

In this issue will be seen the double column advertisement of the LINCOLN MEDICAL INSTITUTE AND WATER CURE. We take pleasure in calling the reader's attention to it as it is an institution worthy the patronage of the public. It was visited last week by our general agent who found it in the most complete working order. The institute is founded on the most liberal plan, medically speaking, as they employ in the treatment of chronic diseases all good remedial agents. The building contains fifty-six rooms besides parlors and offices, and is thoroughly equipped with all kinds of modern apparatus. Their Bath department is very complete, and they are giving their patients great benefit from the mode of treatment. In the institute skilled nurses are employed, who are skilled in the art of Massage, which is said by those who have tried it to be of great power in the management of diseases which have resisted other methods. They have also introduced for the first time west of Chicago, the SWEDISH MOVEMENT CURE, and its power in combating disease is wonderful. The Institute is incorporated and has the hearty co-operation of the city of Lincoln and the State. All patients treated board and room in the institute building, and their accommodations in this respect are very complete. A large number of invalids, suffering from Piles, Hemorrhoids, Disease of the Eye and Ear, Deformities of the Feet, etc., are now there being treated. The staff are all gentlemen of acknowledged ability and will, in our opinion, do for their patients all that could be done.

DOMESTIC HINTS.
Corn Fritters—Grate twelve ears of corn, scraping the ears with a silver knife, so that all the milk may be removed. Mix the pulp with three eggs and one teacupful of flour. Fry in hot drippings.
Oleone oil of lavender mixed with one quart of water or alcohol and sprinkled about a room will rid it of flies. One who knows, says that four applications at intervals will be sufficient to drive away a host.
Fruit has taken the place of flowers in basket decoration. Waste paper baskets are ornamented with bows and ends of wide satin ribbon, among which are placed plums, peaches, grapes and other fruit, with bunches of grasses or wheat.
Don't fresco walls or ceiling. Fresco painting is very well for large halls or grand salons, but the effect is not good for domestic rooms. Color on the walls in this way is sure to be in conflict with whatever color may be brought in, whether in pictures, furniture, hangings, or decorative objects.

Roman Punch—Grate the yellow rind of four lemons and two oranges upon two pounds of loaf sugar. Squeeze the juice of the lemons and oranges, cover it and let it stand until the next day. Strain it through a sieve, mix with the sugar; add a bottle of champagne and the whites of eight eggs beaten to a stiff froth. It may be frozen or not as desired.
Don't put high colors on your walls or in your carpets or tapestry—and very little of it anywhere else. Wall paper must be quiet in tone if you desire to produce a pleasant effect. Pictures can not look well if hung against loud patterns or positive colors; your bric-a-brac is sure to be ineffective and tasteless if its designs are confused with the designs and colors against which it is placed.
Potted chicken will keep sufficiently long for an ordinary journey and is an agreeable relish. Cut all the meat from a roasted fowl, and mince it very fine with two slices of boiled ham. Mix this to a paste with a quarter of a pound of the best butter, adding salt and pepper to the taste. Pack in jam jars and cover with a little melted butter and cover closely. It will keep for ten days in the ice chest.

Scalloped clams are a nice entree, and are also good for breakfast. Chop the clams fine and season them with a little pepper. Mix some powdered cracker with a little warm milk, two well beaten eggs and a little melted butter; then add the minced clams, mixing thoroughly. Bake in buttered scallop shells, or, if you have not these, in buttered patty pans or large clam shells that have been thoroughly cleaned.
Salt eggs are a Saxon dish. The descendants of the "Hallorren," an ancient Saxon tribe, even at the present day bring as an offering to the court at Dresden salt eggs, larks and salt cucumbers. The eggs should be boiled until they are perfectly hard; then crack the shell in tiny pieces and lay the eggs in brine strong enough to float them. Let them remain in this for twenty-four hours. Remove the shells and serve.
Mutton pie makes a welcome dish for the children's dinner; cold roast or boiled mutton should be used for this purpose. Trim off nearly all the fat, cut the lean meat in small pieces and put them in a pudding dish; if you have any gravy or stock pour that over them; put in a little butter and season with pepper and salt and a little parsley chopped fine; cover the top with a thick paste, made just as you make baking powder biscuits; brown nicely in the oven.

An excellent tomato soup is made in this way. It is so simple, and requires so little skill in its preparation, that it will prove acceptable to many. One quart of stewed tomatoes, strained so that no seeds remain; add a generous quart of boiling milk; put a piece of butter the size of an egg in the tureen; add two tablespoonfuls of rolled crackers, and salt and pepper to taste. Pour over this the boiling milk, then add the strained tomatoes; mix thoroughly and quickly and serve.
Rich waffles are made by this recipe: Make a thin paste of eight ounces of flour, six ounces of pulverized sugar, two eggs, a little essence to taste, half a liquor glass of brandy or rum and some milk. Warm and butter both sides of waffle iron, put some of the paste in it, close gently, set it on the fire and turn it over to heat both sides equally. It takes hardly a minute to brown with a good fire. When baked, dust with powdered sugar and serve warm or cold, according to taste.

