

But it looks as if it would be in it soon, and the sooner your foot is in one of our $3.50 or $4.00 Shoes the more fortunate it will be. Because we know this shoe, we want you to know it; because it wears as no other shoe will wear, we want you to wear it. It is absolutely the cheapest thing in shoe-leather and there isn't any limit to the satisfaction that it gives. No matter what you pay, you get no better when you get the best—it is a luxury in footwear and not a high-priced luxury at that. It isn't trying to those who try it. Try it.

The serious illness of John G. Whittier will create a feeling of sympathy and regret throughout the country; but this will not be accompanied by surprise or shock, since the good man has lived the full measure of human life and has himself been waiting for years for the inevitable change. Few lives have been as a whole more satisfactory to their possessor, more blessed to friends and country, more unbroken by storms, convulsions and reverses, fuller of that heavenly message, peace and good will toward men. Mr. Whittier has never known the most common of painful experiences, especially in our country—the severance of ties of home and residence. He has never strayed or wandered from his native home; when the end comes he will die in his nest. A few years since a picture was distributed as the advertisement of an insurance company, but so unobtrusive was the advertising portion and so great was the artistic value of the picture that it was framed and preserved in many households. It comprised the portraits of men famous in the science of literature of New England. They were Longfellow, Hawthorne, Lowell, Motley, Alcott, Agassiz, Holmes and Whittier. All are gone now save Whittier and Holmes, and it may be that when this announcement is made in the printed page the bright "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" may be the sole survivor. It was a wonderful and worthy company.

The well built Christian is harmonious in all his parts. No one trait shames another. He is not a jumble of inconsistencies—today devout, tomorrow frivolous; today liberal to one cause, tomorrow niggardly toward another; today fluent in polite falsehoods. He does not keep the fourth commandment on Sunday and break the eighth commandment on Monday. He does not shirk an honest debt to make a donation. He is not in favor of temperance for other folks and a glass today for himself. He does not exhort or pray at each of the few meetings he attends to make up arrearsages for the more meetings which he neglects. He does not consume his spiritual fuel during revival seasons and be as cold as Nova Zembla during the rest of the time, nor do his spiritual favors outrun his well ordered conversation.

It is an evidence of prosperity and increasing confidence in their ability to pay, when farmers demand a stipulation in their mortgages allowing them to make partial payment each year of the life of the mortgage and notes. Until within a couple of years back they have not been expected to make any payment until the whole amount becomes due.

Camp Meeting at Indianola.

J. J. CADY, Sec. of Conference.

The chief of the government bureau of statistics reports that as the result of reciprocity the combined value of exports of cotton, breadstuffs, provisions, cattle, sheep and hogs, all classed as agricultural products of 1892, exceeded the reports of 1890 (just before reciprocity was proclaimed) by $159,238,323, and exceeded the average annual value of these exports for the ten years previous by $215,955,639. These are gigantic figures, but are exactly true. Such an opening of southern markets to these products cannot fail to have a direct beneficial effect upon every farmer in Nebraska. There is no politics in this matter, it is simply business, but this business and this commerce are the direct results of policies inaugurated and legislation passed by the republican party and denounced as fraudulent and false by the democratic party. These are the facts as they must speak to the farmer voters of America.

The McCook public schools opened for the fall and winter terms on Tuesday morning with a full attendance and bright prospects for effective work.

Give Themselves Away.

E. W. Howe of the Atchison (Kan.) Globe paints in the September Forum a picture of the bond voting mania in these words: It is an old truth, but only old men seem to understand the particular importance of honesty, simplicity, and order. Young towns, like young men, are constantly trying experiments, only to discover that the old way is so much better than any other that they are at last compelled to come back to it. Much has been said as to what is the greatest pity; I think it is that young men and young towns do not accept the lessons of their elders without the punishment of experience. Most western country towns are guilty of all sorts of mistakes, because few of them have reached years of discretion. However wise a man may be in his individual capacity, and however wise he may have been as a resident of an older community, as a citizen of a new town he votes bonds with the recklessness that characterizes young men in giving notes, forgetting that payday will inevitably roll around and that they will probably not be prepared to pay. Many of the great fortunes in the east were gifts from communities in the west. The people conspire for months to get control of their valuables in order that they may give them away. If there is a valuable franchise in a western country town the people usually manage to give it away, the recipients being men who have probably been victims themselves in some new community."

WITHIN the history of the Republic cholera has been under quarantine on American waters fourteen times, but it has only entered the country four times, first in 1832, and the last time 1873. With this large percentage in favor of the efficacy of the quarantine, and with all of the improved appliances of modern science, it would seem that it ought to be quite within the limits of possibility to keep the pestilence from invading the United States at the present time.
