make Lincoln bigger and better. We've got a golden opportunity at hand, and if we do not seize it—well, if we do not it will be all the worse for us.

We do not want to be understood as deprecating the ability of Jesse B. Strode, deputy county attorney and candidate for the nomination for that office. Mr. Strode is an able lawyer and an enterprising citizen. He would fill the office with credit to himself and to the satisfaction of the people. But just now matters are so hooked up that we insist upon retaining Frank Tyrrell in the position for another term. Litigation of tremendous importance to the people is now being conducted by County Attorney Tyrrell, and he is so thoroughly familiar with all its phases that it appears unwise to contemplate a change at this time. We hope Mr. Strode will reconsider and wait a couple of years.

A lot of would-be state senators and representatives might just as well prepare for trouble. They are going to be confronted by a lot of questions relative to their position on numerous matters of interest to the wage earners of the state, and if they think they are going to be able to dodge they would better be preparing another think. Either they will answer the questions to the satisfaction of the wage earners or they will find their pathway to political honors almighty rough and thorny.

Mayor "Jim" Dahlman says that in a week or two he will have his portrait adorning buttons and badges galore. With the memory still clinging in our minds of the odiferous cigars that came in a box adorned with the portrait of "Mayor Jim" we are inclined to believe that "Mayor Jim's" campaign portraits will work with the reverse English.

Every woman who is a taxpayer, or who is the mother of children who are of school age, is entitled to vote on the school bond proposition. But before they can vote they must register. This they may do tomorrow, June 18, at the regular registration places. There are three or four thousand women in Lincoln who are eligible to vote at the school bond election, and here's hoping every one of them will vote—and vote for the bonds.

Mayor Dahlman has two planks in his platform—capital removal and "personal liberty." The capital removal plank is planned and dressed with intent to delude a lot of people into voting for him in the hope that by so doing they may get the capitol building "in their midst," overlooking the fact that the "personal liberty" plank is the real issue. Will men who are opposed to the rule of the brewers and distillers be fooled into voting for the "personal liberty" candidate by the will-o'-the-wisp of "capital removal?" If anybody tells you the devil is dead, you tell 'em you don't believe it.

If anybody attempts to knock out the "Oregon plan," shoot him on the spot. The union man who votes for a legislative candidate who refuses to subscribe to "Statement No. 1" is a sucker! That statement is made openly, and without fear of successful contradiction. Under the Oregon plan the people can elect their own senators and leave the members of the legislature free to attend to real business. And under that same plan organized labor can vote for its friends regardless of political affiliation and not be hammered over the head by party leaders who always put up the horrible howl: "We must vote 'er straight in order to elect a senator." The legislative candidate who refuses to subscribe to "statement No. 1" is not worthy of the vote or confidence of any honest, self-respecting citizen.

The Dahlmanites are going to try and work another scheme in case their candidates is defeated at the primary. In that event they will run Dahlman as an independent candidate, and expect all the opponents of county option to vote for him. In a three-cornered fight they expect to get votes enough to land "the only man who can save Omaha."

Let's see, isn't Mayor Jim the man who has always claimed to be a simon pure democrat? And isn't a democrat in favor of majority rule? And if Dahlman is defeated in the primaries won't that be because in a democratic test he lost out? To which is James C. Dahlman the most devoted, the principles of democracy or fusel oil; the fundamentals of a free government or the juice of the hop; the right of a majority to rule or anything to keep the bottle full? We inquire to know?

Is John E. Miller going to be a candidate for state senator again? Senator Miller made a fine record in the last legislature. He stood for everything that was square and right. He opposed everything that was against the best interests of the people. Elected as a democrat he refused to plap politics at the expense of the good of the whole people. He is for the initiative and referendum, the Oregon plan, liberal but wise appropriations for state purposes and a reformation of our revenue laws. It would give The Wageworker pleasure to support John E. Miller again.

