current running toward socialism. That the current would run much stronger if it were not for the strange misapprehension concerning the nature of socialism. The highest degree of liberty is not inconsistent with a strongly socialistic organism, and certainly some considerable part of the production and distribution of wealth could be much better managed were the present factors of monopoly, selfishness and competition eliminated. So, too, socialism, rightly regarded, would not destroy a healthy degree of individual enterprise and true competition.

The strongest part of the present book seems to be Part IV, Practicable Social Reform. Dr. Ely takes the position that it would not be wise, at least now, for society as a unit to undertake the complete charge of production and distribution of wealth, but that there should be a socialization of monopoly, both natural and artificial.

The chapter on Land Reform is excellent, and that on Development of the Social Side of Private Property is original in many ways. The Appendix is also very valuable, giving as it does, manifestoes of Social Societies in England, Germany and America.

It has been well said that this is one of the strongest books of the year.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS, by Edward Cary.

This is one of the American Men of Letters series which have been so helpful to thousands of teachers and general readers. George William Curtis was a noble, independent character, and as such was most attractive to true Americans, and becomes an excellent study for boys and girls. Such men deserve to be studied by every scholar in the public schools, because from such a study the pupils get not only strong, inspirations toward noble characters, but they also get a clear, connected idea of the history of our country.

This biography is very attractive in style, is not overdrawn and, is a worthy number in the series. Many readers will be especially interested in the chapters on Emerson and Brook Farm. Mr. Curtis had a strong influence in public affairs, especially from the time he became editor of Harper's Weekly in 1863. His judgment in politics was ever from the standpoint of the statesman, not the politician, He withstood the radical element of the Republican party in 1864 and was a delegate to the Baltimore Convention that nominated Lincoln for his second term. The strong leaning of Mr. Curtis toward purity and reform in politics is well shown and the biographer has certainly well succeeded in putting before his readers George William Curtis as a noble, poor and disinterested patriot.

MASTER AND MEN, by William Burnett Wright.

Is a volume of essays on The Sermon or the Mount. The style is exceedingly attractive and reminds one in its freshness and beauty of sermons of David Swing. These essays contain sound sense, clear conceptions of truth, true piety and cutting, because true, criticism of the present life of the Christian church, Perhaps as striking a chapter as any is the first on Puzzles. The chapeers on George Fox, Charles Geo. Gordon, Moses, St. Paul and others, show true historical insight and sympathetic appreciation. The book is handsomely gotten up with excellent print, paper and binding. Published by Houghton, Mifflin oughton, Mifflin & Co Boston. Price $1.25.

THE Arena for March contains for a frontispiecen fine likeness of Lady Somerset, an article on Japan by Midori Kamatz, a contribution by Miss Willard on "Scientific Temperance Instruction," a paper by Prof. Bixby on "Mohammed and the Koran," a sketch of Lyman Trumbull (with portrait) by Richard Linthicum, B. O. Flower writes on Italy in the time of Sir Thomas More, George E. Pepperill writes "An Open Letter to Hon. John G. Carlisle, R. J. Henton gives a Study of John Burns, W. J. Armstrong writes a strong paper entitled "Savans to the Rear," and there are other papers by Henry Wood, Dr. S. M. Miller, Prof. Thomas E. Will, Margaret B. Peeke and several others.

THE North American Review is a good number. The Personal History of the Second Empire by Albert D. Vandam is still continued. Lady Henry Somerset. Marion Harland and Harriet Prescott Spofford have a word to say about Nagging Women evidently brought out by the article on the same subject some month or two ago. Max O'Rell is at outs with Mark Twain because of the latter's strictures on Paul Bourget. All will be interested in The Truth About Port Arthur by Frederick Villier's: also, in What Psychical Research Has Accomplished, by Frank Podmore, and The Future of Silver by Hon. R. P. Bland.

THE Forum for March contains many excellent things among which we would call particular attention of our readers to the following: The Business World vs. the Politicians by J. E. Eckels, Comptroller of the Treasury. Andrew Carnegie tells about What Would I Do with the Tariff? Two Examples of Successful Profit-sharing, is the subject of Prof. F. W. Blackman. Henry Holt finishes his article on The Social Discontent, by giving some remedies. There is a good number on The Tenement the Real Problem of Civilization by Jabob A. Riis. All will eagerly read The Anti-toxin Treat-ment of Diphtheria, by Dr. L. Emmet Holt.

A few weeks ago we criticised the National Watchman of Washington, D. C., for its attitude on the Omaha platform, and its advocacy of the one-idea educational campaign. Since that one criticism appeared we have not seen a copy of the Watchman nor have we heard of it. We are forced, therefore, to conclude that either our blast wholly demolished the Watchman or else that our friend Dunning cut us off his exchange list. Which? -Progressive age.

THE WEALTH MAKERS did likewise and is in the same quandary, not having seen the Watchman for a month or more. Who now shall tell us that "the morning cometh, and also the night?" How shall we live without the voice of Dunning? To All Alliances: Brothers and sisters of the state of Nebraska, as in the year 1893 our crop was scarcely a half crop, and in 1894 a total failure, we feel it our duty as your committee to make the following call to save our greenbacks and other interests of the people: That all brothers and sisters that were in good standing in 1892 and 1893, as well as those at the present time, call their subordinate Alliances to meet and to go to work as if they had paid their dues and keep up their organi-

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the F. A. & Never was an organization of the farmers so necessary for the preservation of liberty as at the present time. The interest of the politician is again receiving greater consideration than the needs of the farmers, which can not be stated in any one plank of reform. We have vowed to stand by each other while life lasts, and the fraternal feeling must be cultivated more in the future than in the past. Had our organization been kept in its former standing no brother or sister need have suffered hunger or cold or had to beg for the necessities of life. The pressing calls made on us daily for anything to sustain life should be met with a response from all who have aught to

Our executive committee issued an appeal to other State Alliances but contributions were prevented by the false report that enough and to spare had been sent to the State Commission.