The Reason Why.
Flipkins came down to the club last night with a great problem weighing on his mind.
"If I should stand on my head," said he, coming up to the boys "with the air of a man who has a poser, 'if I stand on my head, the blood all rushes into my head, don't it?"
"No one ventured to contradict him."
"Now," continued he, triumphantly, "when I stand on my feet, why don't the blood all rush into my feet?"
"Because," replied Miss Coshannigan's brother, "because, Flipkins, your feet are not empty."
The boys all laughed, but Flipkins said he couldn't see any joke.—Lynn Union.
A Disappointed Man.
Pat O'Rafferty and Mike Donovan were employed on the roof of a twelve story New York house in process of erection. O'Rafferty bet Donovan a dollar that the latter could not, with a hod of brick on his shoulder, walk along the slippery edge of the wall of the building, about seventy feet from the ground, without falling. Donovan won the bet, but that he did not fall and break his neck was a marvel.
"So I won the bet," remarked Donovan, after he had accomplished the perilous feat.
"Yes, I've lost," was the reply; "but once or twice, when yer foot slipped, I was in great hopes."—Texas Siftings.

MODERN EDUCATION.
The demand of to-day is for practical knowledge rather than for general information. A man must not expect that the world will hold him in much esteem or pay him liberally for living unless he can do something it wants done. It has nearly forgotten Mezzofanti, who spoke fifty-six languages fluently and understood sixty-four more, while Fulton, Stephenson and Morse, who perfected their several inventions while he lived, are as well known and as highly honored as when their inventions were first introduced. In this progressive age the world expects that a man will especially prepare himself for whatever vocation he chooses; it has no patience with bunglers, and it considers a blunder almost as bad as a crime. Further, the demand for trained talent has become so great yet without so exacting, that the old plan of the doctors, the lawyers, and the business men educating their successors and assistants in their offices has almost disappeared, because a young man is no longer so well educated as he was in the schools. By this method valuable time is saved, and no one suffers from the beginner's mistakes. To illustrate the two methods let us compare the way business men in the past were educated and the way they are educated to-day by the latter plan, the young man when he entered the office usually wrote a slow cramped hand, that he perhaps succeeded in changing to a business hand in three or four years. He could add from twenty-five to fifty figures per minute, but soon tired, and the thing was correct. He had to beshow how to make out the various business papers and how to record each business transaction; everything he had to do he had to do over and over for a long time he was a hindrance rather than a help in the office. Now, by the new plan, before he enters the office, he has been trained in some school like the Davenport Business College, which is probably the best business school in the country. He writes a plain, rapid hand, and when the correspondence of the firm is important he takes from dictation in short-hand as fast as one of the proprietors can talk, and prints his notes on the writing machine. He has learned to read figures as he would read words, and it tires him just as little to do so; he can add from two hundred to four hundred figures per minute, and make all other calculations with corresponding rapidity.
When he is required to make out any business paper or to record the results of a business transaction, he does not need to be told how to do it, for he has been thoroughly instructed already, first by theory, and afterwards by practice.
In case the firm that employs him has a private line by which confidential messages are exchanged with correspondents in other places, his school training is again of use, for he can send and receive messages with the facility of an old operator.
This is only an illustration of the many advantages of this special training, which has almost revolutionized the old ideas in regard to what constitutes an education.

THE DAVENPORT BUSINESS COLLEGE.
fits young men to successfully conduct their business affairs, or to give satisfaction when entrusted with the management of the affairs of others. It is pre-eminently the school that sends out expert accountants. No other school develops students equally well skilled in Rapid Calculation. No other school has a Business Practice course so varied, so extended, and that requires so much thinking and original planning on the part of its students.
The following are a few of the advantages the school offers to its students: A course in Bookkeeping at dictation. The most every practical form of accounting. The very best of instruction in Rapid Business Writing. A course in Commercial Law and in Political Economy that will be of much benefit in after life. Superior advantages to those who wish to learn Phonography, Type-Writing or Telegraphy. Fine and commodious rooms, fitted with comfortable and substantial furniture.

The Care of the Hair.
The care of the hair is an important branch of fashion at all times, though often fashion dictates an injudicious treatment, and prescribes modes against all rules of health and reason. Such importance has been given to the hair that some philosophers make the civilization, coils and puffs the index of civilization, and show how eccentricity in head dress and coiffure marks the degradation of time. It is well understood that masses of false hair injure natural growth, but a freak of fashion which seems harmless may be made equally hurtful. This apparently innocent fashion is that of fluffiness and lightness of the hair produced by continual washing. The best specialists on treatment of the hair say that the hair should be washed once in six weeks, and not oftener, and that castile soap and not borax, soda or any other drying material should be used. After washing it is well to rub the scalp with some reliable ointment. The natural oil, which to some appears objectionable, is the life-giving ointment of the hair and should not be destroyed. Dry hair has a dead appearance, the ends split and growth is retarded. The fine comb is most hurtful, but a soft brush, used judiciously, gives vigor to the scalp and keeps it in a healthy condition. The practice of cutting the ends of the hair is useful, and can be accomplished easily by braiding the hair and then cutting the ends. The care of the hair is certainly as important as that of teeth, but is much more neglected. The rules of its preservation are simple and important. Vigorous brushing, cutting the ends when necessary, washing with castile soap once in six weeks, and the desirable avoidance of false hair should preserve and strengthen the hair. But if the hair comes out and becomes lifeless and thin in spite of this treatment, the best remedy is to seek a reliable specialist on scalp diseases, and to submit to thorough professional direction.
