W. R. Barnwell Writes of His Western Trip.

HIS IDEA OF THE WESTERN COAST

A Trip Any Man Would Delight in-A Striking Contrast in Salaries Paid in Tacoma and in Lincoln.

[From the Weekly Unionist.]

TACOMA, Wash., April 15, 1893. EDITOR UNIONIST: As I am desirous of hearing something more of the progress of the strike and matters politically and typographically in Lincoln than I know at present, I have decided to inflict a letter upon your readers in the wild hope that some of the boys may retaliate in kind.

Suffice it to say that I landed at Caldwell, Idano, the second day out. I found inat town a quiet village of 1,000 inhabitants. As I was "shy" about two nights sleep, I retired to my room and slept until 6 p. m., when I awoke, rolled over and then went to sleep and slept till too late for breakfast next morning. I had to order a lunch, and dered from printed bills of fare. Besides that I noticed another metropolitan feature in the provincial town—successfully enjoin Mr. Cleveland and letter boxes and a free delivery system, his powerful Wall Street allies from confined to the postmaster and his assistant. The town has enough gam- name.-Platte County Argus. bling houses for a city of 50,000 inhabitants, and enough chop houses (mostly run by Chinsmen) and saloons to supthan it can ever hope to attain.

I arrived at Boise City about 10 a. located at the base of the foot-hills on the Boise river. With all its advantages located as it is in the midst of a mining and agricultural country, it has men of Jeffersonianism.-Nonconformstood comparatively still for the last ist. twenty years, during which time cities of ten times its size have sprung into existence, and other cities apparently pled in population.

There are some fine orchards and ground. Not bad property to own. It is said, however that these Chin-

I remained in Boise over a week, working only two days. There was after a republican paper, and as I could get no sort of promise or guarantee from them I concluded it would be indiscreet to invest and as I had been unable to dispose of the balance of my ticket, I came on through to Portland. I was much disappointed in the city. Probably it was because I had expected too much. I had heard that the Portland Oregonion building was the finest print shop in the world, but it does not compare favorably with that of the Omaha Bee in my estimation.

As there seemed to be no prospects fer work there, I came on to Tacoma. This is not a pretty city, nor at present particularly prosperous. It is built on the side of a hill and the streets run at obtuse angles to each other.

I am working on a book intended for distribution at the World's fair. It is intended as an advertisement of this shut. state, and I presume that Washington's resources, importance or future great-ness are not underrated. It is all brevier, and long primer, and is set in new type. It will make 200 pages and is all kept standing, necessitating a large amount of type on hand.

Great Prosperity.

Mr. Porter's census shows that Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nobraska have an aggregate murigage indebtedness of $1,174,732,241; while indebtedness—even more significant as an index to the general business depression—the total mortgage indebtedness of these five agricultural states.
