The Second Largest Normal College in America

This college is located three to three and one-half miles southwest of the city on high, slightly ground, overlooking the city of Lincoln, a city of 65,000 to 70,000 population.

Wholesale Farming.
The great wheat farms of the West and Northwest are to the smaller Eastern Farms what the great wholesale jobbing houses are to small retail stores.
The more conservative Eastern farmer opens his eye with wonder, and perhaps shakes his head with incredulity, when he hears tales told of the immensity of the great "bonanza farms" and their wholesale methods of farming.
Ten-thousand acres of wheat in a single field seems like a fairy tale, and thirty or forty self-binding harvesters at work together seems quite beyond their belief. The Dakotas are a land of big things, big distances, big winds, big crops, "big injuns" and big farms.
The picture accompanying this article represents a scene on a bonanza farm in North Dakota. So far as the machines are concerned the picture might represent a harvest scene on any big farm, for it is an undeniable fact that the famous self-binders shown in the picture are used, to the exclusion of all others, on nine out of ten of the big farms of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Colorado, Montana, Tennessee and elsewhere.

Twenty or thirty self-binding harvesters in line, clicking steadily along through a thousand acres of ripe yellow wheat is a sight that one will not soon forget. Stand at the edge of the great grain and watch these twenty Deering Binders go by each cutting its swath of six or seven feet and following close behind the machine in front, a line four hundred feet long.
A visit to these great farms of the Northwest is enough to convince the most sceptical that this country of ours rightly stands at the head of all countries of the world for the preeminence of agriculture.
The American farmers lead all others and fully deserve the large measure of success that has crowned their efforts.

INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

A Wonderful Traction ENGINE.

J. Y. M. SWIGART, Secretary of the Nebraska Mutual Cyclone, Tornado and Wind Storm Insurance Company, EDGEMOND, NEB. communications on Fire, Cyclone or Hail insurance should be addressed to him at Lincoln, Nebraska.

Cyclones.
If you read the papers you know of cyclones in all directions. But as we now have a mutual Cyclone Co., he should not be helped who is not willing to help others by insuring with the cheapest and best insurance company in Nebraska. Send to the editor of this department for information on all insurance subjects.

Fires and Lightning.
Two more companies were organized last week. There are about twenty-five now incorporated in the state since the new law took effect last August. We hope every county will either organize a company or join in with neighboring counties so that the whole state will be covered with mutual insurance.

Hail.
We are now sending out contracts and making the insurance good and are desirous to have 500,000 acres insured this year. We have no paid agents but every member of the company should see that his neighbor (whether he is an alliance member or not) is insured.
This company will terminate next December when all losses are paid. While there is seemingly some flaws in our plan we can not change them this late in the season. But they can be remedied next year. We hope that while you are in Lincoln at the convention you will call on us. There were several hail storms in the state last week.

Beatrice people are crying for water while the contractors are assuring the newspaper men that the plant is being repaired and extended and will sometime yield an abundant supply.

At Norfolk yesterday Engineer Geo. Martis, while leaning out of the cab of his engine and looking backward, had his head struck by a bridge with such force as to fracture his skull and knock him out of his engine. He is a single man whose home is at Sioux City. His injuries are considered quite dangerous.

Mr. George Baker, from near Beatrice, while visiting on a farm near Table Rock, undertook to make friends with a Polled-Angus bull, when the animal knocked Mr. Baker to the ground, breaking his collar bone and several ribs, the ends of which penetrated his lungs.

His Last Home of Clay.
Colonel E. A. Crawford, who died recently at Atlanta, was laid to rest in the old and tattered confederate uniform which he had worn during the war, and which, in its bullet holes, told how near he had been to death from the federal foe.
