, Mr J C week. He blamed the release of the contract of the U.P. headquarters building at Omaha on the unsettled condition, because of the uncertainty as to what was going to happen to the railroads. He asked particularly that in the future the voters pay more attention to the commissioners whose names appear at the botton of the ballot. He also called attention to the reception tendered any one who tried to help the employees before the last legislature.

F. H. Crosby was next introduced and took up the matter of local organization and explained the method of organizing local bodies at each division point to keep all the employees in touch with the work of the executive committee. He said that one year ago he was the conductor on the pay car at Havelock; again two months ago he had the same place. It was an object lesson he said; the same man, who, one year ago drew $125 a month, this year drew sixty to sixty-five dollars. He told a pithy story which typified the necessity of taking fact from any part of the country where action, which was received with enthus-

After the object and organization had been explained, several employees of the local shops spoke and enthusiastically talked of the prospects before them. A local association was formed to act with the state association and work to the interest of the employees of the state, represented by all of the roads doing business in this state.

Mr. Wade talked about the feeling engendered by the adjustment of the old rebate system and also by the taking away of the free passes from the politician. He retold the part of the hearing before the commission, taking particularly the complaints of Senator Sibley and his reason as stated to the commission for filing them.

A great deal of enthusiasm was aroused by the meeting and the prospects are that McCook is going to have a good local organization. Several local employees made very pertinent and timely suggestions as to efficiency and the general spirit was that protection was necessary. On account of the lateness of the hour, the local employees elected only a president and secretary, leaving the remainder of the organization to be elected at a future meeting to be held. A very pertinent question came up as to the results to accrue to the lower paid class, but it was satisfactorily demonstrated that they are to be even more

J. B. Wade was elected president of the local organization, and Lloyd Woods, secretary. The meeting closed to meet again at an early date. Com.

Attorney Nolled Both Cases. The cases against George Kinner and Albert Kinner, both of whom have been in the county jail for several weeks, charged with robbing Burlington box cars at Bartley, were nolled by County Attorney Reeder, last week, on the theory that there was not enough evidence to convict them in district court and that the county was therefor being put to a large and unnecessary expense.

Both were immediately rearrested, charged with petty larceny, to which they pleaded guilty and were fined by Justice Berry $20.00 and costs, sentence being suspended.
