CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

An Interesting Meeting Promised for Next Tuesday Evening.

It is confidently promised that the meeting of the Central Labor Union next Tuesday night will be interesting enough to suit the most enthusiastic. On that occasion a certain matter will come up that will give every delegate something to think about, and as it concerns the most talked-of injunction case before the public it certainly will be interesting to the delegates. A prominent business man will be present and submit a few remarks for consideration.

There is something doing in Lincoln right now—something that impelled a prominent opponent of union labor to send his right hand man to Lincoln in an effort to soften an impending blow. If you want to know about it you would better attend the next meeting of the Central Labor Union.

PROTECTS LIFE.

Figures That Prove What Union Labor Does for Humanity.

There are two big steel bridges being built in New York City. One is known as the Blackwell's Island bridge, the other as the Manhattan bridge. These bridges are practically the same size, and practically the same number of men are employed on each one. The Blackwell's Island bridge is being built by a firm that refuses to employ union iron workers. The Manhattan bridge is being built by union labor.

Since beginning work on the Blackwell's Island bridge fifty-five men have been killed.

Not a single life has thus far been sacrificed in building the Manhattan bridge.

If you cannot see the moral of this, then you need an operation on your mental eyesight.

WHAT LABOR DAY MEANS.

Eloquent Description of What Organized Labor Has Accomplished.

Let us give, briefly, the reasons why the celebration of that day should not be confined to labor unions, but should be participated in by the men, women and children who are not members of labor unions, nor of the families of union men and women—at least by such as advocate justice and what, for want of a better term, we call "good government."

Had American labor unions done nothing else for the public good than hammer into the statutes of most of our states the Australian ballot—imperfect though it be, outside of Massachusetts, on account of the trickery of politicians in the employ of corporations—they would have justified their existence. We owe the secret ballot to labor, not to capital or monopoly.

Again, had labor and labor unions done nothing for the public good other than what they have done for the abolition of child labor in this country, they would deserve the respect and commendation of men and women. Seldom have we seen capitalists interest themselves in laws for the protection of the children from our civilized form of slavery; never have we seen monopolists interest themselves in such matters; but untiringly has labor demanded that the child be given its right to its childhood.

It is true that labor and labor unions have made mistakes; for do we not know that none but the captains of industry and the brigadiers of privilege are blameless? Yet men who hope for the government that Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln hoped for, one of the people, for the people, by the people, know that labor unions stand for that government. It is not labor that blocks the way to public ownership of government; and the enemies of the initiative and referendum and the recall are not found in the labor unions.

If labor were against good, efficient government, there would be no hope for this republic, no hope of a higher civilization. It is not capital that conquers all things, nor is it monopoly. It is labor that prepares the way for justice, that is now laying the foundations for a civilization that will know nothing of special privileges.—San Francisco Star.

UNION PRINTERS' BRYAN CLUB.

The meeting of the Union Printers' Bryan club last Sunday was attended by nearly 100. The union printers had some speakers that knew how to talk politics and business. K. S. Fisher, long a wheel-horse in republican politics in Omaha, as an active member of the Bryan club, very plainly stated his reasons why he could not support "Injunction Bill" Taft. Ed. Foster, who, like Mr. Fisher, has stood by the republican party through thick and thin, announced that the limit had been reached by him, and gave the reasons why he will support Bryan. Charles Matthews, who is a democrat, made a rousing talk that seemed to hit them all just right—republicans and democrats alike.—Omaha World-Herald.

JOHN MITCHELL SAYS.

I think I may say that we are all satisfied with the democratic anti-injunction plank. It is good—very good. It is particularly gratifying to us to have included in this plank the right of the workers to organize. That is what we have fought for so long, and that is what is now made a crime by the interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust law by the supreme court of the land. It is necessary that labor organizations should be considered legal in order that industrial tranquility may obtain in this country. The jury trial for contempt cases is another feature with which we are extremely pleased.—John Mitchell on the Democratic Platform.

A UNION-MADE COLLAR.

The union Collarmakers of Galesburg, Ill., have made and presented to William J. Bryan a handsome collar for the famous democratic donkey now a resident on the Fairview farm. The collar is really a work of art, and "Maud"—if that is the right name—will be pardoned for feeling proud when she dons it.

CAPITAL AUXILIARY.

Tenders Reception to Typographical Union's Delegate to Boston.

Wednesday evening Capital Auxiliary No. 11 tendered a reception to Gene Lyman, who represented Lincoln Typographical Union at the recent Boston convention. The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will M. Maupin, 647 South Twenty-seventh street.

Mr. Lyman gave an interesting account of his varied experiences in Boston, explaining all about the clam chowder and the baked beans, games, and referring humorously to many little incidents of the trip. His talk was listened to with great interest, and he set forth the many pleasures of the trip in such a way that his hearers decided to go to St. Joseph next year.

Mrs. Young rendered several selections on the piano and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Sayer sang several duets.

LABOR DAY COMMITTEE.

Meets, Audits and Pays All Bills and Adjourns Sine Die.

The general committee having in charge the Labor Day "doings" held a meeting Monday night at Carpenters' Hall, and without any fuss or feathers, paid all bills, wound up its business and adjourned sine die.

Everybody admits that the celebration of the day was the best ever given in Lincoln. That was demonstrated to the eye. Now it should be made equally well known that the celebration was a financial as well as a social success.

When the committee met, all bills were in, and the money was on hand to pay them. After the bills were paid the sum of $25 was left as clear profit, and it was immediately decided to turn it over to the Labor Temple association. The "guarantee fund" put up by the unions to guarantee the prompt payment of all bills in case of necessity, was ordered refunded to the contributing unions. It was not necessary to use any part of this fund.

The outcome of the celebration reflects credit upon the general committee, and upon the trades unionists of Lincoln and Havelock who turned out in the parade and who swelled the crowd at the Beach.

Died Looking for Work.

Four men walking on the track of the Lake Shore road at Cleveland, Ohio, were struck by an engine. Two fell under the wheels and were horribly mangled, dying almost instantly. Another died while being taken to a hospital. The fourth man escaped serious injury. It is said all the men were looking for employment. They stepped from one track onto another to avoid a freight train and were struck by the engine which they had failed to see.

Eagle Attacks Young Boy.

Swooping down into a crowd of persons who were watching a recent baseball game near Port Richmond, S. I., an American eagle attacked John Pollackson, eight years old. A group of men set upon the bird and George Pollackson, father of the boy, ran to his home, procured a shotgun and, returning, killed the eagle. The eagle measured seven feet six inches from tip to tip. Young Pollackson was not injured beyond a few scratches.
