IS DEAN OF ALL INDIANS

Sitting Elk, Mighty Warrior Who Never Killed White Man, Is Oldest Redman.

Oldest of all Indians in the United States, Sitting Elk, former chief of the Ogallala Sioux, is visiting in Denver, the guest of the white man, against whom he always refused to make war.

For almost a century he has been a leader among his people, but, wiser than other chiefs, he early realized that the red man was doomed and at every opportunity he counseled peace with the palefaces.

He could well afford to do so, for his people knew he was no coward.

"I have never killed a white man," he proudly boasts, "but I have fought many battles, and I have done many brave deeds in my long life of ninety-six years. I was but seventeen when I waylaid and killed my first enemy. That was a very brave deed. Since then I have killed many, many enemies."

Sitting Elk is a total abstainer. He smokes cigarettes, but insists he has none of the other bad habits of the white man. He is childless, the last of his line, but he expects to live for many years more—to be hale and hearty long after he has passed the century mark.

Sitting Elk moves tall and stately among his kinsmen, and puffs his pipe with a complacency unruffled by thoughts of any immediate journey to the happy hunting grounds.

Bright of eye, keen of mind, the old warrior dons paint and feathers for his appearance with the younger members of his tribe in the headlong dashes across the amphitheater at the stock yards, and rides with an abandon which defies the spectator to single him from the reckless redskins who have but one-fourth his years to their credit.

HOUSE WITH NO STAIRS

Pittsburg Man Plans New Residence Embodying Some Very Unique Features.

The new residence which is being built on the Clearview plan at Mount Lebanon, Pittsburg, for A. G. Smith of Pittsburg, has some features which are unique and probably not embodied in any other residence in this section.

The house is without stairways or steps, the slope idea having been substituted. The grade of this slope is about ten per cent. Entering from the veranda to the large reception hall one's attention is directly drawn to the unique method employed of reaching the upper floor. In the living room, which is probably 26x35 feet, a large concrete fireplace and mantel is the principal feature, with a wide bay window. There are no corners to the house, as each of the four ends of the residence are of the bay type.

The only wood used in the construction of the building is to be found in the door sills, windows and floors, the latter of which will be hardwood. The walls of the building are of cement, finished with white cement trimmings. Even the two bathrooms are fitted with cement tubs. In all there are ten rooms. The roof is of concrete, surrounded with a parapet, the porch roofs are of the same type, thus affording second story porches in the front and rear, both of which are fitted up with concrete flower troughs in which blooming flowers are now to be seen even in the unfinished condition of the house. On the front second story porch a fountain is arranged.—Engineering Record.

Durability of Steel.

It has been shown that nearly all the failures of steel occur very early in its history. If a plate or bar of mild steel lasts for a year in service, it may be trusted to last for many years. The most injurious thing is continued bending backward and forward, as in what is called the "panting" of a boiler end. As one authority puts it, steel has a somewhat "tumultuous youth," but "in middle age it is trustworthy, and in old age beyond reproach." In regard to corrosion there is a difference of opinion, some holding that steel corrodes more readily than iron.—Harper's Weekly.

Gathering Fruit.

When gathering fruit, peaches or pears, a clever woman invented a simple device that insured the plucking of fruit without danger of bruising it.

The top was taken off a tin tomato can and the can attached to the end of a broomhandle, so that it formed a cuplike arrangement.

The can is put up underneath the fruit and a slight shake given to detach it from the tree, letting it fall into the can, which is lowered and emptied quickly. Put a can on the end of a clothes prop if the fruit hangs high.

"George Sand."

It was from Leonard Jules Sandeau, the celebrated French novelist and dramatist, born at Aubusson a century ago, that another and far greater writer derived her nom de guerre.

When a young student in Paris Sandeau made the acquaintance of Mme. Dudevant, and during a short-lived friendship they collaborated in a novel, "Rose et Blanche," which was published in 1831. Then they parted, but Mme. Dudevant, while relinquishing Sandeau's friendship, took to herself a portion of his name and elected to be known henceforth as George Sand.

The Quality of Mercy.

See the woman. Why is the woman's hat trimmed with a nestful of little birdlings with the mother bird brooding them?

It is because the woman is merciful. The woman wished to trim her hat with the mother bird alone, but rather than leave the birdlings to starve, she trimmed it with the whole family.

