

ADVICE TO WOMEN.

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces get rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mrs. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist, known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systemic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities. Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexion. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store, The Rexall Store, L. W. McConnell.

Baffled. Two brothers were once at Count von Moltke's house at an evening party. Both were captains of the general staff. The general came up to a group of gentlemen, one of whom was one of the brothers. After joining in the conversation he said to the latter: "Just tell me who is that tall officer near the fireplace on the other side I forget his name." "That's my brother, your excellency," was the answer. A smile stealing over the general's face suggested the idea that he had not obtained the information he wished. Some time after the general went to another group of people and there joined the officer whose name he had inquired. Suddenly the others saw him turning away, with the same smile on his face. Afterward, when they inquired from the young officer what the general had asked him, he replied: "He asked me who that officer was over there." "And what did you say?" "I said that he was my brother?" The general gave up inquiring the name of the two brothers for that evening.

Wanted It to Take. Mrs. B. believed in infant baptism, but for some reason that rite was not performed for Tommy till he was some four or five years old. While the ceremony was in progress the mother was very much gratified with Tommy's behavior. He seemed duly impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and remained with bowed head for some time after the sprinkling had been done. "The angel!" exclaimed the mother. "The little dear!" said a good sister as she went up to give him a "God bless you" and a pat on the head. But just as her hand was descending with that benediction a very wrathful and unangelic countenance was turned upon her, a pugilistic little fist delivered a paralyzing blow on her cheeks, and the indignant Tommy exclaimed: "You get away from here!"

Of course he was led out in disgrace and questioned by his horrified mother. "Why, don't you know she would 'a' rubbed all the baptizing water off before it would 'a' had time to soak in?" explained Tommy, who from his point of view was fully justified.—Los Angeles Times.

Buffoonery in "Hamlet." The buffoonery once tolerated in provincial theaters is illustrated in an anecdote set forth in the memoirs of Barry Sullivan. Wright, who was the first gravedigger, prepared himself to take the horse by storm by having incased his person within a dozen or more waistcoats of all sorts of shapes and patterns. When about to commence the operation of digging the grave for the fair Ophelia Wright began to unwind by taking off waistcoat after waistcoat, which caused uproarious laughter among the audience. But as fast as he relieved himself of one waistcoat Paul Bedford, the second gravedigger, incased himself in the castoff vests, which increased the salvos of laughter, for as Wright was getting thinner Paul grew fatter and fatter. Wright, seeing himself outdone, kept on the remainder of the waistcoats and went on with his part quite crestfallen.

An Awkward Selection. The first baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how while on circuit with Justice Rook they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be, or must not innocence appeal to heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed, your gripping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed." By this time most of the adults had woken up to the application of the psalm and remained silent, allowing the children to continue the second verse.—London Tatler.

A Soft Answer. Jewel—Arrah, Jimmy, why did I marry ye? Just tell me that, for it's meself that's had to maintain ye ever since the blessed day that I became your wife. "Swate jewel," replied Jimmy, not relishing the charge, "and it's meself that hopes I may live to see the day when you're a widow weeping over the cold sod that covers me. Then I'll see how you'll get along without me, toney."—London Tit-Bits.

Needed Repairs. "Does your typewriter need repairs?" asked the mending tinker as he entered the office. "It would seem so," replied the employer. "She has just gone across the street to consult a dentist."

More Modern. "Tommy, you have written this sentence. 'The pen is mightier as the sword,' and it is incorrect. How should it be changed?" "Pen ought to be changed to typewriter, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

ried out, the production will be one of the most important of the season. Of the Manhattan list of novelties Massenet's "Hérodiade" was definitely scheduled for the grand position of opening attraction of the season. Of the rest those which in all probability will be given are Richard Strauss'

OLIVE FREMSTAD.

"Elektra" and "Fenestrat" and Massenet's "Sapho" and "Cendrillon." Of the operas announced this year for the first time in the preliminary proclamation of the Metropolitan management those which have the best chance of production seem to be Brunau's "L'Attaque du Moulin," Leroux's "Le Chemineau" and Franchetti's "Germania." Humperdinck's "Königskinder"—which means "Children of Kings," not "The Children of the King" or "The King's Children," as it has often been erroneously called—though announced tentatively last year, may be considered as entirely new, since when spoken of as a possible feature of the last Metropolitan season it was known to be only partially ready, and the probability that it would not be finished in time for production until this year was pointed out. Now, however, it is all ready.