Ned Brown, whose records as a member of the 1909 senate is as good as the best, has a cinch on a re-nomination. Likewise he has a cinch on the support of this little paper. Senator Brown is all right on perhaps everything but the tariff, and as the next session of the Nebraska legislature will not have time to tinker with the tariff we'll excuse him that one mental error.

It has been suggested that Frank M. Coffey, president of the State Federation of Labor, be a republican candidate for the legislature. Coffey demurs, claiming that if he accepted a place on the primary ticket he would be charged with using the Federation for political purposes. Rats! A man as old in the labor game as Coffey hadn't ought to side-step a duty on that account. When a man shows disposition to take an active part in organization affairs he might as well take his medicine. He'll be damned if he does and he'll be damned if he don't. The editor of The Wageworker was accused of organizing the State Federation of Labor for political purposes; was charged with trying to work up a "Shallenberger machine;" with trying to "deliver the labor vote to the democratic party." The men who made the charge knew they lied, and the editor of The Wageworker knew they lied. He happened to be in a good position to take the lead in organizing the Federation, and recognizing the need of it he went at it. Partisan politics has never been mentioned in the organization, nor will it be. Coffey ought to have the nerve to go to it. He would make a strong candidate, and if nominated and elected would be a power for good in the union cause in the legislature. The union man who would utter the falsehood that Coffey was trying to play politics through the Federation would simply convict himself of being a lot more interested in party than he is in the advancement of the cause of organized labor.

parks and a high school worthy of the name. It's a glorious opportunity, and if we fail to seize it we don't deserve anything better than the worst of it.

The man who "cuts off his nose to spite his face" is no greater fool than the man who refuses to seize a benefit for himself because by seizing it he will also confer a benefit upon somebody else. I met a workingman the other day who said he was going to vote against the park bonds because he didn't propose to let "Si" and "Ol" Berger make a big rake-off by selling Lincoln park to the city. Wouldn't that jar you? I don't give a tinker's dam how much money Messrs. Burnham and Berger make; they can make a million for all I care, just so they don't rob me. And they can go broke, too, without its affecting me a great deal. I don't know what Lincoln Park is worth—neither do I care. But this I do know, that it will take fifty years and fifty thousand dollars to make out of raw land what Lincoln Park is worth today, and I want a park now. I want to enjoy it myself, and I want to live long enough to see my children enjoying it. I hope Messrs. Berger and Burnham and their associates make a big bunch of money, provided they make it legitimately. Thank the Lord, I'm not so narrow-minded that I begrudge any man a dollar honestly secured.

There are only two things that I can hope to leave my children—a good education and the memory of a happy childhood. I do not hope to leave them a lot of money—and I don't believe I would if I could. But I am bending every effort to give them a happy childhood. I know of nothing better calculated to achieve this end than to do my part towards providing them with handsome and healthful playgrounds in the shape of parks. The missus and I—especially the missus—are making many sacrifices for our children, and our children, and the children of other workingmen and working women are The brain and brawn that this republic The brain and brawn that this republic must depend on in future are not coming from the ranks of the rich and well-to-do; they are coming from the ranks of the workers. And just as sure as your children and my children must be depended upon to keep this republic going, just so sure is it the duty of those who have no children to go the limit in helping us give our children happy childhood and every educational advantage. The rich man who votes against the park and high school bonds is a "snitch," and he isn't worthy of the protection of the strong arms of the workers of the country.

The biggest and best advertisement Lincoln could possibly have would be an overwhelming majority for the park and high school bonds. Let's all work together for Lincoln—not like the bunch that hired the Hebron band in preference to a Lincoln band, but like a bunch of Lincolnites who practice what they preach. I'm going to vote for all the bond issues, and the missus is going to vote for the high school bonds. The shame and disgrace of it all is that the little woman is not permitted to vote just the same as me. Women can not bear arms for their country, but they can do more—they bear the children who grow into the men who do bear arms for their country and between the two I rather opine that the women bear the hardest part of it.

BILLY MAJOR.