Must it not feel lovely to be merciful like that?—Puck.

Merely an Error of Judgment.

Robinson Crusoe, with infinite patience and industry, had hollowed out the big log and made a huge canoe.

Then he discovered, to his chagrin, that he couldn't launch it. It was too heavy for him to move. All his labor had been wasted.

"Still," he reflected, "it was only an oversight. It isn't half as bad as Uncle Sam neglecting for twelve years to raise the battleship Maine."

Scorning to ask for congressional aid in this difficulty, he went to work immediately to make a smaller canoe.

Sufficiently Permanent.

Mrs. Cameron was seventy-two years old, but she was so well-preserved that there seemed no reason to think that her days might not be lengthened to reach the family standard—over eighty-five.

When her trusty maid of all work fell ill, Mrs. Cameron, saying that she should pension the faithful Nancy, set about to obtain another. She advertised for a girl who wished a "permanent place," and offered high wages. The first applicant was a grim Scotch-woman, who looked Mrs. Cameron over, and then spoke her mind.

"You're well-favored, ma'am," she said, "but you're fair old for a' that, an' I'm lookin' for a pairmanency."

"You stay here till after my funeral," said Mrs. Cameron, with an appreciative twinkle in her eye, "and see if it hasn't been pretty permanent."

"Aweel, I'll try it," said the woman, after another survey of her future mistress; and she held her "pairmanency" for fifteen years, at the end of which time she attended the funeral of her mistress, and after it learned that a goodly sum had been left to "my cautious Tina," on the receipt of which she retired from active service.—Youth's Companion.

Ivy at a Funeral.

Standing beside a coffin containing the body of her husband, Mrs. Charles Buhland of Indianapolis carried out his last requests. Dressed in white, she sang two hymns, read his requests and delivered a brief eulogy.

Buhland did not want any crepe at the door and he insisted that no black should be worn in mourning for him. He wanted his wife to dress in white. He desired that in the place of somber decorations there should be flowers and other symbols of joy at the funeral.

Buhland was 52 years old and was ill a year before he died.

Fitness.

"Do you think Mrs. Garish's fine plumage looks natural and proper to her style?" said the envious woman.

"Entirely so," replied the woman, who is sarcastic. When she puts on one of those elegant ostrich feathers she looks like the original ostrich."

Worked Two Ways.

He had sung several times during the evening, and his friends had murmured words of praise, then escaped as quickly as possible.

But as he was going homeward he managed to catch one of these self-same friends, and he insisted on a truthful opinion.

"You see," he explained, "I don't quite know how to take Miss Cuteon's comment on my performances tonight."

"No—really! Why—what did she say?" asked the friend hopefully.

"Well, she said she'd heard Caruso several times and thought his voice was excellent, but she was quite certain that mine was better still."—New York Mail.

Engineer Jones, on behalf of the McCook Electric Co. presented a report of his investigations looking to making an offer to pump the water for the municipal system, by electrically operated pumps. He outlined a plan which he thought would make a saving to the city. Manager A. R. Scott and Auditor Reed of the company, all from Denver, were present. No formal offer was made, but it was indicated that about 6 cents per 1000 gallons would be the price. Full and formal offer later.

Petition was offered and read remonstrating against the operation of moving picture shows on Sunday. Referred to mayor and city attorney.

Report of city water commissioner read and filed.

Applications for deposits of city funds were made by Citizens National and McCook National banks. Applications were granted by resolution, which appears elsewhere in this issue.

Clerk was instructed to make a list of those who have paid their occupation tax and of the delinquents.

A resolution was adopted appropriating money to pay court expenses in cases the city is defending against suits brought by James A. Shepherd, Nels J. Johnson, Lulu Eason, Mary E. Simmons and Jacob Frank.

seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Dushren, mail carrier at Atchison, Kan., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago, I started taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever. A. McMillen."

When Things Go Wrong

When things go wrong about the house—
The bread forgets to rise,
And little Minnie tears her dress,
And all the babies cry,—
Oh, don't sit down and mope and sigh,
And fret and worry so,
But dress the kiddlets and yourself,
And see The Electric Picture Show.

When all the World looks blue to you,
And you begin to fag,—
Your head to ache, your heart to break,
And appetite to flag,—
Just lock the door and leave your cares
Behind you as you go,
And spend an hour of solid joy
Seeing the Electric Moving Picture Show.