Grand opera in Boston has received a new impetus this year, the beautiful new Grand Opera House in the Hub having just been completed. Much thought, much time and enterprise have been devoted to the upbuilding of this theater. Famous architects have designed it. Men of public spirit and munificence, foremost among them Eben D. Jordan, have opened their purses to provide it with the money needed at the outset to assure its life.

It begins to look as if within a year America intends to establish a chain of opera houses like those which all the smaller continental cities possess. Boston and Philadelphia already own opera houses. Recently it has been announced that John C. Shaffer of Chicago and Andreas Dippel of New York, acting on behalf of a group of leading Chicago and New York business men, have purchased the lease of the Auditorium theater in Chicago from Klaw & Erlanger and will give a season of twenty weeks of opera, commencing in the fall of 1910.

The opera company in Chicago will be absolutely independent of all other organizations, but will be affiliated with the Metropolitan Opera company of New York. It will have its own conductors, artists, orchestra, chorus, ballet, scenery, costumes, etc.—in short, its own complete independent artistic and business administration—and will give a season of twenty weeks of opera, beginning in the fall of 1910.

Many of the old favorites are here again for the grand opera season of 1909-10 and also a number of new ones of whom much is expected. Among those who will be heard this year are Fremstad, Gerville-Reach, Caruso, Gaski, Farrar, Gripon, Scotti, Garden, Zenatello, Tetraxini and D'Alvarez. The new tenor, Frederico de Carassa, is a Spaniard and the brother of the mayor of San Sebastian. John McCormack, the new Irish tenor, is only twenty-five and looks even younger, with a frank, boyish expression and a manner of speaking which renews the traditions, so often forgotten, of the Irish barney. He hopes naturally to succeed in opera in America, and if he does he wants to thank Mme. Tetraxini, whom he considers his fairy godmother. He has sung much abroad with her.

Among the singers who were heard in Oscar Hammerstein's educational grand opera, which recently closed in New York, was D'Alvarez, who became so popular that she has been engaged for the present season. She has a wonderful soprano voice.

Opening of Grand Opera

ONCE again the grand opera season is with us, and with many of the world's famous singers now in this country the prospects are for the most successful year in the history of music in America. Not only in New York, with its great Metropolitan and Manhattan grand opera houses, but in Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and other large cities, is grand opera now heard, and it has reached a point of progress in the United States where it will soon become just as thoroughly an institution as it is in the countries of Europe.

Grand opera in the United States is perhaps a century old. The first notable singer who came to these shores to show the barbarians of the new world the ultimate possibilities of the vocal art was the great Malibran. Then came Jenny Lind, Patti, Nilsson, Brignoli, Mario, Campanini, Carl Formes, etc., but all of them had to be billed like a circus in order to get patronage.

In fact, it was the most noted showman in the history of the new world who handled the tour of Jenny Lind when the "Swedish Nightingale" came to the United States. Lind had an enormous success, but it can hardly be called a gain.

for the cause of music, for a large number of her hearers were attracted by the excitement. The coming of all the other noted song birds down to within, say, a couple of decades ago was attended by similar manifestations, and it cannot be that their appearances helped much toward the creation of a higher taste.

It was not until grand opera began to take on some suggestion of permanency that a clientele worth while began to come to the front. The Metropolitan Opera House, in New York, was the first institution of the kind. Its scale was lavish. It represented the toy of a number of fabulously wealthy New Yorkers. For their pleasure Mapleson, Abbey, Schoffel, Grau and Conried ransacked the musical capitals of Europe and captured the greatest song birds in the world. It had formerly been the experience of Americans in hearing opera to have one great singer and the remainder of the cast made up of the saddest apologies.

But the Metropolitan Opera House altered that. Every role had to be in the hands of the most noted song bird in his or her especial line.

For the first time came the phenomenal lineup, which at one period included Gerster, Campanini, Scarpelli, Maurel, Tamagno, Nannetti, Galassi and Di Anna; then, later, a new regime with Melba, Eames, Calve, Nordica, Sembrich, Garden, the two De Reszkes, Plancon, Maurel, Caruso, Schumann-Heink, etc., and today the world's greatest singers are heard in America and receive immense sums for their work.

The lists of new operas to be produced during this season by the Metropolitan and Manhattan opera houses show that New York will have this winter a more varied supply of opera than ever before in its history. The

GERALDINE FARRAR.

Metropolitan's list includes a number of operatic works to be given at the New theater, which make it all the more imposing. Ever since "Hansel und Gretel" acclaimed everywhere as one of the most charming of all operas, placed Humperdinck on a pinnacle of musical fame opera goes here have looked forward with keen anticipation to another opera by him. There can be no doubt that if the plan to produce "Königskinder" is car-
