The A. D. BENWAY COMPANY

WISE TALKS BY THE OFFICE BOY

You never hear of anybody getting sore eyes from looking on the bright side of things. I guess everything would look bright and sunny if a fellow could always look through a roll of bills. There's a lot of people who can stand prosperity and be cheerful; then there's a lot of others who thrive on adversity and are never so happy as when times are a little tight and they can go around explaining the cause of it. I guess everybody's hindsight is better than their foresight. We have always had good times in this country and a few spells of hard times just to show us the difference. We need the slow times in order to give us a chance to recuperate. I know I've got to have a week off pretty soon to catch up on my back orders of sleep. Speaking of sleep, some people have cut it out—don't sleep at all—while others have adopted the no-breakfast habit. If you're doing a phantom breakfast act, you'll want a better lunch than usual and we can help you there. We are strong on lunch goods. A new lot of assorted wafers just came in and a big lot of Van Camp's, Libby and Heinz goods. See me

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

A Few of Its Declarations Upon Which It Appeals to All Working People To Organize, Unite, Federate, and Cement the Bonds of Fraternity.

1. The Abolition of all Forms of Involuntary Servitude, except as a punishment for crime.
2. Free Schools, Free Text-Books, and Compulsory education.
3. Unrelenting Protest Against the Issuance and Abuse of Injunction Process in Labor Disputes.
4. A workday of not more than Eight Hours in the twenty-four hour day.
5. A strict recognition of not over Eight Hours per day on all Federal State or Municipal Work and at not less than the prevailing Per Diem Wage Rate of the class of employment in the vicinity where the work is performed.

6. Release from employment One Day in Seven.
7. The Abolition of the Contract System on Public Work.
8. The Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities.
9. The Abolition of the Sweat Shop System.
10. Sanitary Inspection of Factory, Workshop, Mine, and Home.
11. Liability of Employers, for injury to body or loss of life.
12. The Nationalization of Telegraph and Telephone.
13. The passage of Anti-Child Labor Laws in States where they do not exist and rigid defense of them where they have been enacted into law.
14. Woman Suffrage coequal with Man Suffrage.
15. The Initiative and Referendum and the Imperative Mandate and Right of Recall.
16. Suitable and Plentiful Playgrounds for Children in all cities.
17. Continued agitation for the Public Bath System in all cities.
18. Qualifications in permits to build of all cities and towns that there shall be Bathrooms and Bathroom Attachments in all houses or compartments used for habitation.
19. We favor a system of finance whereby money shall be issued exclusively by the Government, with such regulations and restrictions as will protect it from manipulation by the banking interests for their own private gains.

The above is a partial statement of the demands which organized labor, in the interest of the workers—aye, of all the people of our country—makes upon modern society.

Higher wages, shorter workday, better labor conditions, better homes, better and safer workshops, factories, mills, and mines. In a word, a better, higher, and nobler life.

Conscious of the justice, wisdom and nobility of our cause, the American Federation of Labor appeals to all men and women of labor to join with us in the great movement for its achievement.

More than two million wage-earners who have reaped the advantages of organization and federation appeal to their brothers and sisters of toil to participate in the glorious movement with its attendant benefits.

There are affiliated to the American Federation of Labor 118 International Trades Unions with their 27,000 Local Unions; 36 State Federations; 537 City Central Bodies and 650 Local Trade and Federal Labor Unions having no International.

We have nearly 1,000 volunteer and special organizers as well as the officers of the unions and of the American Federation of Labor itself always willing and anxious to aid their fellow workmen to organize and in every other way better their conditions.

For information all are invited to write to the American Federation of Labor headquarters at Washington, D. C.

UNION SHIRTS.

In another part of this paper will be noticed an advertisement of Elgin shirts, which can be found on sale at all leading dealers in this district. This is a product from the factories of Cutter & Crossette, who are well known to union men throughout the country both for the reliability of their output and the strong position they have always maintained on a labor standpoint. It should be a source of gratification to the members of organized labor to know that they can buy a labeled article at this price that is successfully competing with "sweat shop" goods.

As it is in accordance with the broad principles of unionism to foster the products of concerns that are known to be friendly to labor, we wish to particularly urge our members to call and demand this brand when making purchases. Look for the label and take nothing else.

The American Labor Press association, which has made a thorough investigation of this company's plant, writes that every workman in the United States will be furthering the interests of organized labor by insisting on Elgin shirts.

