

Removing Bruises from Furniture.

If the bruise is slight soak the place in warm water, and hold a red hot poker near the surface of the wood, keeping it constantly wet until the bruise disappears. This will occur in a few moments. If the bruise is large, an actual dent, wet the place with warm water as before directed. Then take a piece of brown paper, fold it six or seven times, soak in warm water and place over the spot. Against the paper place a hot flat-iron, keeping it there until the moisture has evaporated.

Hem the Ends of a Veil.

As a rule it is no easy matter to hem a veil, as the flimsy ends have a most provoking way of slipping out of the fingers and from under the needle. It is really easy, however, if done in this manner: Baste an inch hem in each end of the veil and then baste a piece of paper under the hems. When this is done, stitch the hems on the sewing machine through the paper. The paper then may be carefully torn off. The veil should be pressed with a warm iron and special attention given to the hems.

Hot Ham Sandwiches.

A housewife who was tired of serving cold sliced ham advises other people to try hot ham sandwiches. "Cut thin slices of white bread and spread half of them with soft butter and the remaining half with finely chopped ham," said she. "Press the slices together and remove the crust. Beat one egg slightly, add one-half cup milk and strain over the sandwiches. When moistened place them in a hot frying pan with two level tablespoons of butter. Brown on both sides and serve at once."

Open Peach Pie.

Line a rather deep pie plate with a layer of good crust, made in the proportion of one-half cup shortening to one cup pastry flour, a saltspoonful of salt and a third or less of a cup of ice water. Bake the crust as for a lemon pie. Fill with fresh peaches, sweetened and cover thickly with whipped sweetened cream. Some good cooks advise the addition of a little apple marmalade to the peaches, holding that the combination of flavors is pleasing.

"Kitchen Minded."

"Kitchen minded" is an epithet applied to women who are too much engrossed with domestic affairs. The word is evidently meant as a reproach. No doubt there are women who give too much time to the kitchen, as there are others who give too little. Who will undertake to decide just how much time is enough? That a woman should grow to like the place in which she passes most of her time is not strange. She might become parlor-minded; but many, like George Eliot, enjoy a clean kitchen best of all.

Apple Ketchup.

Stew the apples and strain them, use them instead of tomatoes with the same spices—onions, celery, cinnamon, red pepper, cloves, salt and vinegar. In making ketchup make use of every bit of jelly or preserves of any kind.

Prevent Chipped China.

Cut about one inch of ordinary rubber garden hose and slip over the end of the faucets in the kitchen sink. It will prevent many a nick in beloved china.

Filling for Fancy Pin Cushions.

Always a new wrinkle from the young woman of "faculty" who knows how to do everything the nicest and easiest way. Rice, she says, makes the best possible filling for a fancy pin cushion, as it holds its shape well and takes the pins easily.

Boiled Cider Sauce.

Beat one egg yolk in sauce pan over boiling water, add one tablespoon of brown sugar, beat, then add three-fourths cup of nice boiled cider. Continue heating until smooth and foamy.

Hog Cholera.

The greatest drawback to the hog industry which breeders in this country have to contend with is what is known as "hog cholera" and "swine plague."

Hog cholera is a highly contagious disease and unless checked is liable to carry off a great number of hogs in a very short time.

Mr. A. P. Williams, of Burnetts Creek, Ind., tells of an experience which he had with some hogs that had the cholera. "Five years ago," says Mr. Williams, "I was in the employ of Mr. J. D. Richardson, Lafayette, Ind., as his barn foreman. Some fine hogs that I was feeding took the cholera. I gave them Sloan's Lintment and did not lose a hog. Some were so bad they would not drink sweet milk and I was compelled to drench them. I have tried it at every opportunity since and always find it O. K."

Write for Dr. Sloan's free book on the treatment of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, and Poultry. Address: Dr. Earl S. Sloan, 615 Albany Street, Boston, Mass.

Sunday School Lessons for the World.

A power greater than that of kings seems to have been wielded by the little group of thoughtful men who gathered at the Fenway residence of W. N. Hartshorn to select the lessons for the Sunday schools of the world, says the Boston Herald. Every year they gather to make this choice, and when a decision has been reached the lessons are handed out to the printers and by them literally scattered over the planet. The word thus goes forth not in one but in scores of languages. Europe and Africa, east and west, north and south, get these helps to religious study in the vernacular. There is a supply for Hawaii, Japan and the islands of the sea. For India alone 40 dialects have to be provided for. Some 500,000,000 Sunday school leaflets are thus distributed every year.

The Flatterer.

The tramp had applied to the farmer's wife for assistance.
"You have a beautiful voice, lady," he said.
She looked interested.
"Have I?"
"Yes, ma'am; I'd rather hear you say no, lady, than most other women say yes."

Then she drove back the dog and gave the wanderer half a loaf and a chunk of cold beef.

Prosaic Pa.

"Katherine," called the old gentleman from the top of the stairway, "are you still telling that young man 'good night' in the vestibule?"
"Yes, pa," called the fond daughter.

