

THE INAUGURATION.

CLEVELAND INSTALLED AS CHIEF MAGISTRATE.

INAUGURATED IN A SNOW STORM.

Uncle Sam's Government Transferred From Republican to Democratic Hand Without the Slightest Friction—Inaugural Address of President Cleveland—Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Grover Cleveland of New York, thrice nominated for president of the United States and twice elected, was to-day,

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The inauguration of Grover Cleveland of New York, thrice nominated for president of the United States and twice elected, was to-day,

The morning opened with a heavy snow, which fell in great, soft flakes, melting as fast as they fell, but which driven by the wind, rendered umbrellas a useless protection.

The concourse in the streets was nearly all under umbrellas and the open stands were shunned while the covered ones were eagerly sought.

Despite the inconveniences, however, the exercises of the day were carried out just as they had been planned, and the countless multitudes were not deterred by the weather from witnessing the most impressive of all American ceremonies.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The Retiring President Early Active—The Gathering for the Ceremonies.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The household and official force at the White house were up about most of the night. After President-elect and Mrs. Cleveland had said adieu after the dinner, President Harrison returned to his desk and continued the examination of bills sent from the capitol.

There was nothing of sufficient importance to demand the attention of the president, but he was awakened and dressed, however, at 5 o'clock, and shortly afterwards the whole household was astir.

The members of the cabinet then began to assemble to accompany their chief to the capitol. It was shortly after 11 o'clock when President-elect Cleveland and Vice President-elect Stevenson, accompanied by the senate committee on arrangements, entered the executive mansion.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee remained at the White house to receive the president and Mrs. Cleveland upon their return from the capitol.

MRS. CLEVELAND'S KISS.

The President-Elect Given a Most Pleasant God Speed on His Way.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The members of the presidential party had arisen unusually early and begun preparation for the day's work. The senate committee on arrangements put in an appearance and were immediately shown to Mr. Cleveland's apartments.

vice president-elect to the capitol. At 11 o'clock a fine four-in-hand drew up in front of the Arlington to convey the president and vice president-elect to the capitol.

After remaining at the capitol a quarter of an hour the party drove to the White house. At 11:30 o'clock a long roll was sounded in the little park in front of the White house.

There was a wild huzza from 1,000 throats as the carriage bearing the president and president-elect came in sight, preceded by Grand Marshal McMahon and staff.

The east doors of the senate wing were opened at 10 o'clock to those who were entitled to admission and when the inaugural party arrived the president and president-elect entered the senate wing by the bronze doors in the east front.

The morning opened with a heavy snow, which fell in great, soft flakes, melting as fast as they fell, but which driven by the wind, rendered umbrellas a useless protection.

IN THE SENATE CHAMBER.

Arrangements for the Great Event—The Ceremonies and Addresses.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—During the early morning the senate chamber had been arranged for the coming ceremonies. The large red Morocco chairs stood in front of the clerk's desk for the use of the president and vice president-elect.

The first of the distinguished guests to arrive was the diplomatic corps. They were followed by the supreme court. The senate stood up to receive it as it had done in the case of the diplomatic corps and the chief justices in their black silk judicial robes and accompanied by the marshal and other officials entered and took their seats. The members of the house then came in informally and unannounced.

On entering the senate wing about noon Mr. Harrison walked unattended to the president's room, where he found an abundance of work to keep him busy. In fact, it was of such an amount that three times did it become necessary for venerable Captain Bassett to turn back the hands of the clock.

At this time the general spectacle was magnificent. The galleries were filled with the elegantly dressed ladies, with a few gentlemen scattered among them. The senators from forty-four states were all in their places.

When the senate clock indicated 11:50, but when the actual time was 12:50, the vice president-elect was announced, and Mr. Stevenson, escorted by Senator McPherson, took his chair to the right of Vice President Morton. Immediately afterwards the president of the United States and his cabinet were announced and President Harrison and the members of his cabinet entered the chamber.

public duty. Adams, Jefferson and Calhoun honored its incumbency during the early days of the republic. While Arthur, Hendricks and Morton have at a later period of our history shed lustre upon the office of president of the most august deliberative assembly known to man.

of firmness and ability. Earnestly invoking the co-operation, the forbearance, the charity of each of its members, I now enter upon my duties as presiding officer of the senate.

As the new vice president closed his remarks he directed the secretary of the senate to read the proclamation of the president convening the senate in extraordinary session.

THE OATH ADMINISTERED.

Chief Justice Fuller Performs the Impressive Ceremony—Notables Present.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—As soon as the senate had completed its work usual on inauguration day, the members and all others present arose, after Chief Clerk Johnson had announced the order of the procession, and all moved to the east portico of the capitol in the following order:

The marshal of the District of Columbia and the marshal of the supreme court. The chief justice. The vice president and the secretary. The members of the senate. Diplomatic corps. Heads of departments. The major general of the army commanding the army and navy, who by name have received the thanks of congress.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY HILARY A. HERBERT OF ALABAMA.

At the front of the stand an enclosure about twenty feet square had been created by the erection of a low railing covered with flags for the accommodation of the president and president-elect, the chief justice of the supreme court, whose duty it is to swear in the new president, and a few other persons of official or social prominence during the performance of the ceremonies.

Thousands of people had gathered about the entrance to the capitol and the stand and when the distinguished party appeared mighty cheers arose. After a few ceremonies usual to the day had been completed, Chief Justice Fuller, holding in his hand the Bible on which Mr. Cleveland was sworn in eight years ago, administered the oath in the usual form and Mr. Cleveland kissed the book reverently and was declared president of the United States.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The National Treasury as Cleveland and Harrison Left It.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—A comparison of the condition of the public debt and of the national treasury on the 1st of March, 1893, at the close of the Cleveland administration, and on the 1st of March, 1893, at the close of the Harrison administration—based upon the form of the monthly statement issued at present—makes the following showing:

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Senator Martin, Democrat, of Kansas was sworn in as a member of the senate without opposition.

SHIP OPENING IN SIGHT.

Houses of Congress Pass the Decried Legislation.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—One of the last acts of the Fifty-second congress was to provide for the opening to general settlement of the Cherokee strip. This was done in the form of an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill.

As passed the bill provides for the payment of $295,000 in cash and the $8,000,000 remaining in five equal annual payments, the amounts not paid to bear four per cent interest. A commission is to be named to settle the value of improvements of "intruders," the total not to be over $50,000, to be paid by the Indians. The president is to have a year to effect the opening and to give thirty days' notice of his intention to act.

SMITH DEFEATS GODDARD.

The Denver Man Wins in the Eighteenth Round.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 4.—Joe Goddard, the "Barrier Giant," and Ed Smith, the Denver pugilist, met last night in the arena of the Olympic club for a purse of $10,000, the loser to take barely enough from the purse to defray his training expenses.

DEATH IN A TORNADO.

Thirteen People Probably Killed and Vast Damage Done in Mississippi.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 4.—Meager reports reach here of a destructive tornado in East Mississippi and Western Alabama last night. Many houses were destroyed near Marion, Meridian and Corinth, Miss., and thirteen lives were known to have been lost. Cars were blown from the tracks.