Infant Mortality

Chargeable to Neglect of Medical Colleges

By DR. L. T. ROYSTER,
Norfolk, Va.

PAEDIATRICS should be taught as thoroughly in our medical colleges as is anatomy or surgery, yet it is only within the past few years that this branch has been given any attention whatever as a separate course in the curriculum, with the result that men had graduated and become practicing physicians, knowing nothing concerning this class of patients, consequently these patients have been turned over to the tender mercies of old women and superstition, usually synonymous terms.

The study of paediatrics is to-day in the class of specialties, and when we consider the fact that out of every 1,000 children born into the world, 230 die during the first 12 months, and ten per cent. of the remainder before the end of the fifth year, does it not seem imperative that a larger proportion of our efforts should be directed to the prevention of this terrible loss to the race during infancy?

To this end should paediatrics be taught in the curriculum of our colleges by thoroughly capable paediatrists, but no course of clinical medicine should be considered complete until a large amount of time shall have been devoted to the study of children.

Not every practitioner is expected to acquire the knowledge of a specialist, but every physician licensed to-day must be expected to know enough about children to appreciate his limitations, and when he does this and is honest with his patients and himself he will seek competent advice, when needed, just as he does in surgery or conditions of the eye. Also in order that he may do his duty by the children in his practice he must know the right and wrong in handling them, and so teach the parents that they in turn may do their duty.

The Tyranny of Home

By MRS. GEORGE NORMAN.

It is assumed in the countries we know best that there is but one form of wrongdoing; Virtue has for us most usually one rather narrow significance, and home keeping is vaunted as a means of avoiding the one and encouraging the other. The great, the all-embracing virtues of charity, kindness, generosity, are comparatively disdained; so long as a certain measure of propriety is observed, a man or woman may be as petty, as hard, as egotistical as self-seeking can make them, and the puritanical, the fanatical upholder of domesticity is satisfied; this is the extreme that the wide-minded, even among professed moralists, must deplore.

Another class of people, the newly-married, are also apt to elevate the cult of home into a tyranny—the young wife, perhaps, most of all—and many a man has been tempted, all too sorely, to regret his bachelor liberty when the doors of his newly-acquired flat or bijou-residence have been made to him as almost the gates of a prison house.

It is, perhaps, a natural mistake on the part of Angelina; it is an eminently foolish one. Not long since an unsatisfactory marriage that had started in a fiery mist of passion was being discussed. "How can you wonder he got tired of her?" a worldly-wise, but kindly, matron inquired; "she sulked every time he was a minute late to luncheon, and cried every time he spent half an hour at the club."

This sort of foolishness, of home tyranny, too often leads to matrimonial shipwreck—occasionally to the divorce court. It has been wittily said that no friendship can stand the breakfast test; certainly few marriages can stand the straining-to-breaking-point test that too many young wives apply to it. Whether they come to know it or not, they have killed the child-god of passion, and a changeling has crept into his place.

Certainly in the interests of affection between man and wife, of such permanency in a world of fleeting shadows as we may hope for, a measure of home keeping seems eminently desirable; it is difficult to the average being to remain wholeheartedly devoted to a person they scarcely ever see. But the difficulty becomes an impossibility with a person of whose society one has a surfeit. There is on record the somewhat caustic story of the American who left £500 to the man who had run away with his wife. "Poor devil, he deserves it!" the cynical testator replied to the naturally astounded family lawyer who drew up his will. "If she's took the same grip on him as she did on me, wal—five millions couldn't repay him."

And short of returning to the Platonic ideals of the state establishment, the home must remain the principal factor in our existence, the main cell in the structure of society. It rests with us that it should be a far-reaching influence for the good of the community, "better than ceiled with cedar or painted with vermilion, shedding its quiet light far for those who else were homeless."

Western Civilization Superior

By REV. THOMAS EDW. BARR
Pastor People's Church, Milwaukee.

tions unique.

For this difference there is a reason, deep in human nature. Science must rest on a theory of life which gives unity and stability to nature. When, at last, European thinkers realized freedom to investigate the religious atmosphere in which they lived, an atmosphere pregnant with the thought that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof," mightily helped them to trace order and unity in nature.

Character appeals for the greatest sacrifice and humanity for the highest devotion under the inspiration of a personal future which makes present comforts secondary and reveals the most degraded of men as potential saints. "I am the Almighty God; walk thou before me and be thou perfect" has been an unflinching spring of inspiration and has fructified in the numberless deeds which merit the "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these."
