CLEVELAND at the bidding of Wall street two years ago called Congress together in extra session to close the mints against silver and save the country. John Sherman helped him through with his big contract, and proposed that ten days after the silver coinage act should be repealed confidence would be restored and prosperity would enrich us abundantly. The mints were closed, and so were the mills, just the same. Then the trouble was declared to be all on account of the tariff, and confidence was restored again by returning the Republicans to power. But prosperity and confidence seem to be waiting for the Populists to take con- To meet him on the river bank trol in '96.

THE cost of the state's defense in the Maximum rate suit with the railroads, if the bilis are allowed, will be $25,017.93, provided the case is carried through the supreme court. The bills already aggregate $13,057.20. Included in this latter sum is Judge Dundy's fee of $2,618.05; the Omaha Printing company for printing testimony and briefs, $3,561.10; John L. Webster for attorney's fees, $6,000. And Webster wants $4,000 more for repeating his arguments before the supreme court. The courts and lawyers care little for justice and much for the money they can force out of the people.

arranged to handle school furniture and supplies. He has resigned from the Board of Education in this city to engage in this business, and surely few men would be better fitted for it. He has been all his life a school man. For three terms he was county superintendent at this place, and no county in the state ever had a superintendent more generally liked. Members of school boards will turn to him with full confidence in his judgment and his integrity.

THE banks are after interest. They want that currency bill passed which will give them the greatest amount of interest. And Congress asks the bankers to come and tell them what the non-producing money loaners want. The people who must borrow money and use it are not invited to recommend a bill in their interest, take notice. Which shows that this is not a government of the workers by the workers and for the workers, but a government of thelenders, for the lenders and by the lenders.

THE scheme now working out is to keep issuing bonds in $50,000,000 blocks. and the disagreement over a currency bill will continue till several hundred million dollars of new bonds have been piled on the backs of the people. Then they will put through a bill such as suits the bankers, to make such bonds an additional basis for bank note circulation. God save the people.

Dun reports a less number of failures in 1894. But the opinion is very preva lent that the whole thing, so far as work and wages and paying debts and living in comfort was concerned, was an allaround stupendous failure.

ALL interest is usury, and, as Lord Bacon says, its quality at any rate per cent, even the lowest, is to accumulate money and by it the wealth and resources of a nation and of the world into few hands.

How Our Plan is Received

The editor of THE WEALTH MAKERS, Lincoln. Neb., publishes in the issue of that paper of December 27, a financial system and asks exchanges to consider the same. The plan is all right, perfectly feasible; and would bring lasting prosperity and be the greatest step toward justice that can be taken.-Missouri

Read the article this week which we take from THE WEALTH MAKERS headed Better than Carlisie's Plan." It will set you to thinking on the right line. Ponder over the plan. Carefully weigh every idea in it. Consider what its adoption would do for you and your friends and the country. Fix every proposition of the plan in your memory, then talk it to your neighbor. Search out if you can any objectionable feature. Formulate if possible an improvement. This plan would enable the farmer to borrow money at two per cent to pay off his mortgage at eight percent. It would enable irrugation districts to get money to construct irrigation works at a rate which they could afford. It would double the price of farm products, make farmers prosperous and with them all other classes engaged in honest industry. It would distribute money wherever it is needed and could be safely secured. It would put an end to the usury business and turn all private capital into useful industry. It would provide an absolutely safe and sound currency and sufficiently flexible to meet all demands. It would make the people independent of Wall street and foreign capitalists. The bankers and money lonners will oppose the system of course, for the simple reason that their interest and the interests of the people are directly antagonistic. The general features of the plan are simple and scientific, and with proper safeguards against undue inflation of the currency and against speculation in land, nothing but good could come of its adoption. Study the money question.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

[A more careful inspection of the plan will show that what we propose puts a natural limit to the volume so that there would be no inflation. With the government receiving deposits of all money the deposits would equal demands for loans with the exception of what would becalled for to meet an increase in population and wealth .- EDITOR WEALTH MAKERS.]
