

The Notorious English Duke Meets With Death Suddenly.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Duke of Marlborough was found dead in bed at Blenheim palace this morning.

The Duke of Marlborough, tenth earl in precedence in the United Kingdom and one of England's greatest aristocrats, if title be taken as a claim for greatness, was a notoriously immoral man and was known as such in the two hemispheres. American interest in him centers in his wife, the widow, Mrs. Lillie Warren Hamersley of New York, and his famous and beautiful palace, Blenheim, one of the most magnificent of English country seats.

The duke was 47 years old before his succession to the dukedom and while marquis of Blandford he was divorced in 1883 from his first wife. His accomplice was the countess of Aylesford, whose husband was a dissolute peer and lived usually in foreign countries and for a time in Texas. After being divorced Marlborough and Lady Aylesford lived openly together in Paris and a son was born, which the duke later acknowledged was his. He signed all the papers necessary to the registry of birth and settled on the boy $50,000. The Earl of Aylesford sued for a divorce, which was refused, as his own character was not above suspicion. In the meantime Lady Aylesford had thrown herself on the charity of friends as the duke treated her badly and would never give her more than $10 at a time. On the death of the Earl of Aylesford the latter's wife put in a claim for her child as lawful heir to the Aylesford estate and title. English aristocrats were horrified, and the house of lords, before whom the case was tried, quickly threw out the claims and gave the title and estate to the earl's brother. Nor was this the only scandal in which the duke had figured.

In 1887, being badly in need of funds, the duke came to America, it is said, for the purpose of finding a matrimonial partner with sufficient beauty to add luster to his social position and with sufficient funds to enable him to make good the possibilities of his station. At the home of Mrs. Paran Stevens he met Mrs. Hamersley and soon after learned that her fortune was not under her absolute control; that it was to be left ultimately to the male issue of J. Hooker Hamersley, cousin of Mrs. Hamersley's husband, and in case there should be none, to such charities in New York as Mrs. Hamersley should designate. In the meantime Mrs. Hamersley was to receive an annual income of $150,000 from the estate, which was in charge of three trustees, during her natural life.

While the gossips were speculating the duke returned to England, where he passed the winter, and in May was again in America. The engagement was soon announced, and a Gotham society leader was to take precedence of every American woman who had even married an English nobleman and was also to take precedence of every English woman except the queen and nine others. The marriage occurred in the New York city hall, Mayor Hewett officiating.

WORKINGMEN PARADE.

The Demonstration at Tower Hill Far From Peaceable.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Another meeting of the unemployed workingmen was held at Tower Hill yesterday and the speeches made showed increased violence in their tone. The meeting was more pregnant with promises of violence than any other recently held at Tower Hill. Ingham, well known as an agent of the socialist federation, was one of the speakers.

After the speaker had finished a procession was formed and marched toward the West End. As the crowd was passing the office of the St. James Gazette, against which the mob seemed to have a special grievance, a number of men left the lines and tried to rush in. The police rushed upon the men and struck right and left with their batons. After a short scuffle the men were driven back. The editor of the St. James Gazette sent out word that he was prepared and willing to see a deputation from the workingmen to discuss grievances with them. This had the effect of quieting the mob. A deputation was at once appointed to have an interview with the editor, and then the procession proceeded.

When the deputation waited upon the editor, they told him they wanted an apology for a letter that had appeared in the St. James Gazette. The editor replied that he believed a majority of those taking part in the demonstration were loafers and declined to publish a disclaimance.

A Mexican State in Pawn.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., Nov. 10.—A sensation has been created in state government circles over the discovery by Governor Juan Ahumada, the new executive of Chihuahua, that ex-Governor Exrique Roderiquez, his predecessor, had pawned the revenues of the state to the amount of $110,000, and that he had also contracted a floating indebtedness of $116,000. "I forgot, pa, but it was from the second chapter of St. Paul."
"St. Paul, eh?"

Something New Under the Sun.

Art has been as inaccurate in its representation of the snake in motion as of the horse. The snake does not literally "go upon his belly," scripture to the contrary notwithstanding, but upon his side, and his motion results from the use of the intercostal muscles in such a way as to contract the ribs on one side at a time. By this process and in this position the snake can run very rapidly, but only for a short time. He is quite unable to glide upon a perfectly smooth surface, nor is he able, as most persons suppose, to propel his whole body forward and in air when striking.
