ONE of the most prolific sources of irritation to the poor, when they contrast their condition with that of the rich, is the different treatment they receive at the hands of the law when tried for alleged violations of it. There is no denying the fact that the rich criminal is more sure of escape from punishment than the poor one, and it is even said that the innocent poor man is in far more danger when arraigned than the rich criminal. It is well known that wealthy criminals are not treated like poor ones. They are put into parlors instead of dungeons, they are fed on the best of the land and their prison life is nearly a matter of inglorious ease.
When their cases come on for trial they are postponed from term to term, and they often entirely escape punishment, while they seldom or never get the exact and impartial justice so promptly meted out to the poor man. Charges are freely made that these things, these improper discriminations are induced by corrupt means, either directly or indirectly. The cause of complaint is increasing year by year. The strain is growing and may sometime figure extensively in the common social relations of the nation.—State Journal.

A CALIFORNIA exchange, the Daily San Diego, evidently drew to an oyster cracker and got the whole bakery when a member of its reportorial staff "caught on" to this story. If California produces such precocious mosquitos, what of the genus homo:

A Mosquito—San Diego can boast of the most intelligent mosquito that has been heard of in the United States, judging by the following anecdote related to us to-day by a gentleman in this city: It appears that he is particularly hostile to insects and especially mosquitos, and to guard against depredations has his bed covered with the best brand of mosquito netting. On retiring last night he thoroughly searched for mosquitos, but one large insect escaped his eagle eye, and as soon as the lamp had been extinguished, commenced to look for food. This practice was kept up until daylight, and the mosquito's appetite seemed to be insatiable. When the day dawned, the said gentleman, was astonished at the sight which was revealed to him. A small army of mosquitos were perched on the outside of the netting and were being fed all night by the single insect who had the inside track. Careful observation revealed the fact that the mosquito would fill itself up with blood and then put his bill thro' the netting and feed his less fortunate candidates.

THE latest railroad rumors are that the B. & M. is about to extend a connecting branch to Ogalalla on the U. P. and that the U. P. contemplates the extension of its Beatrice branch to Fair-bury. President Adams of the U. P. recently made a visit to Norfolk, and it is surmised that this means a further building up of the Norfolk branch towards the northwest, though nothing definite seems to be known of the plans of the company in that direction.— Journal.

THE railroad commissioners are at work now gathering information about passenger and freight rates, looking up statistics and making themselves generally familiar with the duties of their new offices. No one, not posted in railway business, would think that there is such a mass of documentary information in regard to railway rates as the commissioners are finding.—Lincoln News.

AN immigrant by the name Bensley Putney, committed suicide on Elk Creek, near Arapahoe, Saturday a week ago, hence going via the laudanum route.
Himself and family were on their way from Iowa to locate in the western part of this state. The man was addicted to the excessive use of drink—to which this sad sequel to his life may be chargeable.

SMITH, the merchant prince of Omaha, who run mammoth excursions from other cities, bought almost the entire advertising space of dailies, carpeted the street for pedestrians, gave open air concerts for the poor, etc., has skipped with $100,000 in cash.

HORSE and cattle thieves are receiving the attention of the people of the Lone Star State in a manner that is pa-ralyzing. Twelve members of a gang were hanged, last Wednesday, eight of them on one tree. This makes fully twenty of the gang that have been hanged since spring.

JAMES D. FISH, ex-president of the defunct Marine National bank, has been sentenced to ten year's imprisonment in Auburn prison. It will be remembered that General Grant was a great financial sufferer by Fish's rascality. Fish is 65 years of age.

THE Hastings Nebraskan is our authority for the statement that "H. C.
Chapman, who recently sold his interest in the Grand Island Times, has about concluded to locate at Alma, and attempt to resurrect the old Tribune."

THE Columbus Mannerchor is receiving golden opinions from the press of the state, upon their singing at the late Sangerfest at Lincoln. It is one of the finest organizations of the kind in the west.