"Well, don't you know you are wasting the light?"
"Oh, what's the difference. It is 'love that makes the world go round.'"
"Yes, and it also makes the gas meter go round."

Jesus saves to the uttermost, not only reaching to the uttermost depths of degradation, and to the uttermost wandering from God, but to the uttermost length of time, and to the uttermost degree of salvation, the highest ideal, the highest condition of goodness and blessedness.

The wonderful supply was based on that which the disciples already had, little as this was.

The missionary enterprise has been the salvation of the church. A selfish church cannot prosper. God does not want such churches to prosper.

Suggesting a Topic.

Little Emma was intensely interested in her big sister's engagement. She had any number of preconceived ideas of what lovers talked about before they were married, and so when one afternoon her sister's fiancé arrived to make a call she followed the sweethearts into the drawing room and took up a position directly in front of them as they sat on a sofa.

Clasping her hands around her knees and gazing at the young man with a romantic expression on her ardent face, little Emma remarked eagerly: "I suppose now you are going to talk about the moonlight."

Youngest Midshipman in Navy.

Louisiana has the distinction of having the youngest midshipman in the United States naval academy, Annapolis, Md. Alfred Shepard Wolfe was born in the city of New Orleans, March 5, 1891, and entered the naval academy July 6, 1907, after having successfully passed both the mental and physical examinations. The minimum age allowed at Annapolis is 16. He was appointed by the Hon. Robert C. Davey from the Second congressional district. Alfred Wolfe received his entire education in the public schools of New Orleans, leaving the junior intermediate boys high school "pass to enter the academy."

Explained Warm Greeting.

"I was astonished and flattered, too," said a new congressman, "at the warm greeting President Roosevelt gave me at the White House reception. He acted as if he was never more glad to see a man in his life. I didn't suppose he would remember me." "Yes?" said the veteran interrogatively. "Where were you in the line?" "Let's see; I was about the last one, almost the last one in the line," said the new congressman, reflectively. "I thought so. The president had shaken hands with some 1,200 people. I'll bet he was glad to see you, too." "These old congressmen are so jealous if a new member gets any recognition," the freshman lawmaker told his wife later.

Child Captivated Statesman.

So much attention did little Lucille Hughes, the pretty six-year-old daughter of Representative Hughes of Paterson, N. J., attract when she visited the house of representatives at Washington that it was difficult for Leader Williams to summon the full Democratic strength whenever tellers were demanded. In the evening the little girl was asked by a friend what she had learned at school during the day. "I didn't go to school to-day," she replied. "I went up to the house with papa, and you don't learn anything in there."

REBUILD IN GRANITE

NATIONAL TREASURY BUILDING TO HAVE NEW FRONT.

Sandstone Originally Used in Its Construction Has Not Stood the Test of Time and Must Be Replaced.

The treasury at Washington is to come down. Within a few weeks the demolition will be begun, and the historic edifice—all of it, that is to say, that stood before the civil war—will be reduced to a wreck, the entire front, including the 30 great Ionic pillars upholding the roof of the Fifteenth street facade, being torn away.

For this purpose congress has appropriated $360,000. The contract has been awarded to a New York firm, and quarrying has already been begun at Milford, N. H., for granite which is to take the place of the sandstone of the present structure.

This sandstone which was brought from Acquia creek, in Virginia, in 1840, is poor stuff, and shows a disposition to disintegrate. Large chunks of the portico have been falling from time to time, narrowly missing people's heads, and it was finally decided that the whole facade, pillars and all, would have to be removed and replaced with stronger material.

It will be understood that the treasury as it stood in the '40s and early '50s, was a long building, fronting on Fifteenth street and of no great depth, which to-day forms the middle section of the east side of the huge rectangular structure occupied by the financial department of the government.

As originally erected it was a copy of the Temple of Pallas Minerva at Athens, and its site was chosen by that irascible and obstinate old gentleman, Andrew Jackson. Congress left the matter to him, and one day, as it is related, he walked over from the White House, thrust his cane into the ground, and said:

"This is the best place for the building. Put it here!"

Now, the intention had always been that Pennsylvania avenue should run in a straight and undeviating line. In fact, it had always done so up to that time, extending directly from the capitol past the front door of the White House, which in those days was on the south front of the president's dwelling, and not on the north as at present. But the building of the treasury in this badly chosen spot broke the avenue in two, so that it loses itself for a couple of blocks in a manner puzzling to the stranger in Washington.

Which reminds one to say that visitors at the national capital are much impressed, not unnaturally, by the information, conveyed to them by professional guides, that the gigantic pillars which uphold the roofs of the porticos on the north, south and west sides of the treasury, are monoliths, the largest in the world, each of them being hewn out of a single block of granite.

They are further astonished when told that these pillars were brought all the way from Dix Island, near Rockford, in Maine, being put aboard sailing vessels, landed at Georgetown, and hauled to the building site by teams of 18 oxen.

