BANKSVILLE.

This is the name of a new postoffice established recently and located in town one, Grant precinct.

W. H. Benjamin, who is one of the pioneers in the precinct, is postmaster. Other pioneers are William Relf, Jacob Williams, W. S. Webster, Howe Smith and Francis Kane.

The crops are looking excellent and a large acreage of a variety of crops will be harvested. The rain of yesterday will be of incalculable value in causing vegetation to grow with great rapidity.

Mr. Webster of McCook has a homestead about a mile from Banksville, and is here spending his vacation.

A district was formed last fall and a four month term of school was taught last winter by T. W. Benjamin, son of W. H. Benjamin.

John Winsor is very sick. Dr. DeMay is in attendance.

Prof. Webster is rustivating on his homestead in sec. 26, town 1, range 30.

If you want to know how the road is to McCook, ask Ed. Lawthers. Ham!

Report says that Friend Huff is a "Benedict." Give us light, Friend?

Windmills, windmills, windmills. Every where you go, you will see or hear of a windmill.

Mrs. Amos Goodenberger has a sister visiting her from Michigan. Also a brother and brother-in-law have located here.

Now we have it, or are going to, we mean. A base ball club is one of our recent additions. This is what we have prayed for.

James Hill has just completed his windmill and is happy. Wm Relf and W. H. Benjamin, we understand, are candidates for windmills.

The Sunday School in District 35 is not proving to be the failure that some "soreheads" predicted; but on the other hand it is running very smoothly.

Mrs. Capt. Goodwin expects to return to Crete for a short time soon. We would advise her not to stay away too long, or she may lose another daughter, judging from the longing looks of sundry swains. But we can't blame the "boys."

A very enjoyable party was given in honor of Miss Clara's birthday, at the residence of her father, W. H. Benjamin, on the 5th. The time until 12 o'clock was spent in dancing, after which supper was served and the party dispersed, feeling that they had attended one more of those events, which tend to lighten our load as we journey toward the end.

SAM JONES' new platform, that "anybody who says that baptism is essential to salvation is a liar," will shock some of the brethren of the cloth who are backing him, but it is not to be supposed that a little thing like a disagreement by Sam with the Savior will cause any of them to abandon him. In the language of many Chicago preachers who sat patiently under the drippings of Sam's tobacco pouch, "he may save some souls in this way that cannot be reached in any other."—Chicago Herald.

PEOPLE WHO ARE LEFT-HANDED.

Some of the Advantages and Disadvantages Under Which They Labor.
(Philadelphia News.)

"The majority of people are right-handed because they are trained to be so."

This was the reply of a doctor to a reporter who interrogated him on the subject.

Several theories have been advanced why people are generally right-handed," continued the physician, "but with what reason scientists have never taken the trouble to demonstrate. Perhaps that which would come nearest the truth, if any law of nature were found to govern dexterity, would be that the heart, being placed on the left side, the right side should be used with greater freedom. Another theory is that the brain is weightier on the right side than on the left. Whatever the cause may be, I find that those in youth who have trained themselves to using the left hand experience no difficulty or inconvenience. When a child is 'sinistrously' inclined and takes to using the left hand by such natural inclination, it is not because of any malformation or displacement of the heart or brain. Consequently I am led to the belief that it is all a matter of training."

Several other physicians who were spoken to on the subject gave the same opinion. Inquiry of a number of left-handed people confirmed the statement that no inconvenience resulted from the use of the left hand, but that on the contrary they find it a positive advantage, inasmuch as that in numerous instances they become ambidexterous.

Persons who have much writing to do are liable to "pen paralysis," or "writers' cramp," lasting sometimes for weeks. Ordinarily, after several hours' constant writing, the arm is very much fatigued. Where a person can write with both hands he can rest one, and if by any accident he should be deprived of temporary or permanent use of the hand he is accustomed to use he will be able to "fall back" on the other. In telegraphy likewise, where an operator has to transmit or receive long messages, he is subject to "telegraphers' cramp." The work is laborious and fatiguing, but when the operator can use both hands he can not only save himself much fatigue, but facilitate the work.

Some tradesmen who are left-handed can command better wages than right-handed men of equal ability. This is shown in the case of a boiler-riveter who, if left-handed, can work inside a boiler without the awkwardness of a right-handed man, and do superior work. An engraver who uses both hands can always command a position. Smiths, carpenters, and other artisans also derive much advantage from the use of both hands, and none who happen to be left-handed experience any inconvenience. A person who operates a type-writer finds it necessary to use both hands, and has to train himself to it, when learning the instrument.

Many tools are made which are intended to be used with the right hand only, and can only be operated with great awkwardness with the left hand. This is said to also contribute toward making a majority of people right-handed. Notwithstanding all that can be said in favor of the education of the left hand, there is a powerful prejudice against it, and left-handed people are spoken of contemptuously.

In the western states a left-handed man is usually said to be "south-pawed." In England the nickname is "Kit," and in Ireland it is used as a distinctive appellation for the identification of particular persons, as "Shawna Kithogue"—Left-handed John.

A London Fire Alarm.

(Detroit Free Press.)

In London you find at rare intervals a red post of cast-iron that has a dial at the top covered with plain glass and behind the glass is a knob like a door bell. There is a printed warning there directed to you. It doesn't tell the reader to postpone literary pursuits and pull the knob as quick as he can, but it places before him a formidable array of penalties that will ensue if he happens to be wrong in his idea that a fire is breaking out. Newgate and the gallows yawn ahead of him.

If he is willing to take all chances he has to break the glass and then risk cutting an artery in getting at the knob. How a Londoner breaks that glass I have never been able to ascertain. There is nothing on the street to do it with. The probabilities are that he uses the universal umbrella if he ever could summon up courage to tamper with it. What really happens, however, is this: The man who discovers a fire doesn't turn on an alarm. He hunts up a policeman at great loss of valuable time. He places his reasons for imagining that a fire is breaking out before that officer and the policeman goes to the nearest post, breaks the glass with his club and pulls the alarm.

Message to Heaven.

(Montreal Gazette.)

A 3-year-old "pet of the house" some months ago lost his baby brother, and has missed him very much ever since. He was told when the child died it had gone to heaven. Recently, when death was again hovering over the same household, the following conversation took place: Child—Grandma, you're going to heaven soon, ain't you? Grandma—Yes, dear, I hope so. Child—Well, then, grandma, when you get there you'll send home Georgie, won't you?

Emigrants' Choice.

(Cor. Boston Globe.)

New York, you know, is the end and object of all Irish emigrants, German emigrants, French emigrants, English emigrants. The few thousands who come here with the distinct purpose of going west are as a drop in the bucket. I don't know why, but poor people hate the country. They would rather stuff and suffer in decent conglomeration, and in a dirty dive in New York than spend themselves in comfort and live in plenty nursery of vexation and poverty.

Jean Paul Richter: Fate manages poets as men do singing birds. We shroud the cage of the singer and make it dark, until at length he has caught the tunes and can sing them rightly.