We hope yet to relieve some suffering members as the need will continue urgent until another crop is well under way. Any Alliance sending 10 cents for each male member will at once be furnished with supplies and new secret work; otherwise get to work as suggested by the Executive Committee.

County secretaries please call meeting with delegates from each subordinate Alliance in good standing in 1892, '93, or the present time, remitting all past

Now is the time for action; the farmers must again take hold of the helm o. State. I am ever yours for industrial freedom.

MRS. J. T. KKLLIE. freedom. Sec. Nebr. F. A. & I. U.

These hard times have created thought and farmers seem to awake at last to the fact that a drouth is a small calamity compared to the election of a lot of enemies of wealth producers to make and unmake our laws. The drouth we cannot control as yet, but we can and probably will prevent a recurrence of the latter in the near inture.

The signs are favorable for a return of the farmers to a position of influence in the affairs of state, as evidenced by Maple Creek Alliance of Furnas county, which reports a great increase of members, making 80 at present; and they say they expect to make it 100 in the near future. Dodge and Dixon counties are also reorganizing, and still there's more to Every Alliance in the state in good standing has probably received by this time a donation of 20 assortments of garden seeds, containing 5 packets each, from Senator Allen, making about $5.00 worth to each Alliance. When footed up this is a nice donation, and, as seen by my letter, one that is greatly appreciatthis year.

A generous brother of Beaver City, Writes, March 4, "I see by your letter in THE WEALTH MAKERS of Feb. 28, that there are some few persons trying to help suffering humanity in Nebraska. But when we look around among the farmers of other states we find them even with good crops in almost as bad a condition financially as we are in Nebraska. When will the American people wake up to know that they are slaves to the money power of England, and that the American flag of today floats over more corruption and oppression than the flag of any so-called Christian nation on earth? "There is always a long calm before a storm, and the storm is not far off. There are many members of the Alliance who are able to give from five to ten dollars; but the love of self is so great that they forget that we are brothers. Let us see if something can be done. If you will select for me thirty members, heads of families who are unable to buy seed, I will send to each 20 cents worth of garden seed. This is a small offer, but if 100 men would give $6.00 worth of some kind of seed the State Alliance would have $600.00 worth of seed for its mem-

"Brethren, fall in. Who will be the next to give $6.00 of some kind of seed?"

A letter from a Perkins county brother says: "A great many families are subsisting on bread alone. We have been supplied with plenty of clothing through our church organizations, but are in great need of provision such as coffee, meat, beans, etc., and there is hardly a farmer in the county who has seed for planting this spring, or the means to procure it. I suppose you are aware of the fact that this county voted bonds in the sum of $90,090 to aid in building an irrigation ditch. We have been unable to sell the bonds, and the farmers here did $25,000 worth of work on said ditch, for which they have not received one cent. They spent all their available cash for feed and board, and, as the bonds voted are the full limit allowed by law, we can not vote bonds for seed and will have to depend entirely on the charity of our more fortunate neighbors. Any help you can extend us will be gratefully received. Trusting in that All-Wise Providence

The following will be found in Chapter 33, laws of 1891, and is the only law that I can find that touches upon examination, and the fees are therein stated.

SEC. 17. [ANNUAL STATEMENT TO THE AUDITOR-EXAMINATION FEE.]-It shall be the duty of the president and vice president and secretary of every such company, on the first day of January each year, or within a month thereafter, to prepare, under their own oath, and transmit to the auditor of public accounts a statement of the condition of the company on the last day of the month preceding, in such form as the law may direct. If, upon examination, he is of opinion that such company is doing business correctly, in accordance with the provisions of this act, he shall thereupon furnish the company a certificate, which shall be deemed authority to continue business the ensuing year. For such examination and certificate the company shall pay one dollar ($1) for agent's certificates of authority, fifty cents ($0.50). Each company shall pay, at the time of organization, ten dollars ($10) to the auditor, all of which shall be paid into the state treasury and applied to the general fund.

The above is the only authority that the Auditor has to charge for examination of the mutual companies organized under the mutual law of 1891.

SECTIONS 28, 29 and 30 of chapter 43 of compiled statutes of 1889, authorizes the Auditor to examine insurance companies, but as section 30 is the only one that refers to mutual companies, I will give that part of it, viz:

SEC. 30. [SAME, MUTUAL COMPANIES.] If, upon such examination, it shall appear to the said Auditor that the assets of any company chartered upon the plan of mutual insurance under this act, are insufficient to justify the continuance of such company in business, it shall be his duty to proceed in relation to such company, in the same manner as is herein required in regard to joint stock com-

You will notice that all companies under this act may be examined, but that does not apply to mutual companies under other, and especially under the law subsequently passed.

This chapter, 43, also provides the amount of fee for admission (see sec. 32) $50.00, for filing each annual statement $20.00, for each agent's certificate $2.00. Which, if you will compare with section 17 (given above), you will see that the companies mentioned are of a different line of companies, and are organized under a different law and pay the Auditor several times the lees.

I do not think that any secretary would object to have the Auditor examine his books; but when the charge is $10.00 per day and expenses it is not in accordance with the idea of the law under which our companies are organized. The Auditor tells me that he did not authorize Mr. Dorsey to collect $10.00 per day, or any other definite amount. The law does not give the fees for examining even the old line companies, but they are bled to the tune of $10.00 per day