The treasury as it stands to-day is a building of granite—save only for the old and original sandstone structure which, as already explained, forms the middle section of its east side. It is now intended to remove the entire front of this ancient edifice. Architecturally speaking, there will be no alterations; it is simply a matter of substituting one material for another. However, incidental to the operation, the sandstone pillars, which are composed of series of superposed cylindrical sections, will be replaced by granite monoliths.

Vanderbilts in Washington.

More and more Washington is luring members of New York's most exclusive set. The George Vanderbilts, after visiting there regularly for many winters, now have a permanent residence in the capital and it is said they have found the city so much to their liking that they will not be seen in New York again till summer. They went to their new house in Washington a few days ago, and have entered upon a big social campaign. Mrs. Vanderbilt has been losing interest in her old circle in New York city, and it is understood purposes to favor Washington for entertaining in the future. The Vanderbilts have been encouraged in this plan by the success of several trips with guests to Biltmore, the famous estate in North Carolina. With parties of from 12 to 20 guests the Vanderbilts have traveled in special trains between Washington and Biltmore for week ends, and more of these excursions are planned for the brief interval before Lent.

Soldier Was Dissatisfied.

At the Army and Navy club in Washington a number of "old timers" were one evening swapping stories of the civil war, when Gen. Young told of a soldier in the Army of the Potomac who entertained some unique ideas as to his financial value as well as of the method by which that value could be realized.

He was a white man, and was detailed for service as a teamster in a train that was driven for the most part by negroes. The darkies were hired at the rate of $25 per month, but the white soldiers received no more than their regular pay, $16.

The man in question appeared somewhat dissatisfied with this arrangement, and made application to his captain.

"I should like," he said, gravely, "to be appointed a negro by brevet, and be assigned to duty in accordance with my brevet rank!"

Child Captivated Statesman.

PUT SENATOR IN DILEMMA.

Statesman Mourned Absence of Wife and "Unhitched Tie."

Senator P. C. Knox of Pennsylvania has succeeded to the chairmanship of the senate committee on rules, vacated by ex-Senator Spooner, and comments on the diversity in the character of the two men have brought out some stories about Spooner's eccentricities. Spick and span, the term most applicable to the Pennsylvanian, is not at all descriptive of his predecessor.

One day Senator Spooner's famous "string tie" was so noticeably "unhitched" that one of his colleagues felt called upon to bring the matter to his attention.

"Necktie loose!" exclaimed the senator, a look of helpless vacation overspreading his face, "and Mrs. Spooner has gone out of town for the day, too!" he concluded. Thereupon it developed that the tying of the senatorial necktie always devolved on Mrs. Spooner, the senator never having mastered the intricacies of the bow knot.

Incidentally the senator's penchant for a brilliantly illuminated room and his forgetfulness resulted in Mrs. Spooner preparing placards requesting visitors to extinguish the lights. In the course of an evening Senator Spooner would make the rounds of the library, dining-room, sitting-room and music-room, turning on every gas jet in each room. Retiring, finally, the gas burned until morning unless happily noticed by one more keen to appreciate the havoc wrought by the gas meter.

LIVES IN "STYLE" CHEAPLY.

Great Piece of Luck That Fell to the Lot of Senator Taylor.

Senator "Bob" Taylor boarded when he first went to Washington, but being chief entertainer to admiring audiences of department clerks in the parlor every evening got on his nerves. So he decided to keep house. He heard of a handsome apartment in Stoneleigh court, built by the late John Hay, and the most expensive apartment hotel in Washington. He confessed to a friend that he really did not expect to move there, but it would give him a chance to see how bloated millionaires really lived when they were cliff dwellers. As he passed from one to the other of the luxuriously furnished rooms he broke the tenth commandment a score of times.

"I covet this very much," he said to the lady who was trying to subtlet it before going abroad, "but you know down south, where I came from, we are powerful poor. So don't go over $500 a month."

"Why, senator, I will not charge you anything for the furniture," she replied. "I pay $100 a month for the apartment and you can have it for that."

Taylor is now living like a hated plutocrat at the Stoneleigh court.

Roused Ire of Colored Citizen.

Senator Taylor of Tennessee, who is an authority on 'possums, tells this story about an old negro in his neighborhood:

"One of the most peaceful and kind-hearted old negroes I ever knew was old Uncle Pompey, who liked to hunt 'possums and also liked to eat them. One day the old man was arraigned before his boss for unmercifully beating another negro who was a town visitor to the plantation. The town darky had his eyes bandaged and his nose was split, while his clothing was in tatters."

"Pompey," said the master, "is this the negro you had the trouble with?"
"Dat's de nigger, master," was the reply, "but I didn't hab much trouble wid him. He's de one dat had de trouble, sah."

"But, Pompey, why did you beat him so unmercifully?"
"Master, I se gwine ter tell yer de trufe. He comes down here all dressed up in biled shirts and high collar, an' while we niggers wuz 'tendin' ter our own business he axes me wuz er 'possum fitten fer ter eat. An' dat's de last I members."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is often but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.
